THE SEXTON'S STORY.

For some time I had heard the story of Mr. Sexton's two mistresses. But it was an interesting story, and I wanted to hear it from the source. So I went to see Mr. Sexton himself. He was a very old man, with a long white beard. He sat in a large chair, and looked very wise. "You want to hear my story, do you?" he said. "Well, here it is."

Mrs. Sexton had left me.

"Yes, Mr. Sexton," I said. "I really would like to hear it."

He nodded his head gravely. "I know it's a hard thing to believe," he said, "but it's true. Mrs. Sexton had left me. I was very sad, and I didn't know what to do."

Mr. Sexton told me about his first mistress, a young and beautiful girl named Alice. He had met her at a dance, and they had fallen in love. But then, just as things were going well, Mrs. Sexton returned. Mr. Sexton was torn between his love for Alice and his loyalty to his wife. He didn't know what to do.

"I asked Alice to wait for me," Mr. Sexton said. "I said I would come back to her when I could. But Mrs. Sexton wouldn't listen. She said I had to come back to her, or I was nothing."

In the end, Mr. Sexton had to choose Mrs. Sexton. He returned home, and tried to make things right. But it was too late. Alice had moved on, and he had lost her.

Mr. Sexton told me about his second mistress, another young woman named Mary. She was kind and gentle, and they were very happy together. But then, just as things were going well, Mrs. Sexton returned again. Mr. Sexton was torn between his love for Mary and his loyalty to his wife. He didn't know what to do.

"I asked Mary to wait for me," Mr. Sexton said. "I said I would come back to her when I could. But Mrs. Sexton wouldn't listen. She said I had to come back to her, or I was nothing."

In the end, Mr. Sexton had to choose Mrs. Sexton. He returned home, and tried to make things right. But it was too late. Mary had moved on, and he had lost her.

Mr. Sexton told me that he had been very sad, and that he had missed both Alice and Mary. But he had also learned a valuable lesson. "I learned that I couldn't have two mistresses," he said. "I learned that I had to choose one, or I was nothing."

And so Mr. Sexton had lived the rest of his life, with Mrs. Sexton, and with the memories of Alice and Mary. He had been a kind and gentle man, and he had always been true to his wife. But he had also been a man of many passions, and his story will always be remembered.

THE FINGER OF GOD.

The finger of God is a boulder that is said to have rolled down a mountain and stopped at a particular place. It is a popular attraction, and many people come to see it.

EXCHANGE IS NO ROBBERY.

A young man and his wife were standing on the street, looking at a window display. "I want that dress," the wife said. "I want it so much." "It's too expensive," the husband said. "We can't afford it." "I know," the wife said. "But I want it so much." The husband thought for a moment, and then said, "Okay, I'll buy it."

Mr. Sexton's story reminded me of a similar experience. I had wanted a new car, but I couldn't afford it. I thought about it for a while, and then I said, "Okay, I'll buy it."

And so I did. It was expensive, but it was worth it. I have never been happier.
DEATH AT DAYBREAK.

An English physician who has come over to this country on a visit to Manchester has died at his residence in that city. The doctor was not in good health at the time of his arrival, but he was able to carry on his work until the last moment. He was a man of great energy and ability, and was highly esteemed by his colleagues. His death is a great loss to the medical profession and to the city of Manchester.

MANTILLA WINE.

Mantilla wine, although often called a sherry, is really a type of sweet, full-bodied wine that originated in the region of La Mancha in Spain. It is made from a blend of grapes, including airén and tempranillo, and is typically aged in oak barrels for several years, giving it a rich, complex flavor.

A PORTLY WINE.

A portly wine is a type of dessert wine that is made from a blend of grapes, including tinta negra, tinta franca, and tinta amarela. It is typically aged in wood for several years, giving it a rich, robust flavor.

MARCH OF IMPROVEMENT.

The British Medical Association recently held its annual meeting in Manchester, and the proceedings were well received by the medical profession. The association has made great strides in improving the quality of medical education and in promoting the welfare of patients. It is an organization of great importance, and its work is much needed.
