AWFUL MOUNTAIN FIRES.

Measha Range Towns in Minnesota Burned--Iron River, Wis., Destroyed.

The result of a year of enterprise on the Measha range in Minnesota was wiped out in a single day.

For three weeks the range had been burning in danger. Forest fires had been burning on all sides of the new mining towns.

The closing day of the famous Borden murder trial--in which Lizzie Borden was charged with killing her father and step-mother--at New Bedford, Mass., was very interesting.

The testimony was all in the defense argument had been made and the attorney-general had only to close his argument.

Just one hour and 30 minutes passed before the 12 marched into the room again and were polled.

Wisconsin Lumber Towns Gone. Dispatches from Ashland, Wis., say Iron River, a thriving lumber town of 2,000 population, 20 miles from Ashland, is entirely wiped out.

A fire also attacked North York inflicting serious damage which has not been estimated.

PANAMA BOODLERS FREE. The Five Famous Frenchmen Released on Technicalities.

Paris cable: Considerable excitement has been caused by the decision of the court on the appeal of Charles de Lesseps and the other defendants convicted of fraud in connection with the Panama Canal Co.

Kalamazoo Student Drowned. Andrew J. Nelson, a student in Kalamazoo college was drowned while bathing in Woods Lake.

A Fast Trotting Colt. Mason Nutwood, the handsome 2-year-old colt owned by Coe Brothers, of Mason, trotted a mile at the driving park at Lansing in 2:35.

Belding Episcopalians are building a new house of worship. Dundee has a new chemical fire engine, and now wants a fire company.

James Chegwidden, a miner at Copper Falls, was killed by a street car at Hurley, Wis.

Chinch bugs have practically ruined a great share of the Kansas wheat crop and corn in its poor condition also.

While 50 men were raising a barn at East Bay, the whole structure collapsed. A number of legs were broken.

Benjamin Harrison has escaped from an insane asylum. This is not the ex-president, but a namesake who was at the Pontiac asylum.

At Battle Creek several people were poisoned by smelling roses on which paris green had been spread for the purpose of killing bugs.

Grand Marais has a splendid harbor, but the town has always been in need of a railroad. Now one, it is reported, will be built there from Manistique.

Ex-Superintendent of Public Instruction Ferris S. Fitch is receiving many endorsements for the position of superintendent of the State Normal school at Ypsilanti.

Joe Keating and Dan O'Mara were arrested at Oxford and taken to Pontiac to answer to a charge of swindling Solomon Harsh, a New York traveling man, out of $55 in a dice game.

Saginaw's city council sent the Flint fire department $50 and thanked its services for the recent fire there. It was returned with a message asking that it be considered a contribution to the relief fund.

At Iron Mountain the report that a number of mines are to be shut down is denied. The Peawick has just sold 700,000 tons of ore and a number of others are said to have made as large sales comparatively.

A point mine is said to have been discovered on the low lands near Fenville. Several stamps were blown out of the ground with dynamite and before long a rich vein of iron ore was found.

Only 14 out of 150 Junior Laws passed. Out of 150 juniors in the law department at Ann Arbor only 14 have passed the final examination.

UNCLE SAM IN IT AGAIN.

Mataha, ex-King of Samoa, Making Trouble at His Former Domain.

City of Mexico: The Mexican Financier says: "The downfall of the Sacoa government is an intrigue of foreign interests, hostile to the continuance of American control in the Nicaraguan ship canal, an enterprise purely American in its inception, and sustained entirely by American capital."

"The Democrat party now in power in the United States government is committed by its platform principles to giving preference of aid to the canal for the purpose of national defense and the promotion of commerce between the states."

An effort is to be made to introduce the growth of merino wool extensively into California.

There are more Swedes, Hollanders, Bohemians, Norwegians, Poles, Danes and Welshmen in Chicago than there are in New York.

The immense growth of lake commerce is all on the American side; on the Canada side, with a coast line of equal length, there has been no growth at all.

In New York the odor of ammonia that comes from stables is regarded as a disinfectant, and there is a popular belief that burial in stable manure is a cure for smallpox.

A crystal maze is one of the novelties of New York. The maze is constructed with apparently numberless mazes, in which the wanderer finds himself reflected in every direction.

Pet dogs are being dyed so as to harmonize with the color of the ladies' hair. They are dressed in tailor-made clothes. The fashionable coloring for a small white poodle is two shades of violet.

Ira W. Atkins, aged 19 years, of Duquesne, Pa., committed suicide during a fit of insanity caused by being hit on the head with a snowball last winter.

Representatives of the Brotherhood of Engineers, Electricians and Trainmen, of the Chicago and North Western Switchmen's Mutual Benefit Association, employed on the D. G. H. & M. Grand Trunk, T. S. & M. roads, were in secret session at Battle Creek. The object was to discuss the proposed plan of federation to embrace all railroad organizations.

Sixteen hundred street railway employees of Minneapolis and St. Paul were on strike because the company demanded that they should sign a contract containing a clause making the employees responsible for all damages to persons or property.

The city of Minneapolis has financially obtained the withdrawal of a contract and the men returned to work.

Notice to the Public

Advertisers wishing to change their advertisements, must get the copy to us so the work can be done as early as Tuesday, else it will be set after the paper is out and be ready the next week.

THURSDAY, JUNE 22, 1933.

We have been invited to attend the exercises of commencement week, June 25-28 at the normal school at Ypsilanti.

Bald-headed people will find the new Columbian postage stamp a cheap and efficient method of protecting their craniums from the attacks of pestiferous flies and mosquitoes.

Two "trusties" scaled the prison wall at Jackson on Monday morning and fled. It is claimed that no guards were on the wall.

In the death of Alice Bissell, who was struck by an engine and instantly killed at Ypsilanti Monday morning, is a warning to people who will persist in crossing a track in front of a moving train.

Congressman Gorman was in Tecumseh and listened to Miss Loana Stacy, David McNair, Alfred James, Tom Kyle, Erank Kennedy and Burt Garlinghouse tell what awfully good care they could take of the postoffice.

If your garden is nicely planted and arranged to your liking and then a neighbor's hens get in and arrange things to your disliking, close your mouth and revert back in memory to the most patient man spoken-of-in-biblical history.

The squabble after rewards offered for the detection of criminals wanted is so frequent that much dissatisfaction exists. It is the case of Sullivan, the murderer, the man who discovered him and the officer who arrested him have employed lawyers to urge their claims.

When will people ever learn that it takes time to set up the type necessary to fill up a newspaper, and that it cannot all be done in a half day? For instance, a paper coming out on Wednesday is actually flooded Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning with items, advertisements and articles.

The wanton destruction of fish in the numerous lakes near here is causing much indignation among resorters. Last Sunday one gentleman at Sand Lake picked up three bushels of dead fish which had been washed to the shore near his cottage.

The affairs of the Michigan mutual benefit association of Hillsdale have finally been settled by decree. The funds in the hands of the receiver, who was appointed about a year ago, will be disposed of as follows: First, the expenses are to be paid; second, the Silvers of Tecumseh claim of $3,000.

Jackson County Items.

Rev. Chas. F. Thomas of Lansing has received and accepted a call from the Presbyterian church of Brooklyn, Mich., and will leave the city July 1st to assume the pastorate.

Geo. C. Lord has a well and Lahan A. Parsons has a dog. A loose plank played false with the dog. It yielded to his weight and he fell into the well, going down 15 or 20 feet where he found a dry landing.

Washtenaw County.

Ernest Eberbach, a bachelor hardware merchant of Ann Arbor, and Mrs. Alice C. Miller were quietly married Tuesday.

So far this year county treasurer Sweeney has received $34,760 liquor tax from the following cities, villages and towns: Ann Arbor, $16,565; Ypsilanti, $2,630; Manchester, $3,565; Dexter, $2,300; Chelsea, $2,000; Saline, $2,000; Milan, $1,000; Whitaker, $300; Whitmore Lake, $300; Scio, $300; Lodi, $300.

Isaac Godfrey met with a somewhat peculiar, yet severe experience, Monday. He was doing some work in the yard in the afternoon when a young lady living a short distance beyond came along, she stopped and they had a short conversation, then leaving her dinner pail in the road she attacked Mr. G. and gave him a trouncing that he will never forget.

A Chelsea family have a favorite cat, whose name might be Thomas, but it is not. A few days ago it came into the house with a live rat and began playing with it upon the floor. The lady of the house is very fond of pets and thought it rare sport, but after frightening the other lady members of the household half out of their wits, she finally confined "Chub" and his ratsnip to the limits of the kitchen.

Washtenaw Times: Last Friday was the silver wedding day of Rev. & Mrs. John Neumann, of the Bethlehem church. The respected couple had proposed celebrating the day quietly with the presence of a few colleagues from the neighboring towns. What was their surprise when at 7:30 o'clock in the evening they heard the church bell ring and a back drove up to the door and the presence of themselves and children was requested in the church.

The Industry of Dreams.

A thing I like about dreams is their industry and economy. One able-bodied dream can get in more work and travel farther and consume more time in the minute than all the king's horses and all the king's men from Pharaoh's day to Carter Harrison's. I remember falling out of bed once; and as I did I thought I fell off the edge of the world.

After I had sailed awhile I began to drop, not like Milton's disappointed dream, "from moon till noon, and noon till dewy eve," but from New Year's till the 4th of July and from the 4th till Christmas, and, finally, after a few centuries of this depressing experience, I found myself impaled on one of the five points of a star of the forty-seventh magnitude, and gradually came to realize that I had fallen a matter of two feet and tangled my legs in the rounds of a chair.

It is said that Mrs. G. L. Lorillard intends to follow the example of the Duchess Montrose in England and keep a racing-stable. She has permitted her trainer to make engagements for her horses under the name of "The Locusts Stables."

We have an Odell Typewriter which we will sell at a bargain. The machine is acknowledged to be the most durable made and will do work that none other can. If taken soon, can be had for about half price. Call and see it at the ENTERPRISE office.

At the alumni reunion tomorrow evening, those who have tickets for the banquet will be seated at the tables on entering the hall and others will be seated farther back in the hall.

We have just gotten out some new style tablets and baronial envelopes to match. First class and low price at the ENTERPRISE office. Sample sent on receipt of 2 cent stamp.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COURT OF WASHTENAW. At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Washtenaw, held at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor, on Wednesday, the 14th day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety three.

Present, J. Willard Babbitt, Judge of Probate. Eleanor Gilpin, executrix of the last will and testament of said deceased, comes into court and represents that she is now prepared to render her final account as such executrix.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Tuesday, the 27th day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for examining and allowing such account and that the devisees, legatees and heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor, and show cause, if any there be, why the said account should not be allowed.

And it is further ordered, that said executrix give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said account and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Manchester Enterprise, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

J. WILLARD BABBITT, Judge of Probate. Wm. G. Dorr, Probate Register.

THE GHOST UPON THE STAIR.

She passed midway on the stair. Her step was like a breath. Her hair was like a wand. Her eyes were like a death.

A FAMILY DINNER.

I was dining at a well-known restaurant the other evening when Smith came in. "Hello!" he cried in his breezy manner.

"Oh, nothing particular, any more than with any other place. They're all alike. If by any miracle they get anything fit to eat, they spoil it in the cooking."

"Well, what's your engagement? Mine is with a cocktail and the farce comedy at the Gaiety. I need a bracer. Will you join me?"

"Oh, all my fault, of course. But I don't see why a man should be compelled to eat frozen victuals if he is late. That cook doesn't know her business."

TABERNACLE PULPIT.

DR. TALMAGE PREACHES ON A FRUITFUL SUBJECT.

And They Came Unto the Brook of Eschol and Cut Down From Thence a Branch With One Cluster of Grapes.

BROOKLYN, June 18, 1893.—Rev. Dr. Talmage, in selecting a theme for today's sermon in the Brooklyn Tabernacle, chose one peculiarly suitable to the season of the year.

The long trudge of the Israelites across the wilderness was almost ended. They had come to the borders of the promised land. Of the six hundred thousand adults who started from Egypt for Canaan, how many do you suppose got there? Five hundred thousand? No, no. Not a hundred thousand, not fifty, not twenty, not ten; but only one.

"There, there, Mary," said the unfortunate Mrs. Smith, "I only meant to say that you had been out of my opinion, that's all. But you can't do it if you talk till doomsday, and I don't want to hear any more about it."

"You introduced the subject yourself," retorted Mrs. Smith, very unwisely, it seemed to me, though I suppose the poor woman couldn't help it.

"Yes, of course! Everything is a subject with you, a subject to argue and wrangle over for hours. I can't say a word about anything but you snap me out of my opinion, and get insulting and personal, as you did just now."

"I am sure, Mary," Mrs. Smith began. "But she was interrupted, and the attention of all was diverted by a little remark from Smith."

"I am afraid I must go," said White. "I have a very particular engagement."

"By Jove!" I exclaimed, "I am engaged, too. The time has passed so pleasantly that I had forgotten all about it. I must be off at once."

"Hello!" he exclaimed. "You look soedy. I tell you what, old man, the life you lead is killing you. If you take my advice you'll get married and make a home for yourself, just as soon as you can."

comes howling through the gorge, you will be company for each other. The child close up to the bosom of its mother. The husband and wife re-married; on their lips the sacrament of the dust. Brothers and sisters, who used in sport to fling themselves on the grass, now again recline side by side in the flocks of sunlight sitting through the long willows. Then at the trumpet of the archangel to rise side by side, shaking themselves from the dust of ages. The faces that were ghastly and fixed when you saw them last all flush with the light of incorruption. The father looking around on his children, and saying: "Come, come, my darlings—this is the morning of the resurrection." Mrs. Sigourney wrote beautifully with the tears and blood of her own broken heart:

There was a shaded chamber, A needle and a sewing band, On a low couch a suffering child Grasping her mother's hand. But mid the gasp and struggle, With shading lips she cried, "Mother, oh, dearest mother, Bury me by your side."

Only one wish she uttered, As life was ebbing fast, "Bury me by my side, dear mother, And rise with me at last."

Oh, yes, we want to be buried together. Sweet antitypes of everlasting residence in each other's companionship. The wrecker went down into the cabin of the lost steamer he found the mother and child in each other's arms. It was sad, but it was beautiful, and it was appropriate. Together they went down. Together they are in heaven. Is there not something cheering in all this? We have no sympathy, and something to impress upon us the idea that the departed are ours yet—ours forever?

But I console you again with the fact of your present acquaintanceship and communication with your departed friends. I have no sympathy, with the ideas of modern spiritualism; but what I mean is the theory set forth by the apostle, when he says: "We are surrounded by a great cloud of witnesses."

Just as in an ancient amphitheater one hundred thousand people looking on from the galleries upon the combatants in the center, so, sa's Paul, there is a great host of your friends in all the galleries of the sky, looking down upon our earthly struggles. It is a sweet, a consoling, a cheering idea. With wings of angel earth and heaven are in constant communication. Does not the Bible say: "Are they not sent forth as ministering spirits to those who shall be heirs of salvation?" And when ministering spirits come down to us, do they not take some notion of us? It is impossible to realize, I know, the idea that there is such rapid and perpetual intercommunication of earth and heaven; but it is a glorious reality. You take a rail train and the train is in full motion, and another train is in the opposite direction dashed past you so swiftly that you are started; all the while between here and heaven is filled with the up trains and the down trains—spirits coming—spirits going—coming—going—coming—going.

That friend of yours who died last month—do you not suppose that he told all the family about you? Do you not suppose that when there are hundreds of opportunities every day for them in heaven to hear from you that they ask about you? Do you not suppose that they know your tears, your victories, your struggles, your sorrows? Do you not suppose that they are in the army, and you get a pass and you went through the lines and you found him, and the regiment coming from your neighborhood, you knew most of the boys there. One day you started for home. You said: "Well, now, messages to send." And they filled your pockets with letters, and you started home. Arriving home, the neighbors came in, and one said: "Did you see my John?" and another: "Did you see my George?" "Do you know anything about my Frank?"

O, there is consolation in it! You are in present communication with that land. They are in sympathy with you now more than they ever were, and they are waiting for the moment when the hammer stroke shall shatter the last chain of your earthly bondage and your soul shall spring upward; and they will stand on the heights of heaven and see you come; and when you are within hailing distance your other friends will be called out, and they will flash through the air, and their shout will make the hills tremble: "Hail! ransom spirit, to the city of the blessed!"

I console you still further with the idea of a resurrection. I know that you are a great many people who do not understand this because they cannot understand it; but, my friends, there are two stout passages—I could bring a hundred, but two specially passages are enough—and one shall strike down the largest Goliath. "Marvel not at this, for the dead shall rise." The other swartly passage is this: "The Lord shall descend from heaven with a shout, and the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first." Oh, there will be such a thing as a resurrection, coming up to answer about many questions. I cannot answer about this resurrection. You say, for instance: "If a man's body is constantly changing, and every seventh year he has an entirely new body, and he lives on to seventy years of age, and so he has had his death there is not a particle of flesh on him that was there in the days of his childhood—in the resurrection, which of the ten bodies will come up, or will they all rise?" You say: "Suppose a man dies and his body is scattered in the dust, and out of that dust a vegetable grows, and men eat the vegetables, and cannibals eat these men, and eat them, and cannibals fight with cannibals until at last there shall be a hundred men who shall have within them some particles that started from the dead body first named, coming up through the vegetable, and through the first man who ate it, and through the cannibal who ate that man, and there are more than a hundred men who have rights in the particles of that body—in the resurrection how can they be assorted when these particles belong to them all?" You say: "There is a man buried in Greece, and when he was in China he had his arm amputated—in the resurrection, will that fragment of the body fly 16,000 miles to join the rest of the body?" You say: "Will it not be a very difficult thing for a spirit to break up the particles of its own body, when the particles have been scattered by the winds of heaven by whole generations of the dead—looking for a myriad particles of its own body, while there are a thousand million other spirits doing the same thing, and all the assortment to be made within one day?" You say, "If a hundred or fifty men go into a place of evening entertainment, and leave their hats and overcoats in the hall, when they come back it is almost impossible for them to get the right ones, or to get them without a great deal of perplexity, and yet you tell me that myriads of spirits in the last day will come and find myriads of bodies." Have you any more questions to ask? any more difficulties to suggest? any more mysteries? Bring them on! Against a whole regiment of scepticism, I will march these two champions: "Marvel not at this, for the hoim is coming when all who are in their graves shall come forth." "The Lord shall descend from heaven with a shout, and the voice of the archangel, and the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first."

You see I stick to these two passages. Who art thou, oh, fool, who art the most restless against God? He has promised, and shall he not do it? Iath he commanded—and shall he not bring it to pass? Have you not confidence in his omnipotence? If he could, in the first place, build my body, after it is torn down, can he not build it again? "Oh, you say; 'I would believe that how it can be done.' My brother, you believe a great many things you cannot explain. You believe your mind acts on your body. Explain the process. This seed planted comes up a blue flower. Another seed planted comes up a white flower. Why? Why that wart on your finger? Tell me why some cows have horns, and other cows have no horns. Why, when two obstacles strike each other in the air, do you hear the crack? What is the subtle energy that dissolves a solid in a crucible? What makes the notches on an oak leaf different from any other kind of leaf? What makes the orange blossom different from that of the rose? How can the almightiness which rides on the circle of the heaven, find a room to turn its chariot on the heliotope? Explain these things, or do not do it? Then I will not explain the resurrection. You explain one-half of the common mysteries of every-day life, and I will explain all the mysteries of the resurrection. You cannot answer me very plain questions in regard to the energy of a flame. I am not ashamed to say that I cannot explain God, and the judgment, and the resurrection. I simply accept them as facts, tremendous and infinite. Before the resurrection takes place, everything will be silent. The graves and the labyrinth of the silent, the graveyards and the cemetery silent, the grinding of wheels as the last funeral procession comes in. No breath of air disturbing the dust where Persepolis stood, and Thebes, and Babylon. No winking of the eyelids, no stirring of the feet that once bounded the hillside. No opening of the hand that once plucked the flower out of the edge of the wild wood. No clutched of swords by the men who went down when Persia battled and Rome fell. Since from the river to the mountain cliff, and from the sea to the river, the sea-singing the same old tune. The lakes hushed to sleep in the bosom of the same great hills. No hand disturbing the gate of the long-barred sepulchre. All the nations of the dead motionless in their winding sheets. Up the side of the hills, down through the caverns of the valleys, far out in the caverns, across the fields, deep down into the coral palaces of the ocean depths where leviathan sports with his fellows—everywhere, a layer above layer, height above height, depth below depth, a mass of dead men, as thick as that, as the archangel's trumpet comes pealing, rolling, reverberating, crashing across continents and seas, the earth will give one fearful shudder and the door of the family vault, without being unlocked, will burst open, and all the graves of the dead will begin to throb and heave like the waves of the sea, and the mausoleum of princes will fall into the dust; and Ostend and Sebastopol, and Aust-ritz and Gettysburg, stalk forth in the lurid air, and the shipwrecked rise from the deep, their wrecks floating up above the billow; and all the land and all the sea become one moving mass of life—all generations, all ages with upturned countenances—some kindled with rapture and others blanched with despair, but gazing in one direction, upon one object, and that the throne of resurrection!

On that day you will get back your Christian dead. There is where the comfort comes in. They will come up with the same hand, the same foot, and the same entire body; but with a perfect hand, and a perfect foot, and a perfect eye, and a perfect ear, and a perfect heart, and a perfect incorruption, mortality having become immortality. And oh, the reunion; oh, the embrace after so long an absence. Comfort one another with these words.

While I present these thoughts this morning, do not let us, as though our friends, whom we thought a great way off, are not in the distance, but close by? You have sometimes come down to a river at night fall, and you have been surprised how easily you could hear voices across the water. You shouted over to the other side of the river, and they shouted back. It is said that, when George Whitefield preached in Third Street, Philadelphia, one evening time, his voice was heard clear across to the New Jersey shore. When I was in New Jersey, one day, I remember standing on one bank and I could easily hear the voices of the pickets across the Potomac just when they were using ordinary tones. And as we come to-day and stand by the river of Jordan that divides us from our friends who are gone, it seems to me we stand on one bank and they stand on the other, and it is only a narrow stream, and our voices go and their voices come. Hark! Hark! I hear distinctly what they say: "These are they who came out of great tribulation, and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb." Still the robes come across the water, and I hear: "We hunger no more, we thirst no more; neither shall the sun light on us, nor any heat, for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne leads us to living fountains of water, and God wipe away all tears from our eyes."
