MICHIGAN MENTION.
CONDENSED NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE STATE.
The Trial of Attorney-General Ellis, Charged With Forging Election Returns of Gogebic County, Ends in a Disagreement of the Jury.

After listening to nearly three weeks of testimony and lengthy arguments by the attorneys in the case, the jury in the Ellis election returns forgery case in the Ingham circuit court at Mason returned to determine as to the guilt or innocence of the accused. The many points in the case have been so often gone over that it would be superfluous to recount them here.

The jury immediately broke away from their seats; some of them snatched their hats and darted out of the courtroom and into the open air like school boys at recess. There was no show of feeling either side and the participants in the case and the spectators soon deserted the courtroom.

CONDITION OF CROPS.
NORTHERN SECTION: Abundant showers together with warm weather have made crops here generally better than in other parts of the State.

Wants to Get Back Into Prison.
Charley Burrell, a Negro brute just out of state prison, attempted an assault upon a colored woman named Cora J. White at Battle Creek. He tore her clothes nearly off her. Her servants brought assistance and the brute fled. The officers looked all night for him, and when found he threatened to kill in a way with a ax. Burrell is a giant in strength and a man of an animal mind. He has been in the hospital until sufficiently recovered to send to the Soldiers' home at Grand Rapids.

DETROITERS DROWNED.
A Sunday Excursion Across Lake St. Clair Costs Three Lives.
A terrible catastrophe occurred on the Detroit excursion to Grand Haven on the morning of July 1st, 1894. The well-known inventor of the Healy motor, who resides at 975 Jefferson avenue, and Kittie and Maggie Ortwin, aged 25 and 23 respectively, daughters of Capt. Peter Ortwin, of Engine company No. 17, all of Detroit, who were spending the day on the former's motor launch Ellen M. The two other occupants of the boat, Miss Birdie Rousseau, aged 17, and Miss Rose Hawley, aged 18, were saved by the crew of the propeller J. H. Pauly, commanded by Capt. Cooke, and Captain J. H. Pauly. The little craft was literally swamped by the high sea which was running, and but for the timely assistance of the J. H. Pauly the whole crew would have found a watery grave. Mr. Healy died at his post, while the Misses Ortwin seemed paralyzed with fear and they were unable to exert themselves. Each was solicitous of the other, and they died with one arm around the other's neck and with the other grasping the boat in a vain attempt to save themselves. Miss Rousseau and Miss Hawley were alive to the terrible danger that stared them in the face and they lost no time in jumping from the fast filling launch into the ready hands of the sailors who were straining every nerve to give assistance.

MINOR MICHIGAN NEWS.
St. Ignace Masons talk of erecting a three or four-story temple.
Harvey Deacon's 13-month-old child was burned to death at Montague.
A new elevator of 6,000 bushels capacity is to be erected at Marshall at once.

John Lewis, of near Caseville, was struck by lightning and killed while hoeing corn in the fields on his farm. He leaves a wife and two children.

Lightning prostrated Mrs. William Gilliam at North Lake. It set her dress on fire, burned one of her limbs and singed her hair. Her daughter who was sitting near her narrowly escaped a like fate.

The Alpha Kappa Phi literary society of Hillsdale college, will erect a $3,000 monument on the campus in memory of the 13 of the society members who fell in the war for the union. About 200 students from Hillsdale enlisted in the service, and 31 were killed.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.
SENATE—18th day.—Among the bills passed was one to authorize a commission to draft a code of laws for the District of Columbia, and another to promote the efficiency of the navy. Hill's bill for the District of Columbia tariff bill, and delivered a carefully prepared speech against the income tax which was included in it by Mr. Allen and Mr. Chandler. Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, also opposed the income tax bill, and declared that it would be a violation of the contract made with the people in 1862, when the income tax was first imposed. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 47 to 32.

MURDERED CARNOT.
THE PRESIDENT OF FRANCE FATALLY STABBED.
A Cowardly Crime Committed by an Italian During a Gala Day at Lyons, France.—Police Have a Hard Struggle to Protect the Assassins.

Paris cables: President Sadi Carnot, of the republic of France, was stabbed to death while driving through the streets of Lyons, the assassin being an Italian anarchist named Santo. M. Carnot was visiting Lyons in connection with the international exhibition. Upon his arrival he was tendered a reception of the prefecture, after spending some time at the exhibition he proceeded to the Palais de Commerce, where a banquet was given in his honor. At 9:30 o'clock in the evening Carnot started for the theater, where a gala performance was to be given because of his presence. Several carriages were in the procession, the first one being occupied by the president and his family. The carriage in which he was seated was lined with enthusiastic crowds of people who were loudly cheering, a man rushed out of the crowd and sprang upon the step of the president's landau under the pretext of presenting a petition.

The assassin, who was still struggling with the police, was finally overpowered and taken to the hospital. He is now in a precarious condition. The police are still searching for other conspirators. The incident has caused a great deal of excitement in Lyons and throughout France.

Several parties of volunteers in the work of rescue descended into the pit as soon as possible. Every possible effort was made to save the imprisoned miners who were still alive and to rescue the bodies of the dead. The galleries were so clogged with wreckage that it was feared the survivors will not be reached until to late.

Erasmus Wiman, the one-time millionaire, philanthropist and capitalist, was sentenced to Sing Sing by Judge Ingraham in the court of general sessions in New York City for five years and six months. His crime was forgery in the second degree. General Tracy arose immediately after court had been opened and made a formal motion for a new trial on three grounds. That the verdict was contrary to the law; that it was clearly against the evidence; and that the judge had misdirected the jury. The judge refused the new trial and asked the prisoner if he has anything to say. Mr. Wiman made no reply and the judge pronounced the sentence as above.

ABOUT CARNOT'S DEATH.
How the News Was Received in England and the United States.

London: All the newspapers of this city contain articles dwelling upon the horrible character of the assassination of President Carnot. A majority of them refer to the assassination of President Lincoln and President Garfield as being only parallel events.

Washington: The death of the assassination of President Carnot became known over the city with remarkable rapidity. The most pronounced sensation was created everywhere, but particularly in official circles was the tragedy most keenly felt and most intelligently discussed. President Cleveland, the vice-president, Secretary Gresham, the French minister and other officials were given the news by the press representatives. Without exception they were deeply affected and expressed their regret in strong terms. To French Ambassador Patenotre the announcement was a great and most unexpected shock, coming as it did from a clear sky at a time when the international and foreign affairs of France were in a peaceful state.

TARRED AND FEATHERED.
The Adjutant-General of Colorado Threat Most Atrociously by Masked Men.

Adj. Gen. Tarsney was kidnapped from the Adams Hotel, at Colorado Springs, a few minutes after midnight by masked men, taken to the suburbs in a hack and there tarred and feathered. Tarsney was called to the telephone and he was talking to two masked men entered and forced him into a cab, which was then driven to the suburbs. In 15 minutes Police Captain Gathright and Officers Harlan and Henry were riding furiously in the direction taken by the kidnappers and their victim. Officer Harlan came up just as the hack was being deserted five miles out. The five masked men pointed their guns at him and compelled him to dismount. Gen. Tarsney was then led through the pasture to a point half a mile from the road and almost a mile from any building. He was compelled to disrobe and covered with a liberal coat of tar and feathers from his neck to his feet.

The next heard of Gen. Tarsney was at Palmer Lake, 25 miles from Colorado Springs, from where he wired Gov. Waite. A special train bearing his wife and daughters from Denver was sent to get the general and the train immediately started back. He was tarred and daubed, but not seriously injured. Indignation meetings were held in Denver, Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek denouncing the outrageous proceeding and a resolution was offered for the capture of the traitors. Gen. Tarsney is a brother of Congressman Tarsney, of Missouri and ex-Congressman Tarsney, of Michigan.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE.
NEW YORK.—E. G. Dun & Co.'s review says: The week has been rich in promise but poor in performance. The market for metals exports of gold would cease, but they have not. It was promised that the end of the coal strike would bring about a cessation of tariff, but partial resumption of work discloses comparative scantiness of demand for products. Operations in the iron and steel industry are advancing, but again receded. It was confidently expected that the settlement of rates on textiles by the senate would improve the condition of the textile industry. But there is scarcely any evidence of such progress. The large sales of cottons being discontinued, are reported to have had a very marked effect on retail sales and to further concessions by the mills. The orders for fall are limited and staples are being ordered in small quantities. The market for live poultry—spring chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese, etc.—is about 10 to 15 percent higher than in the preceding week and jobbers are preparing to take stock.

THAT BLUE BROCADE!

YOU never saw a lovelier piece of goods than I can show you. Just the most delicate blue that is almost a green, all shot with the most delightful waving silver lights. Can't I have it for the dance at the opening of the Cosmopolitan club? "No," returned Aunt Judith. "I've no money to waste on new gowns."

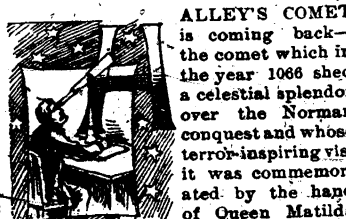

"But surely you do not wish me to look shabby at this very grand affair. Wear that blue gown you got at Christmas—the halcyon one. I'll wear it if you like. I've worn it half a dozen times, and it does look so dreadfully mossy if it isn't fresh." Mrs. Risby rose. She was middle-aged, stout, red-faced. She wore a black alpaca dress, a long, old-fashioned cable of a watch-chain, and a cameo brooch the size of a small sauce tin. "You forget," Letha Maturin reminded her aunt, "that the catch of the season is to present Willis Vitquinie as young, rich, handsome. I think his place—Rosemere—is one of the most beautiful in this part of the country. He has been abroad ever since he graduated. All the girls are crazy to be the conquerors of the heroine. If I could only have a new gown of that blue brocade, I haven't a doubt in the world I could reign at Rosemere, if I chose."

"I know there is some reason back of it," declared Mrs. Risby, "but you are such a reasonable little thing, Tessie, I can trust you." The story of the girl who was working to earn a handsome dress got out in the store. It finally came to the ears of Mrs. Willis Vitquinie. "Miss Maturin! I remember she used to come to our house before I went to college. The old fellow left the children penniless, I understand. The girl promised to be a rare beauty. And he took the first opportunity of walking by the lace counter, with a view of renewing his youthful acquaintance. There was quite a flutter along the side at the unusual visit of the handsome young proprietor of the great establishment. "Miss Maturin?" he questioned, pausing at the lace counter, and looking ravenly for a yellow-haired beauty. "I am Tessie Maturin," replied the little maiden addressed. He lifted his hat. "I missed your sister whom I recollect. She was very fair. My name is Willis Vitquinie." Tessie turned rosy, and let him hold her soft fingers a moment. "Remember you now, though away I was very young when you went away." "May I call?" he questioned eagerly. "My aunt and Letha would be very happy to have you do so," she answered. He did call several times to the satisfaction of Letha. Tessie noticed how impressed he was by her extraordinary charms. "He is the only man I ever saw who was good enough for her," she assured herself, trying to ignore a persistent little ache at her heart. "And when she sees her in the blue brocade—"

BIG COMET IN SIGHT.

NOW SWISHING A TAIL HALF WAY TO THE MOON.

Still 2,600,000,000 Miles Off—Due Here About 1911. But Astronomers All Over the World Are Already Discussing It.

ALLEY'S COMET is coming back—the comet which in the year 1066 shed a celestial splendor over the Norman conquest and whose terror-inspiring visit was commemorated by the hand of Queen Matilda in the Bayeux tapestry; the comet that in 1456, the year of the battle of Belgrade, scared the Turk and Christian alike and was anathematized by a bull from the pope; the comet whose strange sinister form still chilled the marrow of the ignorant and superstitious at its latest return in 1835. It is yet far away, but the eye of science sees it, already within the orbit of Neptune, rushing onward and earthward with constantly increasing velocity as it falls along the steep curve of its orbit. And a call to arms, a call for preparation has just been issued from one of the chief watchtowers of astronomy. Professor Glasenapp announces that the computing bureau established by the Russian astronomical society has undertaken the calculation of the true path of Halley's comet, with a view to predicting the exact date of the next return. He hopes that astronomers acquainted with unpublished observations of the comet will communicate the information to the society. After its perihelion the comet was watched retreating out into space until May, 1836, when it was finally swallowed from sight. It will be in perihelion again in 1911, but with the great telescopes now in existence, and the greater ones that may then have been constructed, it is probable that the comet will be detected coming southward a year or more earlier than that. The fact that the labor of computing the precise time of its return is already about to begin gives assurance that

Royal Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE

A FEED MIXTURE.—My present feeding mixture consists of eight bushels of ground oats, four bushels of ground wheat, 150 pounds of meat scrap, 300 pounds of wheat bran, and 300 pounds of malt sprouts. For 600 hens I take about fifty pounds of this mixture in a water-tight box that sits on the rear end of a buckboard wagon, and pour over it a forty-quart canful of sour milk. The can of milk is set in a box of hot water over night, and in the morning it is hot whey and pot cheese instead of skimmed milk. The hens eat it greedily and seem to be thriving on it. You ought to see them pick out the chunks of hot cheese. At night I give them whole grain, either corn or wheat. I question the propriety of giving any whole grain at all in winter. My hens are very plump and fat, although they lay reasonably well. I think I shall try keeping some of them entirely on the more bulky food. I can not always get the skim milk in sufficient quantities. In that case I use hot water to mix the feed.—Correspondent of Rural New Yorker.

DR. EVERETT. The Learned Gentleman Whose Head For Has Gained Remarks. A singular story. In a public address delivered in Pittsburg a few days ago, Rev. Dr. Sheldrake, of Kentucky, related these singular stories: "There was a member of the Kentucky presbytery, whom I knew very well who frequently went into a sort of walking sleep. While in this condition he would preach most eloquent sermons, but when he came out he could not remember a word that he had said. On one occasion a copy of the French testament was handed to him to conduct family worship at the house of a well-known citizen of Frankfort. Although utterly ignorant of the French language, he read a chapter and then commented thereon at length in English. On another occasion, while in this condition, he remarked to his friends that a certain minister in Nebraska was in trouble, and that he had just written a letter to Kentucky detailing the circumstances. He then proceeded to give the contents of the letter, and his words were taken down by some one present. Two days later the letter arrived from Nebraska, and it was identical, word for word, with the one the minister had dictated while in the walking sleep. The speaker cited these instances to show the life of the soul independent of the body, and argued therefrom the immortality of the former." Natural Consequences. In his younger days Henry Labouchere, when attached to the British embassy at Rome, received instructions to make inquiries about Florence or some distant place. He wrote for expenses, but they were not allowed. However, Mr. Labouchere started. Nothing was heard of him for weeks. Eventually he replied to many dispatches sent out to ask where he was getting on. A letter arrived. "As expenses are not allowed, Mr. Labouchere is obliged to walk. He expects to reach his destination about the end of the year."—Argonaut.
