AROUND THE CAMPFIRE.

LIFE IN THE BAND OF THE 24TH MICHIGAN.

Cheering Up the Weary Marchers. With a lively tune—Heroinism of the Ladies of Gettysburg—General Grant and the Toll-Gate Keeper.

Custer's Choice. Edw. Wood in the western wilds... One Custer stood at bay... Mid August thousands frenzied mad...

Beat Sabreur in another war by Christian methods ruled... French Cavalier, but all unused to tactics savage schooled...

Oh crushed the howling demon tide... Jove's fire was in his eye... True as the raptor in his hand...

The Upsurges, sole standard of Custer's immediate command, went to the general and begged him to let him (Upsurges) show a way to escape...

"God Bless the Band." During the battle of Chancellorsville we were playing one evening near a fine old Virginia residence...

At Frederick City, Md., some of our young officers asked us to go with them and serenade a family of fine-looking ladies...

The colonel often called on the band to play a tune to cheer the boys on a hard march...

"See that band have their knapsacks packed in one of the wagons after this, the boys must have music!"

As the old first corps was the first at the battle of Gettysburg, except the cavalry, Captain Wood came rushing back and gave our colonel the order to get ready for a fight...

A single plant of wheat will often produce 2,000 seeds in one season; a safflower will yield 4,000; a poppy 32,000; a tobacco plant 350,000, a spleenwort 1,000,000.

THE GREAT TEST

came to was a big man shot through both legs. He must have been full weight by the way he bore down...

I never saw anything in the newspapers about the heroism of the ladies of Gettysburg. I saw girls, not over 12 years of age, their clothing covered with blood from helping the wounded...

"I told him he ran like a quarter-horse, and asked where he pitched up. He said he had only just cleared the fence on the other side when a battery officer sang out: 'Halt, there! Where are you going?'"

"I answered: 'You might be able to tell that by the direction I am running.'" Then I have a job for you, said the officer.

"I took this saber and stand guard over a dismounted cannon." "If we were soon called away on some duty, when I just named that old saber in the ground and contained my tramp back into town to eat pie and cake with the ladies."

"I worked three years for the firm of Lowndes & Winthrop. I left them a year ago to be married."

"I must get some one to take my place—soon, now! Never mind that other nurse. I must go to tend Dudley Parkman. Please—please, let me go as soon as you can!"

"I am his wife. I must go to him." "Oh, you don't understand!" she cried. "I am his wife. I must go to him."

"I am his wife. I must go to him." "Oh, you don't understand!" she cried. "I am his wife. I must go to him."

"I am his wife. I must go to him." "Oh, you don't understand!" she cried. "I am his wife. I must go to him."

"I am his wife. I must go to him." "Oh, you don't understand!" she cried. "I am his wife. I must go to him."

THE REAL TEST

NOTHER applicant, eh? queried Mr. Hosmer Deering. He swung around in his swivel chair, and looked at the bit of pasteboard the clerk handed to him.

"I am his wife. I must go to him." "Oh, you don't understand!" she cried. "I am his wife. I must go to him."

"I am his wife. I must go to him." "Oh, you don't understand!" she cried. "I am his wife. I must go to him."

READY FOR SACRIFICE.

A Woman Who Wished to Accompany Her Husband on His Last Journey. "I was once sorely tempted to allow a dust cloth over our knees. Long ago, as I was making my tour of inspection, I camped near the castle of a little chateau in the morning I heard that he was dead. When his father had died, some ten years before, his eighteen wives had been buried. I did not wish this incident to recur; remained in the neighborhood and took the necessary precautions, quotes Temple Bar.

"I am his wife. I must go to him." "Oh, you don't understand!" she cried. "I am his wife. I must go to him."
