FACES ON OUR COINS.

SOME ROMANCES OF THE NATIONAL CURRENCY.

A watchmaker named Rhodes, formerly of Boston, has invented a clock which will run over a year without winding. The secret lies in the construction and adjustment of the escapement. The position of equal lengths above and below its axis and has its ends weighted, by means of which it is regulated. Mr. Rhodes says his idea is so capable of development that an eight-year clock is a possibility.

There is sometimes brought low by other means than a fall. A gentleman who paid a large sum for an officer's room on deck for a crocean voyage was inclined at first to give himself an air of superiority because of the superiority of his lodging. But a terrible storm flooded the deck for days thereafter and his pride was drowned out by a foot of water. He said, "I don't mind paying well to cross the Atlantic, but I don't like to go through it."

The eastern boundary of Alaska, which separates the United States from British territory and is 6000 miles in length, has been mapped out and determined to the satisfaction of both this country and Great Britain. When it is remembered that $60,000,000 worth of fur and salmon and $5,000,000 worth of gold and silver have been shipped since Alaska came into our possession, and consider also that this means in the future it is a good thing to know that a vexed question has been settled. Disputes over boundaries are sometimes raised at very inopportune times.

To move the Baltimore fair to Paris and Baltimore worth $500,000 still the managers of the Baltimore fair of 1893 say they are going to attend the fair. They are going to make the Baltimore show one of the greatest attractions on earth if they have to move over all Paris and London, including the Thames and the famous old London bridge, to it. Those Baltimore folk have been a long time in getting a move on themselves, but they have started now and they are an avalanche. The Effort tower on one of Baltimore's hills and Baltimore tell what Washington had for breakfast.

To those people in middle life whose stomachs have grown so weak that the Journal of Hygiene reads a useful lesson. Instead of advising them to deluge the stomach with all sorts of nostrums recommended to cure indigestion—it urges them—regain their health but overworked organs a rest. Leave off the various nostrums, change an elaborate dish to one that is simple as a little oatmeal gruel or a Graham meal, and take plenty of outdoor exercise for the stomach's sake. Who, if suffering from a weak stomach, would hope to heal it by pouring over it all sorts of decoctions of which some form of alcohol was the prominent ingredient?

The Society for the Advancement of Science which recently met in Brooklyn, has not lived in vain. Two of its members, inspired to do good, by the condition that dripped from the numerous able papers read, determined to investigate the notorious Mapleton ghost that has kept the teeth of the western part of Long Island chattering for, so, these many months. Their pursuit, aided by others, has finally developed a figure of straw, covered with a white sheet. The groans and screams and shrieks supposed to come from this a certain prowler, were found to have come from the carefully concealed ghost workers. Another triumph of the Society for the Advancement of Science.

Two years ago New York was face to face with the most serious cholera that it has ever experienced. The experience of that unhappy period is not to be looked back upon with pride or satisfaction, but some important lessons were learned, and have not been forgotten. The need of vigilance in guarding against the invasion of the dread-inspiring disease is not less now than at any time in the past. The health of the proper care in detention and inspection at ports on the other side of the ocean should be no reason why any cases of cholera should even approach our shores.

Of course, the moral obligation of the milkman would be to deliver to his customers nothing more than the purest milk, with such well as the Montclair, N. J., milkman used not long ago, well-water that had been contaminated with typhoid fever germs, and which resulted in one hundred cases of typhoid fever developing along one mile route in Montclair. But what shall be said of the responsibility for milk adulteration when it is remembered that the result of adulterated impure or pure water is used, thousands of children, compelled to depend upon it as food, die annually from lack of proper nourishment, from their starvation?

The West is beyond the domination of the East. The seat of empire is not in New England, nor in the middle states. It passed from them long ago. Every decade, some is followed by a redistribution of seats in the national houses of representatives, and each successive appointment strengthens the West as compared with the East.

The fact that a manufacturer or merchant is anxious to make known to the public is not to be regarded by most people as evidence that they possess merit.

How the old monarchs do attack together! Here is the British consul, the mourning for the so-called Count de Paris, who, at the time of his death, was further from the throne of France than a sparrow of the sea. He took his "divine right" out of the world with him, and the fading royalty of England weeps.

The emperor of Germany travels eighteen thousand miles a year, and is not even called on to show his pass. He never stands in awe of either conductor or porter.

HE MAJORITY OF people who take the heads of hands, some women, that adorn the different denominations of currency and silver pieces, dollars, half a quarter and dime, take it for granted that the faces are not the reproduction of real life, but are ideals. In a few cases these people are right, but in the great majority they are wrong. Most of these faces are those of handsome men and women, but some are of the ordinary type of beauty that has pleased the designers of the plates from which our silver coins are taken. It is the statement of the type of beauty that is generally chosen for these designs, and the subjects are not always chosen from the higher walks of life.

On bills of high denominations have appeared the faces of favored personages, and in one instance the model was a herculean washerwoman with the most aggressive features of a Medusa.

THE HEAD UPON QUARTERS AND DIMES. The treasury department has just issued the new silver certificates and printing the first installment of the new $1.00 silver certificate and the new $2.00 silver certificate. In the right corner of the hand-some certificate is the vignette of Secretary Jones, and on the left is the face and bust of an unnamed but attractive female.

As soon as the new bill was circulated among the treasury employees a number of the old employes scrutinized the features of the unnamed and one, however, could recall the face at first. The designer, however, was appealed to. He refused to give any information about the model further than to say "she was a girl, and a blood model and not a dead." Further questioning developed the fact that she was still in the line of the living. Envy was her abiding place.

The new bill was passed from hand to hand for some days after this. Curiosity among the treasury employees was at its height, when one of the new certificates happened to come before the eyes of a retired officer, who is at present living in Washington, and who twenty years ago was recognized as one of the great of New York's gay bachelors.

He stated the face for a moment, then said: "Why, that's Josie Mansfield, the woman for whom Ed Stokes, the proprietor of the Hoffman house in New York, had a room in the Grand Central hotel years ago."

Central hotel years ago. Such proved to be the case. A number of photographs of the world-famous courtesan, taken when she reigned as the queen of the New York, were shown to him. Among the number was one which served as the model for the designer. It was the face of Josie Mansfield, with all the facial beauty of the Mansfield was shown to him, and he recognized it as Josie Mansfield. There was nothing theatrical about it.

The happy possession of these $1.00 certificates can turn to it and see Josie Mansfield when Jim Fisk played the part of the infatuated aristocrat. The face of Josie Mansfield, who had stolen Fisk's Gibraltar.

THE YOUNGEST MONEY KING in the world, George Jay Gould, will never suffer from dyspepsia, as his father did. He is a child, and there is no legitimate sport in which he is not interested. Leaving out clay pigeon shooting, his great hobby, he loves yachting more than anything. He likes a good long hunt on horseback and fishes with an expert hand. George Gould, like his father, has no manner of an aristocrat. At one time, when the physician had ordered Jay Gould to walk three or four miles a day, it was a familiar sight to see George Gould and his father jumping up and down every step, with little hoppy-skip steps. His left foot turned in a little, trying to keep up with the right. The right foot of the pocket of George's coat bulged out, and he did not seem to care. He was not incoherently unwell. When wearing a train in the Grand Central station, he was seen to be very stout. He has been the custom of George Gould to talk with the trainmen to see how they get on. He has never lost his interest in the new invention of the motor car, and he has never left out of his mind the possibility of your underwear some of the paleo-car, and they may be lighted. He carries with him a very good book. There is no air of the aristocrat about him, and train hounds have been known to mistake him for a train hound. Heard that this swarthy checked and black-eyed young man who has shown so much ingenuity in the construction of a clock, is the son of a duke.

PLAIN DR. ANDREWS, President of Brown University is not fond of Fine Dress.

Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews, president of Brown University, a delegate to the Bismarck monetary conference and a well known writer on social, economic and religious subjects, is rather carelessly about his personal appearance. He was one of the delegates to the recent Baptist convention at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., and the Baptist convention in New York state, the celebrated Dr. Andrews discovered the figure of a man stored away on the Dr. Andrews rear platform, hat pulled down over his eyes, and every other part of his body except the neck, dust and dying pebbles. So the operator wired ahead to the next station as follows: "Look out for tramp on No. 26 rear platform. Jones." The operator at the next station promptly pulled up the train and the conductor went to the rear to investigate. There was the man—a big broad-shouldered fellow, his hat pulled down over his eyes, and his body covered with dirt and generally rough and tough looking that the conductor didn't believe after a tackle. So he sent for the brakeman. What followed is indicated by the dispatch which Operator Jones at the back station received a few minutes after he had his brother operator. Here it is: "Tramp all right. Going to the Baptist convention with a ticket. Takes his water straight and is president of Brown university."

SETH LOW, The scholarly President of Columbia College.

One of the most interesting men in New York is Seth Low. The president of Columbia college is no ordinary man. Young, well bred, well educated, enormously wealthy, he is as busy as any man in the great city these days, helping those who may need help. He works as hard as any professor in his college. He works for the good of the city in public affairs, no matter how the political "bosses" may like it. He has written for the newspapers and magazines. He is a sturdy pillar in Dr. Baileysford's big church, and there, every Sunday morning, he leads the largest Bible class for young men held in any of the city churches. He is a member of many clubs, and often speaks to gatherings of young men who stand in need of just such friendly advice and help. He is a prominent member of all gatherings of literary men, and in fact, he is the best of all. He is a man of many talents, and he is a man of many talents.

WOMEN DIPLOMATS. WIVES AND DAUGHTERS OF OUR AMBASSADORS.

Mrs. Bayard is a favorite at Windsor Castle and often lodges with the Queen—Miss Ethel Washburn at the Austrian Capital.

It is very pleasant to know that the wives and daughters of our American ministers abroad, are doing so well for their country. They have met with an annual degree of favor in their respective foreign courts. None have suffered at all by being placed within the fierce light that beats upon royalty; and nearly all have met with marked distinction shown in various court ways.

Mrs. Bayard has been one of the most favored of all the ladies abroad. She has several times been received formally by Queen Victoria; and on occasions of festivity at Windsor she has been about the royal table. She is the fairest of the fairest in a state of fair women.

Although very young, Miss Baker, daughter of the Minister to Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Salvador, is a young woman who, if she were in a fashionable court, would be an object of admiration to all eyes. She is an object of admiration to all eyes.

It has often been predicted that the American ladies, selected to the fatteries and becoming used to the honours of foreign courts, would be spoiled for life afterward in their own homes. But such has never proved to be the case. In every instance after a few years' experience abroad, the wife of a diplomat, and a friend of the American women, has come back to her native shores with all the more acceptability to the common people, and the more respect for her social position.

Thirty-six projects for what is called the Old or main attraction, of the Paris exhibition for 1900 have been sent in to the special sub-committee of the Exposition Universelle. The projects are of various kinds, and some of them are very interesting.
