A GREAT PURCHASE OF DRY GOODS.

Large Importing Merchandise Houses on account of the short time the McKinley Tariff Bill remains in operation are forced to make great sacrifices in Dress Goods. An immense purchase of Dress Goods, Silk and Woolen Goods by a Syndicate of which The Store is a member.

Another of those Fortunate Trade Happenings which will Shape The Store's Price Policy of the Fall of 1894.

Tomorrow we will open the fall season with the greatest stroke of merchandising we have ever attempted. An event that will add a new epoch to the history of our firm, and that will totally eclipse any and all sales we ever had. This is a broad statement, but is literally true, as a personal investigation will speedily convince you.

When the Wilson Tariff Bill passed both houses of Congress and lay in the President's hands for his approval or veto, the merchants of the entire country flocked to New York to reap the first benefits of its passage. As a consequence, millions of goods were sold during the first days it was in effect, and the merchants returned home laden with their fall purchases.

Now, as a matter of fact, this tariff bill as regards dress goods does not go into effect until January 1st, 1895, and did not effect the price of imported dress goods while the great rush for goods continued, consequently early purchasers have bought their goods at practically the old price. When the rush was over and merchants had deserted New York a radical change took place. Great stocks of Dress Goods and Woolens were left on importer's hands entirely neglected.

It was at this time our buyer went east as prearranged with five of the largest buyers of Michigan, Indiana and Ohio, forming a syndicate for the purchase of any quantity of Dry Goods that could be bought at a price for spot cash, and never was the condition of the market so favorable for buying. Three or four large importers were found with enormous stocks of Dress Goods on their hands with the inevitable staring price in the face. To keep them until the new tariff bill went into effect was to sell them at the tariff price, besides losing the use of the money tied up in them which they could not afford to do. Under these circumstances an offer was accepted from the syndicate for the entire importation of these concerns, which gives them the latest, the most desirable, the most exclusive variety of high class novelties as well as plain Dress Goods ever purchased at one time at prices 20 to 50 per cent. less than early purchasers were obliged to pay.

As The Store's portion of this great purchase,

$25,000 Worth of Plain and Fancy Dress Goods, Silks and Woolens.
