STATE NEWS NOTES.

A CHAPTER OF THE DOINGS OF MICHIGANDERS.

Club Women Form a State Federation.—Drinkers' Club Displace Saloons at Saginaw.—Murder Rampant in the State.—Better Crop Reports.

State Federation of Women's Clubs. A convention for forming a state federation of women's clubs was held at Lansing with about 50 clubs represented by many of the prominent women of the state. There was lots of talk and outside that the only business was the adoption of a constitution and the election of officers. The latter are as follows: President, Miss Clara Avery, Detroit; vice-president, Mrs. H. J. Jones, East Lansing; secretary, Mrs. Kate E. Ward, Lansing; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lorraine Immen, Grand Rapids; treasurer, Mrs. Martha A. Root, Bay City; directors, Mrs. L. H. Stone—Kalamazoo; Mrs. D. C. Brooks, Grand Rapids; Mrs. James O'Donnell, Jackson, and Mrs. Anna A. Palmer, Saginaw. The delegates were tendered a reception at the residence of Mrs. O. M. Barnes.

The organization was named "The Michigan Federation of Women's Clubs." The annual meetings will be held the first Wednesday of November of each year and Grand Rapids will entertain the first. Forty-nine clubs were made charter members.

Town of Decatur Badly Burned. For the third time in its history Decatur has been visited by a disastrous conflagration. Shortly before 6 o'clock a. m. a fire was discovered in the Luncheon house, and before a stream could be turned on from the hand engine, which represents Decatur's fire department, the flames had gained such headway that it seemed as if the whole business district was in danger of destruction. From the corner on which the Luncheon house stands the flames spread on both streets, and before the fire was under control, buildings were burned. Prompt assistance was rendered by the Dowagiac fire department with a steamer, but the mains for the new water works have not yet been laid and no water supply was at hand. The burned district occupies the principal corner in the village. Total loss about $20,000; insurance, $10,000.

A Bloody Murder at Ludington. S. D. Guentzel, aged 22, a Ludington paper hanger, disappeared March 2, and it was thought that he had jumped overboard at lake, as he had been seen in the water. He was found in the Epworth League assembly grounds when he discovered the remains had concealed in a barrel. His throat had been cut from ear to ear. There was little blood near the barrel, and no traces of the knife could be found. There were, however, the prints of two different sizes of shoes in the immediate vicinity, and the conclusion was reached that two people had been in the place. In Guentzel's pockets were found six cents and a watch. No satisfactory motive for the crime has yet been found. It was not a case of robbery and Guentzel is not known as having had enemies.

The Three-year-old daughter of Edgar Winning was terribly burned at Marquette by her clothes catching on fire from a lamp. Her hands and feet were burned in attempting to get out of the flames. The child cannot recover.

Frank Lucia, self-defense, Valdyne having drawn a knife in a drunken row, Lucia escaped and has not yet been arrested. He is a desperate character. Valdyne is shot through the abdomen and may die.

It is reported that a beer garden and pavilion will be established a mile north of Grand Ledge, just over in Clinton county. A movement is about being started to urge the adoption of this measure by the Michigan legislature.

The Saginaw authorities tried to force D. W. McDevitt to pay $10 a day for the privilege of selling books at auction. He was fined for refusal to pay, and the circuit judge has just decided that the tax is unreasonable and against public policy.

The Twenty-seventh Michigan infantry held a reunion at Laingsburg and elected the following officers: President John S. Blackmer, North Adams; vice president, Oscar Hancock, Hillsdale; secretary and treasurer, F. J. Buck, of Adrian.

John G. Waterman was arrested at Jackson on the charge of embezzlement. It is alleged that he purchased large orders of goods of the Head-Cox of Boston, and the Euxine Manufacturing Co. of Buffalo, placed them in a store at Bryan, O. then sold out for what he could get and left.

The water in the mill race at Niles was let out and the body of George Timony, the Bertrand mine carrier who had been mysteriously missing, was found. There was suspicious marks on the face and a cut on the back of his head. No money was found on his person. It seems to be a clear case of robbery and murder.

At Five Lake fire destroyed the City hotel, a three-story building, five dwellings, a shoe store, a grocery, a postoffice, a barber shop, a jewelry store and the Five Lake Monitor office; also a dwelling across the street, a large hardware and agricultural implement establishment, and three warehouses. The rest of the town was saved with difficulty. The total loss is $20,000.

Mail Carrier Chambers and five passengers had a thrilling experience a short distance out from Mackinac island while crossing the straits of the ice. Without warning, horse and rig went through in which the passengers succeeded in reaching firm ice, although Mrs. Ferguson was about to sink for the third time, and County Clerk Hoban was seriously cut about the head. The horse was drowned, but the sleigh and mail were recovered.

James Hattie, for years chief of the Detroit fire department, died of cancer of the stomach. He was at the head of the Detroit fire department for 45 years. He became chief in 1860, and with the exception of the year 1863 was retained in the position continuously. In point of consecutive service he was the oldest fire department chief in the United States. In February he was placed on the retired list on half pay and James B. Elliott made chief.

Stout City, Ia., suffered a loss of $400,000 by fire. The Western Transfer Co., agricultural implements, and the Linsed oil mill being the chief losers.

The American heiress is to be pitied. She pays an extravagant price for a foreign count or duke, and realizes when too late that she has been outrageously swindled.

The reform police commissioner in New York has ordered officers not to sit over their ties when they are practicing putting their trousers on down their heads in anticipation of the next move.

A Connecticut firm has cut down its rate of wages in order that the members of the firm may pay their income tax. This firm evidently thinks the easiest way to pay its income tax is to make somebody else pay it.

The tendency of the new woman with millions to regard the United States as a good place to emigrate from has received a check in the Vanderbilt divorce case. The court ordered that the children be educated in this country.

At least 75 per cent of the book manuscripts submitted to publishers are never printed, and if the number that ought not to have been printed is counted in it will be seen that literature is chiefly a voiceless waste of paper and ink.

In two recent murder trials in New York the bills for extras were respectively $25,573 and $21,439. Paranoia and experts come high, but the complexities of justice in connection with homicidal incidents have made them a modern necessity.

An eminent scientist, who unites pathology with ethics, asserts that wicked and vicious impulses create injurious chemical products in the body which when subjected to certain acids, become of a bright pink tint. Hence the blush of shame. There's nothing like science for explanations.

The Pittsburg coal men say they are not afraid of the long-distance transmission of electricity generated by water-power, as they can send a ton of coal by water a thousand miles at a cost of twenty-five cents. But this is an age of industrial wonders, and if the world can get power economically by wire the simplicity of the operation will be apt to win.

The king of Sweden wishes to be considered a peacemaker. The political unrest in Norway is becoming serious, and to end the trouble the king offered to abdicate and have his son Oscar crowned king in the latter country. But the Swedish monarch is not likely to find the Norwegians any more pliable than Charles XII. did. From the temper which they have recently shown they would rather have a president of their own choosing than a king who had been offered to them.

Since the adoption of the trolley car fender in Baltimore there has not been a serious accident. Whenever the newspapers of that city report a person as being struck by a car they add that he or she was picked up by the fender and escaped with slight injury. During the first year the trolley was used in Baltimore thirty persons were killed by the cars. And yet we have been told that fenders are of no use.

Photography is now more powerful than the eye in telescopic work, and the phenomena of eclipses are increasing in importance. The possible discovery of a satellite to our moon has been agitated of late, and it would be no more surprising than to find that the familiar atmosphere has an important element that escaped observation until a few months ago. The coming era of larger lenses and improved photography will probably render the moon an object of remarkable interest.

New York State is agitating and halting over the question of setting its convicts to work on the highways. One of the strong arguments urged in behalf of this plan is that convict labor will not come in competition with skilled labor, as it now does when employed within prison walls in shops. The opponents of the road-making proposition in the New York Times claims that the necessity for substituting the convicts outside of guard houses to prevent escapes would make the cost of the highways quite as much as if the work were done by free labor.

Profit Both Ways. The drummer stepped in a store in a western town, where the proprietor had a stock of guns and musical instruments.

"Isn't this a rather queer combination?" he asked.

"There's money in it to me," replied the proprietor.

"I don't see how."

"That's because you ain't up in our ways."

"Well put me up."

"It's this way," explained the proprietor. "I sell a man a cornet or banjo or fiddle or something like that, and by the time he has practiced a week his neighbor comes in and buys a shotgun or revolver or something like that, and I get a profit on 'em and comin' see?"

"Completely squelched. The pompous schoolmaster sometimes finds himself in a position which is not entirely to his taste. A great English wit, Mark Lemon, once wrote a book in which he told a chubby-faced little urchin who passed his conical instructor upon the street without bowing. The schoolmaster stopped and frowned.

"What has become of your manners, sir?" he roared at the little boy.

"Better fed than taught," replied the boy.

"That's because you teaches me, but I feeds myself, sir."—Harpers' Young People.

The once fashionable and still valuable cashmere shawls of our grandmothers' time are being sacrificed to the scissors at last and made into sleeves, bodices and bias folds, appearing with black or with dull red or beige silk for very rich afternoons gowns for elderly women.

HE RANKED AMONG THE CENTURY'S GREAT MEN.

Stadious and Persevering He Forged Out His Work in a Manner That Showed the Spirit of Which He Was Made—A Busy Life.

THE STORY OF THE life of Isaac Pusey Gray, who died in Mexico, the other day, is more interesting than that of many Americans who have gained the title of statesmen or soldier. Mr. Gray was born in Chester county, Pennsylvania, of Quaker parents in moderate circumstances, in 1833.

When a lad of 8 years his father with his family moved to Urbana. Young Gray remained there until his marriage, when, in 1855, he located permanently at Union City, Ind., not many miles distant. He resided there until after the close of his term as governor, in 1889, when he fixed his domicile in Indianapolis. His early education was very much that of the average farmer boy of the time and neighborhood, having been in the main obtained in the public schools. He was studious and acquisitive, however, and on reaching his minority was recognized as one of the best informed of the young men of his vicinity. He had always been an industrious man, and throughout his very active and exacting public life had continued to be a diligent investigator of the history of his state and country and a close observer of their progress and condition. He was a lawyer by profession. He was recognized by virtue of his long contact with public affairs as a high authority on matters involving legislative, parliamentary or constitutional law.

On the outbreak of the war he declared warmly for the union cause, and in 1862 was enrolled as one of its defenders in the field. He served with credit as colonel of the Fourth Indiana cavalry until compelled by ill health to retire. "Somewhat later he recruited the One Hundred and Forty-seventh Infantry. His formal entrance into the political arena was made in 1866, when he was 32 years of age. Governor W. T. Linn, one of Indiana's most able men, and a republican leader of national fame, had long been the congressional representative of the radical stronghold known as the "old burnt district." He was seeking re-election, and it was generally assumed that his hold on his constituency was permanently assured. But the war was over and new ideas were working. Mr. Linn was opposed. The elements hostile to him looked about them for a new candidate, and selected Col. Gray. The latter had for some time before ceased to be in accord with the republican party because of his disapproval of its national policy. He accepted the nomination tendered, and made a campaign so spirited as to be yet well remembered. It was in this struggle that he first displayed his remarkable organizing power and his force as a debater, the overwhelming majority to which his opponent had so long been accustomed having been reduced to about 300.

Two years later Col. Gray was sent to the state senate, serving there for four years, with signal ability, and ranking from the outset as a leader of that body. In 1870 he was nominated for lieutenant governor. He was confirmed to the position on the ground that he was not in harmony with the existing administration. In 1873 his name was presented to the democratic state convention for nomination as a congressman at large, but was withdrawn by him. In 1874 he was presented for nomination as attorney-general, but again withdrew his name. In 1875, the year of the great Tilden and Hendricks campaign, and one of the most memorable in the history of the state, he was nominated by acclamation for lieutenant-governor on the ticket headed by "Blue Jeans" Williams. Ex-officio he served as president of the senate. On the death, pending his term, of Gov. Williams he became acting-governor. In 1880, in a very large convention, he was beaten in his candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination by but four votes, but so impressed was that body that he was instantly, and without a roll call, nominated for lieutenant-governor. However, within the year of the ill-starred Hancock campaign, and the democracy everywhere lost the day. Gov. Gray, on this occasion, led the party's nominees for governor by several hundred votes.

In 1884 his fast-growing popularity was notably manifested by his nomination for governor on the first ballot, although confronted by such competitors as David Turpin, Indiana's present United States senator, and Gen. Mahlon D. Manson, two of the state democracy's oldest and most esteemed leaders. In this election Gov. Gray's plurality was 7,392, while that of the presidential candidates—one of them the lamented Hendricks—was 6,512, a marked divergence to the credit of his popularity, when it is observed that the parties were so evenly matched in the struggle, and that the total vote was almost 600,000.

In 1892 Mr. Gray was a prominent candidate for the presidency and his name was frequently mentioned before the convention in Chicago that year. He had the support of the Indiana delegation and it was thought by many that he was the one man who could defeat his opponent, Benjamin Harrison. A strange fate, however, was made by Mr. Gray's friends, but it was of no avail and Mr. Cleveland secured the nomination. After the election of President Cleveland Mr. Gray was tendered the appointment of minister to Mexico, an office which he accepted and filled with distinction and honor. He had been home on a visit for some little time and was on his way back to the City of Mexico when his serious illness occurred. Mr. Gray lacked two inches of being six feet high. He was well proportioned and stood erect, with a semi-military carriage, and weighed about 180 pounds. His hair was black and slightly inclined to curl, but was tinged with gray. He had a prominent forehead, with a full, frank, open, and plump face, strongly indicative of a high order of intelligence and light blue eyes beaming with good nature. His face was unadorned except with small chin whiskers. He was suave and courteous in his address, of a kind and benevolent disposition, always pleasant and cordial even with strangers, and extremely accessible among his friends and acquaintances. He enjoyed their society, and perhaps one of the elements of his great popularity and steadfast hold upon people was his freedom from any color, aristocratic reserve, and yet no one had a keener sense of the demands of truth dignity. He was a person of great decision of character and pronounced firmness, yet always respectful and generous toward those who differed with him. The minister's family consisted of

The Triple Decker Ironclad May Be a Weapon of Future Warfare—A Locomotive Alarm—A Popular Game Explained—Notes of Industry.

A WELL-KNOWN English expert on naval matters, Mr. Laird Clowes, urges the building of three-decker ironclads. The old wooden three-decker was one of the most magnificent ships afloat. The new one would be the most tremendous. It is pointed out that the three-decker was the highest form of fighting ship in the many periods of naval history. The triple-decker, the most complicated fighting machine of classical times, had three banks of towers. When guns were introduced on ships a one-decker ship was at first necessary, but in course of time the line-of-battle ship with her three tiers of guns was evolved. Then came steam and one deck again.

An Italian ironclad, the Sargenna, launched recently, is almost a three-decker, but Mr. Clowes wants a more complete one for the British navy. He proposes a ship to carry 101 guns. These are the other general details of his plan: "Speed, twenty-three knots; tonnage, 12,000; guns, sixteen six-inch quick-firing, twenty 4.7-inch quick-firing, twenty-two-pounders quick-firing, twenty six and three-pounder quick-firing, twenty-five improved Maxim guns."

The ship would be completely covered with six inches of steel armor, and Mr. Clowes says "No ship in existence could stand up against her and from her no ship in existence could escape."

A Locomotive Alarm. The accompanying cut explains the pneumatic safety arrangement designed for gas crossings. It is arranged so that either the flow or trend of the locomotive wheel will depress a piston in a cylinder as the engine passes by.

PNEUMATIC SAFETY ALARM.

Irrespective of its being empty or loaded or running fast or slow. To the cylinder there is attached a small tube running to the watch box, wherein there is located either a pneumatic bell or a semaphore, and it is possible that both may be used, that two of the five senses—sight and hearing—may be depended upon for notice to the watchman of approaching danger.—The Car.

DRUMMING UP DIVORCE CASES.

Dr. D. M. Lawyer Issues a Circular. Telling How Easy It Is. The South Dakota divorce colony must be decreasing or else the lawyers are not content with their business, because within a few days reputable lawyers in New York have received circulars from a Sioux Falls legal light, the object of which is to promote the divorce business. The circular throws a good deal of light upon this South Dakota divorce business which will be something of a revelation.

"The statutes of Dakota are as liberal as any other state in the Union, requiring but six months' residence in the state before commencing a divorce. The Sioux Falls lawyer, in his circular, says 'This, with other causes, is the reason why so many come here to seek freedom by procuring an absolute divorce.'"

"It is set forth that divorces may be granted for any one of five causes: Extreme cruelty, wilful desertion, wilful neglect and habitual intemperance, besides the one recognized in New York state. When the defendant is a non-resident, and there are mighty few of the defendants who are not non-residents) the service can be by publication or by personal service. After such publication the defendant has thirty days in which to answer or demur. If he or she does not appear at the end of that time divorce is granted upon the testimony which he or she testifies. This testimony can be taken by deposition of the witness who lives in another state, but the plaintiff must be present in person and testify. These sections are quoted.

"Extreme cruelty is the infliction of grievous bodily injury or grievous mental suffering upon the other by one party to the marriage. Wilful desertion is the voluntary separation of one of the parties from the other, with intent to desert. When one party is induced by the stratagem or fraud of the other party to leave the family dwelling place or to be absent, and during such absence the offending party deserts, the desertion is not complete. It is desertion by the party committing the stratagem or fraud and not by the other.

"Wilful neglect is the neglect of the husband to provide for his wife the common necessities of life, he having ability to do so, or if the failure to do so by reason of idleness, profligacy or dissipation.

"Habitual intemperance is that degree of intemperance from the use of intoxicating drinks which disqualifies the person a great portion of the time from properly attending to business, which would reasonably inflict a course of great mental anguish upon the innocent party. Wilful desertion, wilful neglect or habitual intemperance must continue for one year. Before either is a ground for divorce.

At the end of the circular the South Dakota lawyer says he receives many letters asking for prices for procuring a divorce. He says it is absolutely impossible to give price until a full and fair statement of the case is given him and he can judge of the work it will require to carry the case through the courts, the prospect of litigation making a great difference.

A Greater Pittsburg.

Pittsburgers are working hard for a "Greater Pittsburg." It is proposed to take in Allentown, Ohio, on the west side of the river, and enough of the city to make Pittsburg the fourth city in the Union in point of size. They also want a ship canal to connect the city with the big lakes, and expect to realize both projects.

Vote early. Election next Monday. Vote for the best men. Be careful how you vote. School again next Monday. The roads are very good now. Pickers have begun to "run." The snow banks are about gone. Vote against the increase of salaries. The children seem to enjoy the vacation. A fine line of Easter cards and school cards just received at the ENTERPRISE office. New spring goods are arriving for our merchants. Our merchants are getting out their new awnings. The boys have begun fishing off the railroad bridge. As the roads improve, bicyclers make their appearance. Quite a number of horses about town have been clipped. There will be a large amount of wire fence built this spring. A catalogue of Nisley's poultry yard at Saline has been received. A flock of wild geese flew over the village about 9 o'clock Saturday night. If you are entitled to vote this spring and have not registered, do so on Saturday. The dancing party last Friday evening was a pleasant affair though not very largely attended. J. Roller & Co.'s store is being made bright and clean by the application of paint and paper. There is great need of more dwelling houses in this village. A few good cottages would rent well. If you wish to run a livery in this town you must either be a sprinter, a pugilist or forever hold your peace. George Niele intends to move from the house he has so long occupied, as Jacob Reichert wishes to occupy it. Last week was a charmer and the birds were singing gaily. The weather has been more variable this week. Miss Pfister, the fashionable milliner has a change of advertisement this week. Her spring opening occurs April 12 and 13. The center of the upper pond is open and the ice is very rotten. A few days more of this weather and the pond will be free of ice. We had a nice shower of rain on Saturday night and our citizens whose oysters were empty hustled out their tubs, etc., to catch what water they could. There was a small fire at John Steg Miller's house on Monday morning. The gasoline stove leaked and when a match was applied a big blaze occurred. The stove was destroyed and the kitchen was scorched and smoked, making in all a loss of $20, which was fully insured. The fire department was not called out. Several years ago a school teacher in one of our country districts asked the pupils, "What is the highest office in the gift of the American people?" All were silent for a time then up raised a hand and one of the boys piped up "Schoolmaster." I know, highway commissioner." The boy's father held the office. From the scramble made for the office last Saturday the ENTERPRISE would judge that men as well as boys were of the same mind. The republicans held their caucus last Saturday afternoon and there was a good turnout, which showed the interest and determination of the members of the party to get a foothold in Manchester if possible. They chose a good lot of men to make up the ticket, as will be seen by the following: Supervisor, William Bartless; Clerk, Bert W. Amden; Treasurer, Edwin E. Root; Justice, John H. Kingsley; H'y Com., George M. Sutton; H'd of Review, George Heimerdinger; School Inspector, Fred Hall; Constables, Adam Schaible, Porter Brower, William Decker, Edwin S. Blythe. The democrats showed their interest in township offices by attending the caucus on Saturday last and assisting in putting a good ticket in nomination. Supervisor W. L. Watkins was their unanimous choice for re-election as was also W. J. Holmes for treasurer. The great strife was on highway commissioner, for which office there were numerous candidates and it was necessary to take a number of ballots before a selection could be made. Following is the ticket: Supervisor, Willis L. Watkins; Clerk, Myron H. Silkworth; Treasurer, William J. Holmes; Justice, Timothy W. Hunt; H'y Com., Bert A. Logan; Board of Review, Thomas Holmes; School Inspector, Herbert G. Conklin; Constables, William J. Holmes, Erasmus Logan, James Egan, James Scully.

Roll of Honor.

Blosser visited Grass Lake chapter of royal arch masons, on Friday afternoon last and witnessed the conferring of the royal arch degree which was most excellently done. In the evening the Manchesterites conferred the degree upon three neophytes from Chelsea. There was a large turnout, many coming from Jackson, Chelsea and other places and the Grass Lake fraters fully sustained their reputation as entertainers. A banquet was served at 10 p. m., which was much appreciated. Short speeches were made and some singers from Jackson sang sweet songs. The occasion was most joyous and the "link that binds" was welded stronger than ever. The remains of Mrs. Emily Root, relict of Dr. B. F. Root, an old and prominent practitioner of this village, were brought here from Detroit last Saturday for interment. Her brother, Emma Root, of Walkers, N. Y., and sister, Mrs. Isaac L. Clarkson of Detroit, accompanied the remains and returned home the same afternoon. Eta Hall, Mattie Carpenter, Merie Yokom, Nettie Brooks, Meta Schlegel, Tema Mann, Florence Kellam and Sarah Berke went to Ann Arbor yesterday to attend the teachers' examination.

COREY.—In this village on Friday, March 23, 1895, of complication of diseases, Mrs. J. D. Corey, aged 76 years. Betsy A. Gage was born in Onondaga county, N. Y., was the oldest of 14 children, seven brothers and one sister of whom are still living. At an early age she united with the baptist church and has since been a consistent and active member. On April 14, 1844 she was married to J. D. Corey of Sharon, at Syracuse, N. Y., by Judge Pratt and came here with her husband the same year. Mr. Corey had been a resident of Michigan some 11 years and owned a farm in Sharon. She had four children, two of whom—Mrs. Orlando Torrey and Jay D. Corey, are still living and residents of this village. Mrs. Corey was a woman of whom it could truthfully be said, "None knew her but to love her." She has been in poor health for upwards of four years, during which time her devoted husband and family as well as a large circle of relatives and friends did all they could to comfort her. The funeral was held at the residence on Ann Arbor street on Monday afternoon, Rev. Pfister, assisted by Rev. Yokom, officiating. Six of her brothers, Edward, Ass, James, George, Anson and Danforth Gage officiated as pall bearers.

Walter C. Mack left for New York last week to purchase goods for The Store in Ann Arbor and here. He was joined there by the same business men who with him composed a syndicate last fall and whose buying is most successful. The advantage of syndicate buying lies in the great quantities the combination of five or six large houses are able to handle which enables them to buy directly from the manufacturers, foreign as well as at home, saving the jobbers and importers charges. Mr. Mack intends to purchase a line of Hats and Caps and add largely to his Clothing Stock before he returns. Commercial. Home Markets.
