Don't forget that a good ad, advertising a good article, should be run in a good paper.

The advertisement that can not be understood at the first reading is seldom read. Clearness should always be conspicuous.

The newspapers and periodicals of Maine have a larger average issue than those of any other state, not excepting Massachusetts or New York.

HER MOTHER'S RIGHT.

I KNEW when Mrs. Lawrence entered my room the morning she had something disagreeable to tell me. Disagreeable to me, I mean, for I could play my own game, but she was written upon her face, "I told you so."

Her apparent errand was to consult me about a new dress. Now, I knew she had no intention about buying a new dress, and I further knew if she did I would not have the honor of making it. Perhaps it was not just right to take her at her word and talk so steadily about fabrics and styles when her impatience to discuss other topics was so plainly changed. Several times she attempted to change the subject; once going so far as to say, "You know, you haven't heard the news, Miss Deane?"

I turned another leaf of the Delineator as I replied, "Perhaps not, but I want you to look at this princess with your own eyes, no longer, and setting the thing, would you like that?"

So I raised my pen until my visitor backed in my wicker chair and said: "Did you know Essie Rolfe was married?"

She had her revenge then, for I was astonished and plainly showed it. Essie Rolfe's marriage was a surprise to me.

It had been a year ago she used to lie on my heart, and she used to play with me, my white kitten. I could hardly see her now with the fire light dancing over her dimpled face and touching the sunny head with gleams of brightness.

"I thought I'd surprise you," Mrs. Lawrence went on in a complacent tone. "It happened yesterday, and most folks haven't heard of it. She married Guy Raymond, old Tom Raymond's youngest son."

"Who is the young Raymond who drives the big black horses?" I said.

"That's the one," she said. "He's got money, or his father's. He's got the same, but he drinks which is some day he gambles. Any way, we all know them Raymonds' are a rough set."

Rolfe's home was a few miles from our village, and last year kind Mrs. Morton, my neighbor, had taken the young girl to her home, that she might attend her excellent school. I grew very fond of the winsome girl. She was bright, ambitious, and desirous of being herself as a teacher. I knew there was a determination that might easily become stubbornness, beneath her sweet, gracious smile.

Her mother was a coarse, tyrannical woman, who thought Essie's aspirations all nonsense, and her father, whose life was utterly broken, never interfered in the household arrangements.

In the middle of the spring term, Essie's mother had compelled her daughter to leave school, as she needed help at home. There was a mill near the Rolfe farm, and it was an opportunity to board half a dozen men employed there, and she was the cause of Essie's going home.

Mrs. Morton urged upon Mrs. Rolfe the danger of exposing her daughter to the influence of such characters, but the mother declared, "She will be kept too busy to have any time to let her know she's better than the rest of the family."

So Essie went, openly rebellious, but obliged to submit.

"It don't endure it long, Miss Hope"

History repeats itself, even in those instances where it is most notably stranger than fiction. The story of Rosette's poems, buried with her wife and exhumed that they might be published, is the story, in almost every detail, of the memoirs of Colonel Planat de la Faye, the orderly officer to Napoleon I.

These were edited some years ago by a widow. Three copies only were printed, and one was placed in her husband's coffin, a special order for the exhumation of the body having been obtained for the purpose. Directions were left by the widow for the publication of the work after her death, and reference was made to the two printed copies. The printer, however, could not be found. Finally the editors determined to obtain the third copy of the book, which had been placed in the coffin. Accordingly they obtained permission to exhume once more the body of the poetess. The copy so obtained was the one which is now being printed.—Fall Mail Gazette.

Marriage a Failure Because It's Slow.—On Wednesday evening Sol Miller was killed by Henry Solden. Solden had persuaded Miller's wife to elope with him to Upper Sandusky. Miller followed them. He called the arrest of both.

Miller paid his wife's fine each a promise that she would return to him. She winked at the mayor and said: "Oh, married life is too slow for me." Wednesday night Solden met Miller on the public square at La Rue and after a few words Miller shot Solden.

A LIVING SHADOW.

REMARKABLE TRANSFORMATION OF A NORTH CAROLINA MAN.

Strange, but True, Story from the Lumber Regions of a Southern State.

(From the Greenville, N. C. Reflector.)—The following interview with a former reporter by Mr. G. A. Baker, the overseer at the farm of Col. Isaac A. Baker, Greenville, N. C. It will interest any one who has heard of typhoid fever. Mr. Baker said in part: "I was living in Beaufort county, and on the 24 day of October, 1884, I was stricken down with typhoid fever. I had the best physicians to attend me and on the 15th day of January, 1884, I was allowed to get up. I was emaciated, weak and thin, and I could only drag along for a short distance and would be compelled to sit down and rest. This continued for some time and I began to give up hope of ever getting well. I lost my position in Beaufort county and having secured one in Pitt county, I went to a store in that county, and I could not do the work any more. I was disappointed and I moved out to Col. Sugar's about five months ago and commenced taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I took three days for about the first week, and then my weakness began to disappear and I hope spring up with a blossoming of new life. At the expiration of three months I was cured and could take my old job in the woods and do as good a day's work as any man. I was troubled with dyspepsia and that has disappeared. It is also a splendid tonic for weak people. I say, Mr. Editor, God bless Dr. Williams. Tell everybody that asks you about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People that if they will come to me I can certainly give them a box of pills with me and when ever I feel bad I take them."

JEALOUSY IS A DISEASE.

A French Physician Ascribes an Underfed Brain as Its Cause.

If we are to believe the recent assertion of Dr. Maurice de Fleury, a French physician of some experience, jealousy is a disease, dependent upon physical conditions, and amenable to physical methods of treatment.

Dr. de Fleury assures us that the disease is caused by a brain that is insufficiently nourished—he is in the early stages of that common form of insanity in which a man is subject to the hallucination of being followed by enemies; he is morose and very suspicious; he is morose and very suspicious; he is morose and very suspicious.

Dr. de Fleury says that the result of temporary conditions, such as overwork, has been weakened by long illness, or he has been on an exhausting spree. The peculiar weakness that the grip leaves behind is responsible for more jealousy, so says the French physician, than any amount of really justifiable cause. An jealousy is cured? Certainly it can be cured; it may be treated with the same chances of success as any other ailment. And there is the justification for insisting on the physical character of jealousy. It will be hard for most people to get that Dr. de Fleury says. He points out that a defective brain nourishment can be met by stimulants and nutritives. Take a man who is unusually jealous and irritable early in the morning and give him a good breakfast or a cup of coffee, and ten to one he will sit down and talk the matter over with you. According to Dr. de Fleury, all jealous persons have sensible intervals, the milder form in some degree a periodic one, just like chills and fever. In short, Dr. de Fleury's treatment includes everything that can be done to give strength and confidence to the jealous wretch, to inspire him with a sense of his own power, and by what means. Exactly how and by what means. It is to be done the French authority does not expressly say. But there is where the ingenuity of the versatile and inventive patent medicine man will come in. We are on the high road to the abolition of disease. May it not be possible that the abolition of the same road leads to the abolition of the same road? We are in a deplorable state of mind? Cheap, independent, ye men with blue eyes and dumps, ye wrathful, ye sad, ye jealous! Science will compress tablets for you, all nicely put up in a bottle!

HALF FARE

To Chattanooga and Return for the Epworth League Convention in June.

On June 25th, 26th and 27th, 1895, the Monon Route will sell tickets at rate of one-half fare for the round trip from all points on its line to Chattanooga and return on account of the Second International Conference of the Epworth League. These rates and tickets will be open to all. Tickets will be limited to return fifteen days from date of sale, and can be extended fifteen days by depositing with the agents of C. & C. or Nashville & Chattanooga Railways before June 30th.

A choice of routes via Cincinnati, the Blue Grass regions of Kentucky and the mountains of Tennessee, or via Louisville and the cave regions of Kentucky, with side trips to Mammoth Cave at a nominal expense, makes the Monon-route the most desirable line between Chicago and Chattanooga, Tenn.

The day trains of the Monon route both via Louisville and Cincinnati carry parlor cars and dining cars, serving meals same as at a first-class cafe. Passengers can order what they want and need only pay for what they eat.

The evening trains carry luxurious palace sleeping cars from Chicago to Cincinnati or Louisville. The sleeping car rate from Chicago to the Ohio river, or from the Ohio river to Chattanooga, is $2 per berth, whether occupied by one or two persons.

Parties wishing to obtain the mountain scenery of the South should leave Chicago on the evening trains, so as to make the trip from Cincinnati or Louisville to Chattanooga by daylight, arriving at Chattanooga for supper.

Those wishing to visit Mammoth Cave should leave Chicago at 5:30 p. m., arriving at Louisville at 11:30 a. m., and leaving at the cave for dinner, remaining at the cave until next morning, leaving at 9 o'clock, and arriving at Chattanooga for supper.

The side trip from Glasgow Junction to Mammoth Cave will cost but $1.25; hotel and cave fees will be very reasonable. The guide goes into the cave between 1 and 3 o'clock p. m. and 6 o'clock in the evening, thus giving the tourist a chance to make two trips in the cave same day.

Further information, with time tables and pamphlets, will be furnished on application to any agent of the Monon route, or by addressing Frank J. Reed, General Passenger Agent, Chicago.

THE PROMISED LAND.

Why the Tourist, Traveler and Student Should Visit Utah.

There are two reasons, either one of which one is to conciliate with every American citizen.

First—The trip from Denver to Utah via the Great Salt Lake is the grandest to be found anywhere in the world. No European trip of equal length can compare with it in grandeur and beauty.

Second—You should go, because, when you have made the wonderful trip, you will find that you have seen the most beautiful scenery in the world, and that you have seen the most beautiful scenery in the world.

And now—San Lake City, the capital, is a beautiful city, with a population of 10,000. It is a beautiful city, with a population of 10,000.

Just About as Big as a Half Column of the Examiner When Six Weeks Old.

San Francisco has a miniature baby that is a more remarkable specimen of minute humanity than even the diminutive Cranford, N. J., baby that created interest hereabout last March.

The Cranford baby weighed two and a quarter pounds when born, and when two weeks old was thirteen inches long and weighed three and a half pounds.

The San Francisco baby was six weeks old on April 24 and was then only twelve inches long and weighed only four pounds. When born it weighed only one and three-quarter pounds and was just seven inches long. The Jersey baby, too, came into the world prematurely, and died when about three weeks old, while the California child at last accounts was healthy and likely to keep so.

It is a boy baby, the child of Mrs. May E. Bonnell, and is her second child. Its brother is a sturdy little fellow 6 years old, of average size. Mrs. Bonnell is 24 years old, and a medium-sized woman. Small babies are said to run in her family. Her mother weighed only one pound at her birth, and a cigar box was her crib and cradle.

While Ernest Eugene, as the baby has been named, has grown at what in his case may be called a normal rate, and is continuing so to do, he is so ridiculously small that his mother is afraid when carrying him out for an airing, that she may lose him out of his clothes. The clothes prepared for her twice too big for him. His fingers are all less than half an inch long, and his finger nails can scarce be seen without a magnifying glass, while his doubled up fist will easily fit inside a thimble.

His feet are just one inch long. Only his tungs seem disproportionate to the rest of his measurements. He is in every respect perfectly formed, in proper proportions, has deep blue eyes and yellow hair, and a good idea of his general proportions may be had from the fact he just fits in the family coffee-cup. This baby has had the unique honor of having his picture printed in size in a newspaper. The Examiner had his picture taken when six weeks old, and reproduced it according to exact measurements. It was a shade over the width of a column and a trifle over half a column in length.

It has turned out that all the clairvoyants, fortune-tellers, dreamers and mediums of Perth Amboy, who told where the missing body of the man who committed suicide there would be found, were humbugs.

It is estimated that the number of insane persons in the United States is 158,900. Causes of Insanity.—Hereditary, 24 per cent; grief, 18 per cent; business, 12 per cent; loss of friends, 11 per cent; sickness, 10 per cent; various, 29 per cent. This result is the medium average arrived at by Mulhall on comparing the returns for the United States, England, France and Denmark.

Perhaps the Vassar girls who are now learning to row and play ball will finally get muscular enough to handle a broom.

John LaFarge, whom France has dignifiedly honored in inviting him to fill an entire room with his art work at the Champ de Mars Salon, is sixty years old, though he looks younger. Since the death of Inness he has been the dean of American artists.

Mr. Howells remarked recently that he knew only two American women who smoked cigarettes. Concerning this the editor of the Critic says: "These two have confessed to me, and they say that there is a third whom Mr. Howells evidently did not catch in the act as yet. Her time will surely come, though."

In a letter written in 1883 and only recently published, Robert Louis Stevenson says that the last ladies would say, "Ah, no wonder they pay you for that!" Then their cramp seized upon him, and his hand became so stiff as to puzzle his friends; but the printers for the first time began to send him "clean" proofs.

PRINTERS' INK.

Don't forget that a good ad, advertising a good article, should be run in a good paper.

The advertisement that can not be understood at the first reading is seldom read. Clearness should always be conspicuous.

The newspapers and periodicals of Maine have a larger average issue than those of any other state, not excepting Massachusetts or New York.

Doing business without advertising is like pulling against the tide; you may make progress, but it will make you sweat to do so.
