An Aged Couple Brutally Murdered for Their Money in Their Home at Hancock—The Tug Petrol Drifts Into a Port After Struggling Five Days in a Gale

Bloods Double Murder at Hancock, Mich.—Fred Kramer, aged 57 and his wife aged 53, were murdered at Hancock by robbers. Kramer and his wife lived opposite the cemetery west of the city, and were reported to keep considerable money in the house. Kramer was blind and his wife sold beer without a license. At 9 a. m. Kramer's brother, who lives at Lake Linden, called at the house. The front door opening but the shutters were closed. He called several times, but getting no answer grew alarmed and went in search of neighbors. A search of the house revealed a big pool of blood upon the floor of the main room, and in the cellar. A search of the cellar revealed the bodies of Kramer and his wife. Kramer's throat was cut on the right side, while Mrs. Kramer's throat was cut from ear to ear and the left side of her face and forehead was pointed to a pulley. The skull head was found broken and an eye beaten from the socket. The hammer, glotted with blood and hair with which Mrs. Kramer's skull was fractured, was found. The old-fashioned trunk in the bedroom, which was reported to contain money, had been roughly forced open and ransacked. Otherwise the house was undisturbed. The murder was clearly for purposes of robbery, and was apparently done in cold blood.

The reports showed that the increase in membership during the past year, while not so great as in the one preceding was greater than in any other year. The total number of churches is 430, gain of 10, and the total number of members 42,356. Mysterious Murder of a Child.—Much excitement has been occasioned at Ishpeming, due to the finding of the remains of Little Eva Lafreniere, who mysteriously disappeared June 24. The clue to the discovery was a piece of hair found by the mother of the child among a bundle of carpet rugs passed by Mrs. C. L. Wendel, a neighbor, to Mrs. Lafreniere. The shoes were identified as those last worn by the missing child, and were presented to the authorities. Marshal Carlson and Assistant Marshal Nolan entered Mrs. Wendel's house with a search warrant, and proceeded without ceremony to the attic, where they found the child's body concealed behind a chimney. The body had reached an advanced stage of decomposition. The left hand was gone, the head was severed from the trunk and the skull was crushed in.

Miscellaneous Escape of the Tug Petrol.—The fishing tug Petrol, of Osceola, which was reported lost with all hands, while fishing in Saginaw bay, reached a Kincaid, Ont., after five days, with the crew all safe. The tug was engaged in lifting the fish nets when the boiler gave out, and the tug was soon soon rolling helplessly in the trough of the sea. The Petrol's provisions ran short, as the boat had only been stocked for the day, but for five days the crew drifted before the storm. The men were nearly starved when they finally reached shore. With the exception of her boiler the tug had not been damaged by her rough experience in drifting six scores in Lake Huron. The tug was kept up to the wind by trailing the fish nets.

Essexville Escorted.—Fire destroyed $7,000 worth of property in the village of Essexville, a suburb of Bay City. The heaviest losers are the ice house and barn, $3,000; M. J. Beaudette, blacksmith shop and contents, $1,500; M. Beaudette, residence, $1,500. The New Jersey fish commission has started a movement for the purpose of exterminating carp in the streams that were liberally stocked with that species a few years ago. It has been discovered that carp live on fish spawn, and that they multiply very rapidly. Since their introduction to local waters other food fish have gradually diminished and it is feared they will soon be in full possession. Fish Commissioner Wm. G. Wines of Burlington, N. J., has granted a special permission to a number of fish fishermen to fish for carp, other fish taken at the same time to be turned over to him for stocking in the waters. July 24, 400 pounds of carp were taken, and another haul was made of 1,400 pounds the next day.

United States Consul Henry P. Morris located at Ghent, Belgium, makes a report on the income tax of Prussia. In 1894 the income from this source was $29,048,047. It was assessed upon 2,520,920 taxpayers, of whom 1,922 were societies or corporations. The tax was $1,845,272.52, represented by 2,519,008 individuals contributed $27,196,811.45. According to the rolls prepared in view of the tax, the number of individuals was 30,387,321. Of this total 21,233,024 were exempt because their income was not over $100 (224), or because of their foreign nationality. The population affected by the tax was 2,147,428, represented by 2,519,008 taxpayers. The amount of tax for each taxpayer averaged 2.15 cent in the cities, 1.51 per cent in the country, and 1.98 per cent of general income declared. The tax per person amounts to 1.65 in the cities, 2.22 in the country districts, and 38 cents in the city. The general average was 87 1/2 cents per person. There were 236 actual taxpayers that had an income of more than 3,000 marks ($714).

The death of Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen in the prime of his powers must be a sad regret among all who are truly interested in the development of American literature. A native of Norway, Prof. Boyesen had done the greater part of his work and won his fame in this country, and his successes are a matter of pride to both countries alike. A man of broad sympathies and kind heart, he united in an unusual degree the qualities of critic and creator, essayist and romancer. His work is the result of his development that he was a student of books as well as of life, and that in his writing he never had before, under the administration of Pardo, an eminent jurist. While the height of his success he was shadowed by a fanatic, and he succeeded in office by Prado. In 1879 Prof. Boyesen fled to Bolivia against a struggle for the position of minister. His superior navy was defeated. Her allies, the Bolivian soldiers, deserted him. The latter day he was, in 1879, the southern part of the state was held by the enemy, and a march on Lima was expected.

One afternoon that month Prado ordered his state large to be ready in Callao, and traveling by a special train from Lima. He reached the port, where he announced that he intended inspecting what remained of the fleet and also the forts, so as to be ready for the coming conflict. The people shouted and bravas as he proceeded into the harbor, accompanied by brilliantly-uniformed officers. He asked them to be ready for the coming conflict. The executive party visited the monitors in the bay, then the wooden cruisers. There was much powder burnt in saluting. The barge then turned around, and the fleet was ordered to come to him. He had the coxswain steer for the steamship Islay, then lying at anchor and ordered 20 shells to be fired. He was firing on board to whom there came a reply. The barge was ordered to return. and the peasant slipped early up the slide-ladder. He never came down it again in Peruvian waters. The barge sailed and the people on the big ship nearly capsize it when heading around to get her nose to the sea. The officers of the barge called out that the president was being kidnapped. The captain of the Islay smiled at them and replied: "I am not the president."

A great sensation has been created in Sicily by a man named Riegio Scandone, who presented himself to the Messiahs, and has summoned all the people to bow down before him and give accounts of his crimes. He has established himself at a place called "Calamita," where hundreds of people have already gathered round him and formed a settlement. Of which Scandone is the absolute master. He preaches his doctrine and allows it to be practiced by his disciples. A mistake will attract attention to us when a virtue would.

NAPOLEON OF PERU.

PIEROLA HAS WILL AMBITIONS FOR CONQUEST.

The Peace of the South American Republic No Longer Safe—The Intrepid Leader of the People May Establish Empire.

ICHOLAS de Pierola, twice dictator of Peru, is now the hero of the people. Pierola has been termed the Napoleon of South America. Twice he has been elected from his native land and twice he has marched upon Lima with troops composed of hardy mountaineers, and after fierce fighting, has won his way to the executive building. His last battle occurred in May, and one thousand dead lay on the paving-stones of the city of Kings before he was its master. Then he appealed to the people and they, by a splendid majority, gave him the greatest gift at his disposal. As a statesman he has yet to demonstrate his ability, but there are many who believe that his advent signals prosperity for a country which has seen only reverses for fifteen years.

WILLIAM C. WHITNEY.
Brief Sketch of a Man Now in the Public Eye.
William Collins Whitney was born in North Conway, Mass., July 5, 1841. His father was Scotch, his mother was Irish. They were well-to-do people and their son found no barriers in the way of completing the education begun in a country school house. In his seventh year he entered "Yale College" and made rapid progress in the department of classics. He graduated from the university with honors in 1862. The practice of law at that time was considered among the most honorable of professions, and he was most lucrative, and it did not take the young graduate long to decide that it would be the policy to open a law office in New York city. He was admitted to the bar in 1863. of the Cerro del Pasco mines and furnishing an outlet for the treasure that is known to be in hidden inaccessible regions. For fourteen years he has been striving to bring this about, but each time that he occupied the executive chair an overthrow came before he could accomplish anything. Now that he is president he has the opportunity he has fought and waited for. To show the wonderful energy of the man a bit of history is necessary. Yet it is not a long one. He was born in 1841. He was a student of books as well as of life, and that in his writing he never had before, under the administration of Pardo, an eminent jurist. QUEER ANSWERS.
Reply Made to Examination Questions in a Boston School.
Since wit has been defined by Noah Webster as "the quick association of objects not usually connected, so as to produce a pleasant surprise," may not the pupils of some of our public schools, who gave the following answers to their examination questions, be called upon to give answers to the following questions?

1. Where were the Pilgrims? A dirty, filthy set who lived under the ground.
2. Name a domestic animal useful for clothing, and describe its habits. The white man will not let you when he meets you on the street.
3. If you were traveling across a desert where would you choose to rest? I would rest on a stool.
4. Mention five races of men. Men, women, children and negroes.
5. Describe the white race and show that it is superior to the other races. A white man will not let you when he meets you on the street.

A Machine to Facilitate the Work of Packing Tobacco—A Bicycle Without Pedals for the Feet—An Electric Lighter.

MACHINE OF SIMPLE CONSTRUCTION to facilitate the work of packing tobacco, and capable of packing cigarettes and cigars in different numbers, is shown in the accompanying illustration. A suitable base is recommended to form a box to which is hinged a lid, shown raised in the engraving, at the front side of the box is a slide-way for a plunger, the rear side of the slide-way being formed by an adjustable screw. The plunger and the cross bar being recessed on their upper faces to permit the movement over the top of the slide-way. A spring is attached to the rear of the plunger, which is a cigarette receptacle, whose rear end is formed by a block drawn rearward by a spring and pressed forward by a wedge operated by the movement of the lever, the wedge sliding between front cross bar and another adjustable cross bar. The rear cross bar has rearward extending arms connected to the casing, and the latter cross bar is adjusted to the desired position by means of screws and wing nuts. The rider in front next the plunger has a series of screws registering with apertures in the bottom of the casing, at different distances from its front, screws being placed in different apertures as the bar is moved backward, while the rider adjacent to the apertures indicate how many cigarettes the receptacle will take that unitary with honors in 1862.

Here is the greatest of all bicycle freaks. It is a wheel whose rider has no legs and only one arm. The rider is Arthur Roadhouse, a boy resident of De Kalb, Ill. He is 13 years old, bright and as active as his name. His conditions, which came from birth, will allow him to bicycle without legs.

low. Like most cripples, his mind is unimpaired. The bicycling craze left him in body more hopeless and helpless than ever. A neighboring bicycle manufacturer agreed to make a wheel which the boy could ride, and he did so. His one hand guided the handle bar and his other arm acted as a steering pedal to the short stumps which he has known as legs. Strange to say, he experienced no little trouble in mounting the machine. He began riding about four weeks ago, and after three or four hours' practice he was able to make a half mile on a track in less than three minutes. He can now do a mile in four or five minutes, and expects to reduce this time to four minutes. He has already made a half mile in two and a half minutes, and he is confident that he can do so in two and a half minutes. He has to go up a hill without assistance. He has to go down a hill without assistance. He has to go up a hill without assistance.

The sting of a bee, when compared with the point of a fine needle, under a microscope, is found to be perfectly round. The point of the needle appears to be about an inch in diameter. The pointed electric waves have been produced, having a length of about an inch, which would give a wave of the frequency of 11,734,960,000 waves per second. The temperature of the bottom of the Atlantic ocean, as determined by the resistance of the Atlantic cables, is said to be 38 degrees F., which is a mean for the line of the ocean. The Mediterranean, measured in the same way, is said to be 57 degrees F.

At the Royal Agricultural Exhibition in London (Scotland) shows were conducted horsehoarding competitions, with cart and roadster horses. The total points given were 40, divided as follows:—For taking of the old shoes, and trimming the foot; 8 for making the shoes, and their adaptability to the size of the horse; 4 for fitting the shoes; 4 for setting on the fore shoes; 4 for setting on the hind shoes; 8 for general fitness and adaptability of the shoes to the work of the horse. The division of points given by the competitors were as follows:—In the draught horse section, 40, 34, 33, 34, 32, 30, in the roadster section, 40, 34, 33, 34, 32, 30.
