

Mothers

Anxiously watch declining health of their daughters. So many are cut off by consumption in early years that there is real cause for anxiety. In the early stages, when not beyond the reach of medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla will restore the quality and quantity of the blood and thus give good health. Read the following letter:

"It is but just to write about my daughter Cora, aged 19. She was completely run down, declining, had that tired feeling, and friends said she would not live over three months. She had a bad and nothing seemed to do her any good. I happened to read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and had her give it a trial. From the very first dose she began to get better. After taking a few bottles she was completely cured and her health has been the best ever since." Mrs. ADDIE PECK, 12 Railroad Place, Amsterdam, N. Y.

"I will say that my mother has not stated my case in as strong words as I would have done. Hood's Sarsaparilla has truly cured me and I am now well." CORA PECK, Amsterdam, N. Y.

Why Johnnie Flails Became a Great Man—A Story for the Little Folks—Fairy Footsteps—Undeveloped Ideas of the Afflicted.

NE DAY, IN huckle berry time, when little Johnny Flails And half a dozen other boys were starting with their pails To gather berries, Johnny's pa. In talking with him, said That he could tell him how to pick so he'd come out ahead.

"First find your bush," said Johnny's pa, "and then stick it in till You've picked it clean. Let those go chasing all about who will In search of better-bushes; but it's picking tells, my son— To look at fifty bushes doesn't count like picking one."

And Johnny did as he was told; and sure enough, he found By sticking to his bush while all the others chased around In search of better picking, "was as his father said: For, while all the others looked, he worked and soon came out ahead. And Johnny recollected this when he became a man: And first of all he laid him out a well-determined plan: So, while the brilliant triflers falled, With all their brains and push, Wise, steady-going Johnny won by "sticking to his bush."

—St. Nicholas.

A Story for the Little Folks.

One day Denny's mother said to him: "Your hair is too long, my boy. You must go to the barber's and have it cut."

Donny was glad for he thought it would be great fun. He walked into the barber's store, and when his turn came the barber lifted him into a high chair in front of which was a looking glass.

Now Donny had never had a really good look at himself in a glass before, so he was very pleased to see the reflection of his own face, and his first inclination was to make a funny face at himself, but the barber looked so cross that he thought he had better not.

When he went home he ran up to his mother and said: "Oh, mamma! I see'd myself in the glass!"

"Well, and what did you think of yourself, Donny?"

"Why, I think I look just like a red-headed monkey," replied the boy, and then, after a moment's pause, he added: "Mother, dear, I think I should like to be a barber when I'm a big man."

"Would you, my child, and why?" asked his mother.

"Cause 'cause they have lots of fun. There was a man ist'n' down in a chair, and the barber painted his face all over with white paint, and then took a knife and scraped it off, and I should love to do that!"

His mother laughed and told him to run up into the nursery and play with his little sister.

Donny found his sister busy with her dollies, and, after telling her all about his visit to the barber's, he said:

"Baby, let's play barber shop."

"All yite," said baby, for she always did everything her brother told her to do. So Donny climbed up on a chair and took down from a shelf a little can of white paint, which his big sister used in whitening frames. Then he took the dollies, one by one, and covered their faces with the paint. After that he looked for something with which to scrape the paint off and found a small paper knife on the table. He scraped and scraped, but could not get the paint off, so he said:

"Never mind, baby; we'll take 'em to the barber's when we go out, and he'll shave them all right."

Baby did not say anything, but she did not like the way Donny had disfigured her little dollies.

"Now, baby," said Donny, "make believe you are me coming to have your hair cut." And he lifted her on to a chair and looked all around for nurse's scissors, which he soon found. He had just taken one of baby's long golden curls in his hand, ready to cut it off, when nurse came into the room. Donny hid behind a large armchair.

"What have you been up to now?" said his nurse, and when she saw what he had done and how he had spattered paint over everything, she took him right down to his mother.

Donny had only dry bread for his supper that night, and he had to go to bed an hour earlier, but he never forgot his first visit to the barber's.

God Bless the Naughty Turk.

It was the hour of our morning family prayer. The head of the household was pleading in tones which he could not keep from trembling, "God bless and protect our noble missionaries, those glorious men and women, many of them so dear to us personally. Stay the cruel slaughter of the Armenians and avenge thy slaughtered saints!"

"Little Goldlocks," one of our penitents, not quite 3 years old, listened with bated breath and eyes not much closed behind her chubby face, then, creeping away from her little chair, to her grandfather's side, she whispered in his ear, "And please say, God bless the naughty Turk!"

"I bent her little head and closed her eyes to join in the prayer which she knew would follow.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage says:

"When I was a boy my mother used to say to me sometimes: 'DeWitt, you will be sorry for that when I am gone. And I remember just how she looked, sitting there with cap and spectacles, and the old Bible in her lap. Walls we have our friends with us, we may say unguarded things that would give feelings to those to whom we ought to say nothing but kindness. After a while some of our friends are taken away from us, and those of us who are left say: 'Oh, if we could only get back those unkind words, those unkind deeds; if we could only recall them.' But you cannot get them back."

Trees Ten Inches High.

The midpoint of the whole tree family is the greenland birch. It is a perfect tree in every sense of that term and lives its allotted number of years from seventy-five to 150 just as another species of the great birch family do, although its height, under the most favorable conditions, seldom exceeds ten inches. "Whole birches of the east and southeast coast of Greenland are covered with 'whickets' of this miniature species of woody plants and in many places, where the soil is uncommonly poor and frozen from eight to ten months a year, a "forest" of these trees will flourish for half a century, without growing to a height exceeding four inches.

God's Will.

"Since God doth will that some shall dwell at ease, And others shall know hardness, this is sure, The lot that fits each nature He foresees; And wherefore murmur when we must endure? Some day His loving wisdom will be plain As the sweet sunshine following after rain."

Future Punishment.

The Universalist church believes in hell, in punishment, both here and in the world to come. There are not ministers nor theologians enough in all the world, to disguise, to disprove the self-evident fact that every violated law will bring its penalty; that whatever a man sows that shall he also reap.

Sun-Eye and Moon-Eye.

Sun-eye was getting quite sleepy. He had been wide awake ever since a very early hour of that lovely June morning, and it was now getting quite late in the evening.

He had never closed his bright eyes for a single moment all the time, for no cloud had fitted across to give him an excuse to do so, and so he felt he would not be sorry when bedtime came.

"Oh, dear!" he sighed, as he shook himself a little wearily; "it's very hard work to shine like this the whole day long, and never close one's eyes. Really, I feel quite worn out, and I'm sure my rays have been getting paler and paler with fatigue. It does seem a long day indeed."

"The longest," remarked the Moon sleepily with her eye shut.

"Ah! so it is," eagerly replied the Sun; "I had quite forgotten that. Oh, well! it's no use my thinking about going to bed yet while it's that the case," and he opened his glittering eye still wider, and threw the loveliest crimson and gold rays all over the sea and sky.

"They were so brilliant that they quite roused the little fishes, who were just preparing to go to sleep, and they all came to the surface of the pale-green sea and put their heads out to see what was the matter, and all they saw was Sun-eye, shining as brightly as if it were still noon-day.

"At this time of night, too!" said one indignantly, as he dived below again.

"I thought at least it was fireworks," complained another.

And as there were no fireworks they all went to bed again.

Sun-eye shone his brightest for a little while longer, but he was so tired that gradually the big black bank of cloud, which was his eyelid, closed over his golden eye, and he was asleep for the night.

Moon-eye woke up then, and began to look about her—rather sleepily at first; but very soon she opened her eye quite wide and gazed out over the sea, whitening the gleaming sails of a tiny fishing boat, and turning the wings of a homeward-flying sea-gull into silver as bright as her own pretty eye.

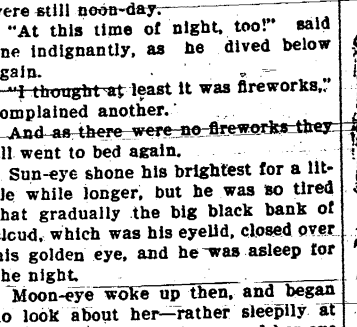

She did not wake up the little fishes, but all through that lovely summer night she kept her quiet watch in the sky, and even the restless little waves grew tranquil under her soft beams, and only crooned their old Mother Ocean's little soft lullabies in their sleep.

And little children who had looked up and laughed in the Sun's glorious eye, glanced half shyly at gentle Moon-eye; and she laid her pale fingers on their sleepy eyes, and they too slumbered. The little fishes slept the most soundly of all until Moon-eye went to bed and sent a shaft of brilliant light right down into their beds and woke them up in time for breakfast. — The Watchman.

MRS. VAN RENSSELAER.

A New York Society Woman Who Is Engaged to School Reform.

Prominent New York society women seldom take part in public affairs. There is now an exception to the rule, and one of these exceptions at present is Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer. This lady is quite as good, from a family point of view, as anybody in Gotham, for both her own family and that of her husband are derived from the very best and most aristocratic Dutch blood in Gotham. Mrs. Van Rensselaer recently went to Albany to make an address before the New York state senate committee on cities. Her speech was for the promotion of the bill pending in the legislature for the reform of schools in cities. Mrs. Van Rensselaer is deeply interested in the affairs of the public schools. She declared to the committee that the schools in New York were inefficient, and for that reason their citizenship was drawn entirely from the poor people. She said that nowadays in New York, so poor was the system of public education that no one who could afford to send their children to a private school would even think of permitting them to be enrolled in the public schools. Several of the committee did not like the tone of the lady's remarks. They claimed that her words cast a reflection upon the poor

MRS. VAN RENSSELAER people, whom the public schools were intended to benefit. Mrs. Van Rensselaer pointedly objected to this wrong interpretation of her address. She will continue the work for the raising of the grade of the public education in her town.

The Importance of a Good Breakfast.

It is no uncommon thing to find among our acquaintances that many persons, when asked as to the kind of breakfast they eat, reply that they either eat none at all or only perhaps, drink a cup of coffee or tea, says the Family Doctor. It is true that the ordinary English breakfast is calculated to strike terror in the minds of the average European, and French people would be appalled at the idea of eating breakfast or a couple of chops the first thing in the morning, and yet it is a great mistake to commence the day without a good meal as a foundation.

It may have been noticed by those who have no appetite for breakfast that even if hungry on retiring it is an exception to have a feeling of hunger on awaking in the morning. It is probable that during the sleep, the functions of digestion being in abeyance, the stomach contracts, and this is probably why some persons cannot eat late at night. The empty stomach, having no function to perform, contracts itself, and in the morning it requires some little stimulation for it to begin its daily work. This is why so many, especially invalids, cannot take a heavy breakfast.

For those who can do so, it is a good plan to drink a little cold water on rising. It washes out the stomach, takes away any mucus that might have collected there in the night, and stimulates the digestive glands to give forth their secretions, and prepare for that important act, digestion.

An Irish Girl of Distinction.

Miss Mildred A. Butler, who has just been elected an associate of the Royal

MILDRED A. BUTLER. Society of Painters in Water Colors, is an Irish lass. She was born in Thomas town, County Kilkenny, and passed most of her life in that locality. She was largely aided in her early efforts by the invaluable instruction given her by the late P. J. Nettel. She also studied for a few months with Mrs. Norman Garstin and for one term at Frank Calderon's school for animal painting. Miss Butler is a member of the Society of Laity Artists, the Dudley Gallery Art Society and the Water Color Society of Ireland. For several years past Miss Butler's paintings have been hung at the academy and the Royal Institute. Her work has been chiefly in the line of studies in landscapes and cattle, painted with singular force and directness and in a manner that is all her own, which won her fame.

Patriotism with the Love of Peace.

One of the good things already rising out of the breasting of war is the growth of patriotic feeling and love of country. Yet another and a larger good is the love of peace, the prayer for peace and the careful studying of the things that make for peace. Perhaps a yet larger good will be the discovery of the great and profound interests the two countries have in common and the drawing nearer together of the two great English-speaking peoples into acknowledged sympathies and aims for the good of the whole world. — Richmond (Va.) Results of Malarial and Typhoid Fevers.

A CASE CITED IN THREE OAKS, MICH., THAT WILL INTEREST DELICATE WOMEN.

The Effects of the Fever Were Felt in the Weakest Spots—A Warning to Mothers.

From the Press, Three Oaks, Mich. Out at Three Oaks, Michigan, lives Mrs. J. S. Flowers, from whom we publish part of a most interesting letter. The first part of the letter was taken up with a description of her sufferings as a result of malarial and typhoid fevers. These consisted of rheumatic nervous prostration, boils, and severe pains in head and back, etc., etc. The feature of her letter, which will be of the most interest, however, follows, and it will interest many a mother and particularly mothers of young daughters:

"I had also been a sufferer for sixteen years with painful menstruation. Every time I would have to sit down most of the time, as it was impossible for me to stand. At last, as a result of this remedy, (Pink Pills), they nearly disappeared. Every time they should come I would cramp and would have to use hot applications, and would take hot slings, teas and every known remedy, but of no avail. After using your pills two months they came on without any pain whatever. It had been two years since there had been any color. The doctors said it might be the turn of life, but as I was 32 years old, only thirty-three, he thought it strange if it was. Now I am just as anyone should be at those times.

"Another trouble I had was a weak stomach from a child. Every little while I would have bad vomiting spells, consequently the doctors found me a very hard patient to treat. My physician said he had spent more time in studying my case than that of any patient he ever had. Several physicians advised me to use an electric battery. We got one and I used it for some time before I commenced using the pills, and continued it for awhile after I began using them, but I found out and just depended on the pills.

"When I commenced using them I was so discouraged that I had given up the thought of ever being any better, as after every attack I was so much weaker and more helpless. It seems almost a miracle to me that after trying so many remedies that our medicine should have helped me so much. I can now walk quite a distance without getting very tired, and the bunch on my back is much smaller than it was before. I can furnish plenty of proof that these statements are all true from friends who have seen me suffer and commenced using your medicine. I have used in all thirty-two boxes. I am perfectly willing to tell what has helped me and have recommended your pills to several persons who are now using them. I do not believe I would have been alive now had it not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for they helped me when everything else failed.

"Respectfully,

"Mrs. J. S. Flowers."
