LESSON of the CHILDREN.

children meet and play.

And I love to s.t and watch them in the children meet and play.

And I love to s.t and watch them in the closing hours of day.

Watching them my thoughts will wander to the happy days gone by.

When I. with the neighbors' children. counted out to play "I spy."

Oners, orry, tckery, Ann.

Fillison. follison. Nicholas, John; Queevy, quavey. English navy.

Rinktum, linktum, buck.

And I long to run and join them, long to be a boy again;

Long to lay aside the burdens borne by tired, busy men.

And my blood leaps fast and faster, and I clap my hands and shout

When 'midst merry peaks of laughter my own boy is counted out.

Eeny, meeny, miny; mo.

Catch a nigger by the toe;

If he hollers let him go.

Eeny, meeny, miny, mo.

Thus the summer hours speed swiftly as the childish games are played.

In my back yard by the children gathered neath the maple's shade. cred 'neath the maple's shade.

Dancing feet and happy laughter make the hours speed with haste.

And the back yard knows no rulers.

Knows no pride of birth or caste:

For upon an equal footing there they gather, girls and boys.

And, I sit and envy them their healthy lungs and childish foys.

Wire, briar, limber, lock.

Three geese in a flock:

One flew east, one flew west.

One flew east, one flew west.

Pure d-emocracy exists there, all for one and one for all.

Fitting here and romping yonder 'neath the green-leaved maple tall.

And I wonder as I watch them why men grasp for gold and fame.

Missing all the joys of living, risking misery and shame.

Monkey, monkey, bowl of beer,

How many monkeys have we here?

One, two, three.

I am one of the few women in the world who has an opportunity to know exactly what is thought of her, for I am "the telephone girl," "the Central," that stupid operator," and I answer to numerous other tender appellations which come to my ears over the wires, when business is brisk and my patrons in a hurry. It is a hard like, often an unpleasant one, but it has compensations; for instance, if one considers a kindly interest in the affairs of one's townspeople legitimate, it must be admitted that I have exceptional advantages in that line. ceptional advantages in that line.

There happened to be a strange youth in the village that day who was not familiar with the local customs. The village boys fought shy of the handkerchief, but the unsuspecting stranger picked it up. Then the villagers set up a great shout and brought to him a blushing beauty, whom he had never seen before, announcing to him that she was his future wife. Naturally he was astonished, and could only murmur: "This is so sudden." Partially recovering his composure, he inquired if he might ask just why the young lady was to be his future wife. The savings bank has just purchased, at an expense of nearly $400, an adding machine that mathematically is a wonder. It will give the sum of any column of figures in the wink of an eye, and is correct every time. In external appearance it resembles a typewriter and is operated in a similar manner. The only chance for an entertain serior is when the operator touches the two little girls from the "Fresh air".

Cured of Catarrh of the Stomach by Pe-ru-na. people who are suffering from catarrh of the stomach who are wasting precious time, and enduring needless suffering. The remedies they try only temporarily patitate the distress, but never effect a cure. Remedies for dyspepsia have multiplied so rapidly that they are becoming as numerous as the leaves of the forest, and yet dyspepsia continues to flourish in spite of them all. This is due to the fact that the cause of dyspepsia is not-recognized as catarrh.
