This is one of the most compact plans published. Absolutely no waste space and at the same time neat and handy. This house having a frontage of 22 feet was built on a city lot. Height of first story nine feet, second eight feet six inches. Solid stone construction.

WHERE HE WAS LACKING. Railroad Man Makes Professional Criticism of Ministers.

Ministers, as a rule, are not at all averse to telling a good story, even at their own expense. A Baptist minister was so much amused at a witty criticism of his own preaching as he had been at another minister's sermon.

One Sunday morning a well known railway magnate came in and took a long nap. It was the first time that he had been seen at the chapel, and his presence created some little stir. The minister preached his sermon, and then, perhaps to make the most of his opportunity, he traveled over the same ground again in language calculated to be very effective.

Mosquito's Hum Located. The members of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, reports "The Detroit News," were interested, at a recent meeting, in the announcement by A. E. Shipley and Edwin Wilson of the discovery of an apparatus heretofore overlooked or neglected, at the base of the mosquito's wings, whereby the characteristic humming of that insect may be produced.

"What is there?" "He doesn't appear to have very good terminal facilities."

Personal Acquaintance Necessary. Governor Stone tells of an eccentric resident of his county who was killed after a long time. They had not been a happy pair, perhaps, but the man was worth $100,000 and still work.

HAD A PERSONAL INTEREST. Good Reason Why He Wanted Red Hair.

William Dean Howells has acted as the literary godfather for many young writers who sought him out early in their careers to ask him for advice. One of these, at least, was not ungrateful for when he "died," and had reached that position where his say in literary matters meant something, he never lost an opportunity to say a nice thing about the author of "Silas Lapham." On one occasion, the younger author made an address before a body of literary men in which he virtually asserted that everything good and great in native literature was the inspiration of Howells. The address was printed far and wide and commented on at length, not always in a complimentary manner to its author. Mr. Howells' attention was naturally called to the matter, and he wrote his protest in a letter in which he related a story of two men who, talking at the seashore, were being struggling and heard crying for help. A crowd gathered to watch the help-

JOKE WASTED ON ENGLISHMAN. Utterly Unable to Understand American Sarcasm.

Singer, the sewing machine manufacturer, owned a beautiful country place in the south of England that he regarded as one of the sights of the neighborhood by travelers. It was so annoyed by miscellaneous visitors, however, that he gave orders to all his ground keepers that none but his personal friends should be permitted to wander about the estate. Singer, himself, one morning encountered a friend who was in the of the life guards, who could hear above the roar of the ocean and the noise made by the crowd a voice below.

"Save the red haired man, sure!" cried the red haired man, sure!

Both men were saved the next day, going after the ex-lieutenant on the beach in the hope of a "Red haired" chap relation of yours, sir?"

"No-no relative at all," he replied, "but no one no mistake do you?"

Utterly Unable to Understand American Sarcasm.

KNOW SOMETHING WAS WRONG.

Colored Man Missed Usual Greeting from Admiral Evans.

When Admiral Evans and Schley were both assigned to duty on the Lighthouse Board, which convenes in rooms at the Treasury Department in Washington, the Philadelphia Post reported, the colored messenger at the door one morning stopped Admiral Schley.

"I wish," said the darky, "you would speak a kind word to Com'ore Evans for me. He's done got in for me."

"You must be mistaken, George," Schley replied. "I happen to know that Com'ore Evans, like the rest of us, think highly of your distinguished services."

"Ob, 'so sure," persisted the colored man, "that Com'ore Evans don't like me no more."

"What makes you think so?" demanded Schley.

"Usually when Com'ore Evans arrives in the mornin' he says, 'Hello, George, you blacky-black-blan' fool! How are you?' but dis mornin' he done say merely, 'Hello, George!'"

The com'ore must surely taken a powerful dislike to me."

CURING BEARS OF THEFT. Use of Heavy Bull Whip Found to Be Effective.

Gen. Corbin, who has just returned to Washington from a trip to Yellowstone Park, tells how some bears in the park raided the Fountain House.

"I investigated myself, and found the bears had broken into the kitchen of the hotel and simply ruined all the stores, leaving the hotel and its guests without food for a week."

It was admitted to listen to the Chinese cook attempt to describe the state of the kitchen. He became excited, spluttered, grined and squeaked and went through all the supposed maneuvers of the bears in his endeavor to explain the damage that had been done.

It was really no laughing matter for the proprietor of the hotel and Col. Placer sent men to punish the intruders.

"Would they kill the bears?" Gen. Corbin was asked. "Oh no," they would only whip them. They would take a big bull whip and lash the bears soundly. Experience has taught us that people who have not had a good sound thrashing from a bull-whip will last a bear, either brown or grizzly, for the remainder of the season."
