THINGS NOT WELL SAID. Two Stories That Show the Value of Slow Speech.

An English author has given some very amusing examples of how things can be said in a queer way. One o the most unfortunate recorded at mpts to escape from a convers tional difficulty was made by a London curate, who cultivated the friendship of mechanics. One day a carpenter came to him and said-'I have brought my boy's likeness, as you said you'd like to have it." How good of you to remember!" said the curate. "What a capital likeness! How is he?"

"Why, sir, don't you remember? said the carpenter. "He's dead." "Oh, eyes, of course I know that!" replied the curate. "I mean, how's the man that took the photograph?" A story is told of a young laborer who, on his way to his day's work, alled at the registrar's office to regisr his father's death. When the official asked the date of the event, the son replied "He ain't dead yet, but he'll be dead before night, so I thought it would ave me another journey if you would out it down now.' "Oh, but that won't do at all!" said he registrar. "Perhaps your father will live till to-morrow?" "Well, I don't know, sir; the doc tor says as he won't; and he knows

--- Missouri Editor's Defience A Missouri editor who is about to pull up and leave for lack of support sarcastically remarks in parting that editors don't need money. "Don't worry about the editor," he says. "He has a charter from the state to act a doormat for the community. He'll get the paper out somehow, and stand up for you when you run for office, and e about your pigeon-toed daughter's tackey wedding, and blow about you big footed sons when they get a $4-aweek job, and weep over your shriveled soul when it is released from your grasping body, and smile at your was giddy wife's second marriage. He'll set along. The Lord only knows how -but the editor will-get there some
