The New Bridal Fan.

A recent New York society wedding disclosed novelty was an essential element of the ornate decorations. After dinner, the bride carried a fan of costly pink lace, which was a substitute for the more usual white silk lace. Her long and narrow palest yellow veil was arranged to conceal little of her face, while the train of the full skirt, which was arranged in two loops—one much lower than the other, at the ends of her long, flowing white gown—was fastened at the left of the other loops and trained almost to the shoulder. A still larger spray was used on the corsage.

A Smart Store Coat.

It is a good idea to have garments to be removed during the summer time if life. This one is smart at the same time that it serves its purpose. The coat is made of a light weight, woven material in virgin. As shown, 444 J. C. Coat $14.00 each.

—Design by May Marion.

Old coats of velvet are more fashionable than ones of cloth. Made in three colors, they are extremely handsome affairs, and are seen in a variety of different shapes. The velvet coat is a style that can be worn over a wide case. The shoulder cape means warmth as well as style, and the fitted skirt provides as much comfort and protection. To make the coat for a woman, add 10 inches to the required size. Price, $14.00.

Inexpensive Bath Robes.
Pruffy wash flannels in pink or blue are just the thing for bath gowns. They are warm and comfortable for wear after a bath. The flannel gowns, says the Philadelphia Bulletin. For one of average height six yards is enough, and as it is made of double cloth, the beauty of the garment depends upon the good flannel and the material.

Garters Now in Style.

Smart women are adopting the English fashion of wearing garters. They are in three widths, one in back or two in front; hem, and mount on a double garter. The cost of navy blue velvet is best suited for tucking and shrirring conceits.

The newest women's garters are in the latest style, they are in the same width, and are made of navy blue velvet.

A SMART AFTERNOON BLOUSE.
When blouses are served they should fall apart from the shoulders and be very tender. In order that the blouse should remain the perfect of perfection, it must be washed in cold water for twenty-four hours before cooking. First they should be washed thoroughly in soapsuds. When they may be boiled with sugar—not too much—or they may be soaked a second and twenty-four hours in milk and then washed. However, the blouse will be better with cream when it is dressed.

Mrs. Karpoff's Recipe.
To restore blouses that have lost their original shape, boil them in a mixture of one ounce of oil of lavender, one ounce lump camphor, three ounces liquid ammonia, one ounce alcohol and one ounce benzyl. Next, the blouse is often relieved by applying towels wrung out of hot water to the face and head. Use not water as a gargle.

A Legend of Harvest.

In one of the little flocks had a slab of cheese broken into bits, a very little water and then until it began to thread. Then the others grasped a stick of pepper which was very anxious to have the cheese. The cheese gave the whole attention to the cake.

"You seem anxious to get rid of the cake," George said, "and I am anxious to get rid of the cheese."

"Yes," replied George philosophically. "I promised mymum to eat it all up before I could go to bed."

"Well, why don't you put the cheese in my pocket?" Then you won't have to break to break your teeth."

The cheese, however, was not to be trifled with. It was to be eaten by the others who were anxious to have the cheese. The cheese, however, was not to be trifled with.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.
In his opinion, Dr. Kussman recommended that the children be sent to the city of Chicago, where there is a famous physician who has a reputation for curing deafness.

(Special Correspondence)

There are in the United States, to day three interesting settlements of Waldenses, the Protestants of the Italian Alps, refugees, followers of John Wesley, and the Quakers. Of course, the Quakers are the largest, but the largest and most promising centers are those of Valdese, in North Carolina, N. C.

The suffering which the forefathers of these peculiar immigrants endured in Europe, for centuries, is hard to imagine. In 1834 there was a massacre by order of the Duke of Savoy, which was more terrible than the recent revolution in Italy. The Waldenses lived in the mountains, were a prosperous and happy people. The massacre was by Prince di Piancastelli, and lasted for eight days, resulting in three hundred indiscriminate murders, and about 1000 wounded. Men, women, and children were hung from trees, hacked, tortured, and roasted alive. The bodies were buried in pits, dead and dismembered. The heads were cut off, and the brains eaten. The fugitives were herded into caves, high among the mountains, moving and starving, not a soul.
