NOTABLE EVENTS OF THE YEAR 1903.

The year 1903 will be known as the year of property in the United States. The crops have not yielded so heavily as they did in former years. The prices received were so much lower that the average was more than made for loss.

Cotton reached the highest price at which it has been sold since the war. Wool and leather have advanced. The price of wheat has advanced in price 25 per cent.

Iron and steel were sold at high prices and the demand was so great that orders could not be filled with any delay. The price of copper advanced because of the discovery of new deposits. The price of silver advanced because of the discovery of new deposits. The price of gold advanced because of the discovery of new deposits.

There was a canal across the Isthmus of Panama had been agitated, and recently the canal was opened. Thousands of dollars have been spent since that time, and on the 10th of March the canal was opened. The canal was opened to the world. The canal was opened to the world. The canal was opened to the world.
