Everyday Sort of Hero

Lesson Eleven
The hero of the story is a young man who is very kind and helpful. He always helps his friends and neighbors. One day, he saw an old man who was carrying a very heavy bag. The old man was struggling to carry it, so the young man went over and helped him. He carried the bag for him and then helped him get home. The old man was very grateful and thanked him very much. The young man said that it was nothing and that he would do it again if he needed it. This is the kind of hero that we need in our world today.

War Gods of Japan

The war gods of Japan are the deities who are worshipped by the Japanese people. They are believed to be the ancestors of the Japanese people and are therefore very important to them. The most famous of these gods is the god of war, who is believed to be the ancestor of the Japanese emperor. Other gods include the god of the sun, the god of the moon, and the god of the earth. The Japanese people believe that these gods are responsible for their success in war and therefore they worship them with great devotion.
