

WITH THE VETERANS

The Battle of Gettysburg, July 1-3, 1863, was the turning point in the American Civil War. It was here that the Confederate Army, led by General Robert E. Lee, was decisively defeated by the Union Army, led by General George Meade. This victory prevented Lee from advancing further north into Pennsylvania and ultimately led to his retreat back to Virginia. The battle is remembered for its tactical significance and the heroic actions of soldiers on both sides.

The Battle of Vicksburg, July 4-9, 1863, was a crucial Union victory in the Western Theater of the American Civil War. General Ulysses S. Grant's forces successfully besieged and captured the Confederate stronghold of Vicksburg, Mississippi. This gave the Union control of the Mississippi River, a major strategic advantage.

The Battle of Chattanooga, November 23-25, 1863, was a decisive Union victory in the Western Theater. General Grant's forces defeated General Braxton Bragg's Confederate army, forcing them to retreat. This opened the way for Sherman's March to the Sea in the following year.

The Battle of the Wilderness, May 5-7, 1864, was a tactical draw in the Overland Campaign of the American Civil War. General Grant's Union Army fought a series of battles with General Robert E. Lee's Confederate Army, but neither side achieved a decisive victory.

The Battle of Cold Harbor, June 3, 1864, was a tactical draw in the Overland Campaign. General Grant's Union Army suffered heavy casualties in an assault on the Confederate lines, but the battle did not result in a decisive outcome for either side.

The Battle of Appomattox Court House, April 9, 1865, was the final battle of the American Civil War. General Grant's Union Army forced General Robert E. Lee's Confederate Army to surrender, effectively ending the war.
