

JOKERS GET BUSY IN AURORA

The home of John McCoy, the famous politician who has died at Aurora, has been decorated with a plentiful supply of placards by the Chicagoan, under the name of 'Street cars run right by the door and the lettering on the signs is so large that they can be read from the street.

On both fronts of the house posters tacked up the corners and sides of the room with notices and placards. Some of the signs are: "The Opposition Was Overcome—(1) By prayer. (2) By the power of the Holy Spirit. (3) By the power of the Holy Spirit."

He seemed to tower in special dignity on the stage, but also above all the actors of the time; and when the curtain was raised down the spectators sprang to their feet and paid their homage to genius in a frenzy of emotion and enthusiasm.

JOYS OF MATERNITY

A WOMAN'S BEST HOPES REALIZED

Mrs. Potts Tells How Women Should Prepare for Motherhood

The dearest joys of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to children and lonely old age. Many a wife has found herself incapable of thoroughness owing to a displacement of the womb or lack of strength of the generative organs.

Mrs. Anna Potts

Frequent backache and distressing pains, now and then by offensive discharges, are generally by irregular and scanty menstruation indicate a displacement or nerve degeneration of the womb and surrounding organs. The question that troubles women is how can a woman who has some trouble bear healthy children? Mrs. Anna Potts, 210 Park Avenue, New York, writes: "I have had a very early part of my married life I was delicate, nervous and backache and I was very anxious for a child to bless our home, but I had two miscarriages, and could not carry a child to maturity. A neighbor told me I should be cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I tried it. I did so and soon felt that I was growing stronger, my headaches and backache left me, I had no more bearing-down pains, and felt like a new woman. Within a year I became the mother of a strong, healthy child, the joy of our home. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a splendid remedy, and I wish every woman who wants to become a mother would try it. Actual sterility in a woman is very rare. Every woman thinks she is sterile, let her try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free to expectant or would-be mothers.

CHAPTER I.—Continued.

Half a day served to see everything in Santa Fe worth looking at, but Mr. Cullen decided to spend there the time they had to wait for his other son to join the party. To pass the hours I hunted up some ponies, and we spent three days in long rides up the old Santa Fe trail and to the outlying mountains. Only one incident was other than pleasant and that was my fault. As we were riding back to our cars on the second afternoon, we had to cross the branch roadbed, where a gang happened to be at work tamping the ties.

"Since you're interested in road agents, Miss Cullen," I said, "you may like to see one. That fellow standing in the ditch is Jack Drute, who was concerned in the D. & R. G. hold-up three years ago."

Miss Cullen looked where I pointed, and seeing a man with a gun, gave a startled jump, and pulled up her pony, evidently supposing that we were about to be attacked. "Shan't we run?" she began, but then checked herself, as she took in the facts of the drab clothes of the gang and the two armed men in uniform. "They are convicts," she asked, and when I nodded, she asked, "How long is he in prison for?"

"Twenty years," I told her. "How harsh that seems!" she said. "How cruel we are to people for a few moments' wrongdoing, which the circumstances may almost have justified!" She checked her pony as we came opposite Drute, and said, "Can you use money?"

"Can I, lady," said the fellow, leaning in an attempt to look amiable. "Wish I had the chance to try." The guard interrupted by telling her it wasn't permitted to speak to the convicts while out of bounds, and so we had to ride on. All Miss Cullen was able to do was to throw him a little bunch of flowers she had gathered in the mountains. He was literally casting pearls before swine, for the fellow did not seem particularly pleased, and when, late that night, I found the flowers lying in the ditch. The experience seemed to sadden and distress Miss Cullen very much for the rest of the afternoon, and I kicked myself for having called her attention to the brute, and could have knocked him down for the way he had looked at her. It is curious that I felt thankful at the time that Drute was not holding up a train Miss Cullen was on. It is always the unexpected that happens. If I could have looked into the future, what a strange variation on this thought I should have seen!

The three days went off so quickly, thanks to Miss Cullen, and by the end of that time I began to understand what love really meant to a chap, and how men could come to kill each other for it. For a fairly sensible, hard-headed fellow it was pretty quick work, I acknowledge; but let any man have seven years of Western life without seeing a woman worth speaking of, and if he didn't do as I did, I wouldn't trust him on the tailboard of a locomotive, for I should put him down as a defective both in eyesight and in intellect.

CHAPTER II.

The Holding-Up of Overland No. 3. On the third day a dispatch came from Frederic Cullen telling his father he would join us at Lamoy on No. 3 that evening. I at once ordered 97 and 218 coupled to the connecting train, and in an hour we were back on the main line. While waiting for the overland to arrive, Mr. Cullen asked me to do something which, as it later proved to have considerable bearing on the events of that night, is worth mentioning, trivial as it seems. When I had first joined the party, I had given orders for 97 to be kicked special, so as not to deprive the occupants of 218 of the view from their

"Thank you, papa," responded Miss Cullen, "but I think I will watch you play."

"Now, Madge, don't be foolish," said Mr. Cullen, irritably. "You might just as well have the pleasure, and you'll only disturb the game if you stay here."

was such a tempting spot that I linger on, while she was there, that it wasn't easy to go. Finally I asked: "You are quite comfortable, Miss Cullen?" "Stagnantly so," she laughed. "Perhaps you would like to be left to enjoy the moonlight and your meditations by yourself?" I questioned. "I knew I ought to have just gone away, but I simply couldn't when she looked so enticing."

"Do you want to go?" she asked. "No!" I ejaculated, so forcibly that she gave a little startled jump in her chair. "That is—I mean," I stammered, embarrassed by my own vehemence, "I rather thought you might not want me to stay."

"Venture to Predict." The Register, published in Philadelphia before the Revolution, contains a number of editorial paragraphs which prove that its editor was a far-seeing person, since most of his predictions have come true. One of the paragraphs in the Register reads as follows: "We have heard a strange story about a salt-lick at Charters Creek Hunters who have visited the lick say that gas arises there which will burn when lighted. We venture to predict that this gas will some day be used for fuel."

In another issue was this interesting statement: "We learn from England that a man named Stevenson has invented an engine that runs by steam. We venture to predict that some day it will be possible for a man to eat his breakfast in Harrisburg and his supper in Philadelphia."

The gas referred to in this old paper is, of course, the natural gas which has had so much to do with the development of certain parts of the country. The editor might have gone much further than he did with his prediction of the dis-annihilating power of steam and yet have been far within the truth.—Youth's Companion.

STEAMER TOWED BY A WHALE.

Orion in Exciting Two Hours' Fight With Monster Before Killing It. The whaling steamer Orion, which Captain Balcom and his associates are operating in connection with the modern station at Cechar, on the west coast of this island, figured in an exciting adventure recently, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. The outcome of which was for two hours in doubt, while a monster "sulphur-bottom" whale—seventy-five feet in length toled the steamer seaward at better than fifteen-knot speed.

The whale had been harpooned in the ordinary manner, but was not killed as usual, the bomb attached to the harpoon failing to explode at the critical instant. As the monster was only wounded and enraged there was nothing else to do but pay it out line and play the big fish until it should become exhausted. For two hours the whale traveled seaward, towing the steamer, and kept under water the greater part of the time, coming up at quarter-hour intervals to blow up at quarter-hour intervals the blades of the harpoon loosened in its flesh.

As the whale's pace grew steadily less, however, until it finally became very weak. The high speed at which it had traveled and the heavy drag of the steamer told and the effect of the tow was intensified by reversing the ship's engines. Finally one of the ship's boats crept up on the whale and four hand lances were buried in its vitals.

On Dutch Waters. "I can think of no more restful holiday," says a writer, "than to step on board of one of those largest wedge-shaped boats in Rotterdam canal and never lifting a finger to alter the natural course of the water—to accelerate or divert it—by carrying it to, say, Harlingen, in Friesland. Between the meadows; under the noses of great black and white cows; past little villages with dazzling milk cans beaded on the banks; and the good wives washing, and the starnine smokers in black velvet slippers passing the time of day; through big towns, by rows of amber houses seen through a delightful screen of leaves; under low bridges crowded with children; through narrow locks; ever moving slowly and surely, sometimes sailing, sometimes being towed, with the wide Dutch sky overhead and the plovers crying in it, and the clean west wind driving the windmills, and everything just as it was in Rembrandt's day and just as it will be 500 years hence."

"Uncle Tom's Cabin." Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, the authoress of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," may claim to have written the novel which has been translated into the greatest number of languages and which has done more for the world than any other work of fiction ever produced. It seems that Mrs. Stowe had no idea of protecting her rights, so, as a result, she only made hundreds instead of thousands. The novel was written in Florida, where Mrs. Stowe had taken a party of girls to escape the severity of a number of languages, and to have had northern winter. Mrs. Stowe used to write during the day and afterward read it out to the girls in the evening. One of these young ladies married E. L. Godkin, who became editor and proprietor of the New York Evening Post.

Honest Polly. A lady was one day teaching a little colored girl how to spell, says an exchange. She used a pictorial primer in which each word was accompanied by an illustration. Polly gibbly spelled "ox, ox," and "box, box," and the teacher thought she was making "right rapid progress," perhaps even too rapid. She put her hand over the picture and then asked, "Polly, what does o-x spell?" "Ox," answered Polly nimbly. "How do you know it spells ox?" Polly was as honest as the day. "Seed his tail!" she responded.

Wages in Berlin. The highest workmen's wages in Berlin are paid to masons—$1.90 to $2.14 a day for piece work.

Wanted to See His Wealth. In the Process, Depositor Made Trouble for the Cashier. An old negro went to the bank in which he kept his hard-earned savings and asked the paying teller to give him all the money he had deposited. He offered no explanation of his sudden desire to withdraw his funds, and after vain argument with him the teller counted out the bills and delivered them to the old man. He eyed the paper money a moment and said: "Kin I git dat in silver, boss?"

The teller assured him he could, and forthwith made the exchange. The old negro retired to a neighboring desk, remained crouched over it a long time, and then, to the teller's great surprise, returned to the window and gleefully thrust his money back through the pigeonhole. Before he could speak, the old man said, grinning widely: "Thanks, boss, you kin take it back. I jes' wanted 't see ef it wuz all there."—Harpers' Weekly.

Christiana Science. In the United States there are about 400 Christian Science Churches, with about 100,000 adherents. According to Mrs. Eddy, its founder, the church is making tremendous strides in popularity, in which respect it resembles Pillsbury's Witos, the popular cereal food.

Law Takes Hold of Schoolboy. The Supreme Court of the State of Washington has decided that the law against disturbing a public school applies to schoolboys as well as to others. So John Patkenham, the fourteen-year-old boy, who disturbed his class at Chehalis, has been sent to the reform school.

Theological School for China. The Northern and Southern Presbyterian churches in the United States are uniting to establish a theological school for the training of native Chinese ministers in Nanking, China.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured. In local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear, there is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional treatment. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the middle ear, and when it is entirely closed, the result is deafness, and unless the inflammation can be taken out, the hearing will be destroyed forever. No case of deafness is caused by a starry, white, or yellowish deposit on the membrane of the middle ear, and unless the inflammation can be taken out, the hearing will be destroyed forever. WAY UP NORTH

An Interesting Letter from Carl Wuerthner About his Trip.

MARQUETTE, MICH., Nov. 29, 1905.
Dear EDITOR:—The morning I left Manchester for the north, the weather was threatening and as Saginaw was reached a northwest blizzard with snow and sleet was encountered. I had all sorts of imaginations of what the weather would be beyond the straits and I really dreaded the trip but it was only a dream. In my eight seasons of traveling in the upper peninsula, never have I found the weather as pleasant at this time of the year. The merchants were complaining that business was not up to the standard owing to the mild weather. No snow was seen except a few flurries.

While in Cadillac, I stopped with Fred Kotts, at one time a Manchester boy who is foreman in one of the mills, is married and has one child and is prosperous.

Was fortunate to arrive in Traverse City while the state convention of Sunday schools was being held and attended the last day's session. A platform was built on the stage of the opera house to accommodate 250 persons who constituted the choir, lead by Rev. Turrel, the boy evangelist. One could not help but be filled with enthusiasm for the work when listening to the testimonials and hearing the beautiful songs, two of which deeply impressed me. The flag song was one of the best and captured the convention. Each of the singers had a small flag and as the chorus was being sung there could be seen 250 hands waving the stars and stripes, while at the close of the song a large flag was lowered on the stage. The other song was "God be with you till we meet again." Never have I heard it sung as on that night.

In Cheboygan I was pleased to meet Artie Yokum, son of our former pastor, Rev. Yokum. He graduated from college the past June and holds a position on one of the large boats on the lakes.

An invitation from Frank Ulrich was accepted and I was his guest from Saturday until Tuesday. Ed Renau of Freedom is also with him during hunting season. In order to get to Limestone I was obliged to go from Munising to Chatham over a new railroad where Frank and Ed were waiting for me, thence we rode over rough wagon roads, eight miles through dense forests. Limestone is not a city and all you can see is a farmhouse, in which the post office is located, surrounded by woods. Frank lives in his new log house and is building a barn.

During my stay we were fortunate in getting a deer, after hunting all day. We were much fatigued on reaching home having carried the 150 pound deer on our backs, a distance of two miles.

I was taken to see the beaver dam. Not more artistically could human hands have built than these beavers. It was my good fortune to see one of the animals at work, a beautiful sight. I am sending you by mail a small piece of a grub which was cut down by the teeth of these animals to build the dam. The grubs of different sizes are cut six to eight feet in length. The larger ones are what to the bottom of the stream and when the river is frozen over the beavers live on the bank. Beavers are very scarce in this country. On roaming further we saw a ragged looking house in the top of a tree which was formerly used by the Indians in hunting deer on the runways. The deer are not as plentiful as in the past. I feasted on venison every meal for I took the humble part of Bridget and had access to the good things.

We spent an enjoyable evening with Martin Heim and family, who formerly lived at Manchester. He is located one and a half miles from Frank.

The friends of Charles Scheffler will be pleased to learn that he has opened a meat market at Chatham and is doing nicely.

Since beginning this letter, this part of the state is now in the clutches of a severe winter with a blizzard raging and business almost at a stand still, sleighing good, about one and a half feet of snow.

THEY PAY.

Canning Factories Pay Elsewhere, Why can't Ours be Made to Pay?

It is too bad that our canning factory is not in the hands of people that will run it and thus furnish not only work for a lot of people at the factory but also pay the farmers well for raising tomatoes, etc.

The Monroe Canning Co. according to the Record-Commercial, is valued at $15 000 and in the last five years has paid well, earning as high as 35 per cent. on the capital invested. From 60 to 100 hands are employed and their goods are sold from San Francisco to New York. The Floral City Co., also of Monroe, has a $20 000 plant and employs 100 hands. They can string beans, corn, apples and sauerkraut, and also make cider vinegar. The business pays well.

These figures ought to convince the stockholders of our canning factory, that if the business is properly managed it will pay.

We have every facility for doing first class job printing, letter heads, envelopes, cards, etc. We have all kinds of paper and card stock, thick and thin, white and colored. For auction bills we have heavy paper if you want it. We want your orders at the ENTERPRISE office.
