SAPHRONIA LAGODNE'S PLIGHT AND CRUEL SUFFERING IN A SWAMP.

A RESPECTABLE FARMER Demented Woman Had Started to Walk to Florida—Story of a Wronged Girl.

Too Cold in Detroit. After a terrible experience during which she had been left to die alone in the freezing atmosphere of a swamp near South Rockwood by the man who had wronged her, Saphronia Lagodne, the demented 32-year-old woman who left Detroit on the 31st to walk to Florida because it is too cold here, was found early in the morning of the 5th lying on the swamp grass, her bare feet submerged ankle deep in water, and her thin clothing drenched with ooze. Her plight was brought about, it is alleged, by a man who had been regarded as a respectable farmer.

The fact that the woman is in a demented state of mind, and has been since her husband deserted her seven years ago, adds to her pitifulness. Once she was a bright woman. After a happy girlhood she married a widower with three children. He left her after living with her two months, and since then has not been seen or heard from. She had to labor for a living, and her sad matrimonial mistake preyed upon and weakened her mind.

The unfortunate woman left home early in the morning as usual with her lunch box, on her way to her work in a box factory. No sooner had she gotten out of sight of home than one of her attacks of dementia came on and she made up her mind that Detroit was too cold for her. She walked to Florida, she took the Lake Shore to Trenton and then struck down what is known as the U. S. turnpike. She frequently retraced her steps to find a dry place to rest. Finally a man drove up and asked her to ride and a short time after overtaking her he was induced as the driver's brother. The three rode, she says, until she thought she would freeze, and then pulled up at a saloon. One of the men went inside and a little later returned with a whisky bottle and asked her if she did not want to drink. She drank several and her brain began to whirl and after more riding she stopped at a shed, where the man unhitched his horse and carried her inside. There they stayed all night.

The next morning, just before noon, the farmer brought out the horse and they started again, a telling her he would take her to his home and give her something to eat and wear. They stopped at some house in which were evidences of children and a woman, but none was seen. She was driven to a place where she was told to get out. "I almost starved, but he kept saying that he would get something for me to eat, and I waited," she explains. "He kept saying that he would get something for me to eat, and I waited."

The victim was given more whisky and again became intoxicated, and then put into the wagon and driven toward the lake. Just how long they drove or where they were, the woman does not know. At last they came to a swamp. They drove in some distance and then the farmer ordered her father where the horses could not go. She was walking ahead and when she turned around her guide had disappeared. The unfortunate woman was found by a fox dog, who brought her to rescue him.

Only Intoxicated. That plain blunt, Anglo-Saxon word, drunk, used for ages to describe a man's condition when he had imbibed too freely is henceforth tabooed in St. Joseph's city council. In its stead will be used the milder Latin word "intoxicated." The chief of police has used the word drunk in his reports, and Aid Wilson said the bluntness of the word "rasped harshly against the nerves," so he made a motion that henceforth the word intoxicated be used in all reports and in all discussions at the council board.

Prisoners in the Flint jail settled the race question when Jack Bradley, colored, arrested on a charge of breaking into a saloon, was given a trouncing by John Olson, alleged horse thief. The total vote on the constitutional amendment relative to convict labor, made known Wednesday night, shows a negative majority vote in Muskegon of 1,350. The fight against the passing of the amendment was centered in that city as well as in Detroit and Grand Rapids, and the result shows a systematic canvass of the labor unions.

OUR OLD FOLKS.

Michigan's Showing of Old Age Ranking From 70 to 110.

Just when a person leaves off being young and qualifies for entrance into the class of old folks is a question too dangerous for detailed discussion. Some authorities put a separating dash after the age of 65, and perhaps this will answer in the absence of any official ruling. Proceeding on the septuagenarian basis, it is to be remarked that the state of Michigan is rich in ancients; the days of the inhabitants of the Wolverine state are long in the land. Michigan must be a mighty healthful place to live in. The report of the last census shows this very enviable record:

Table with columns: Men, Women, 70 to 80 years old, 80 to 90, 90 to 100, Over 100.

From which it will be seen there are more very old women than very old men, and more moderately old men than moderately old women. "Until another claimant shows, Bernard McNally, of Clinton, must be regarded as Michigan's oldest living resident. Mr. McNally, who celebrated last month his 110th birthday, says he would rather base his claim to fame on his ability as a pedro player than as a centenarian. He is acknowledged to be one of the best players of this diverting game in the section. Recently he was one of the guests at a pedro party given by Mrs. Mary Sullivan, and the way he polished up the other contestants was sure proof that the faculties do not always depart with the weight of the century mark."

STATE NEWS BRIEFS. By one majority Clarkson decided to erect a $13,000 school building. Albert Britton, aged 37, died of lockjaw in Battle Creek, following the loss of a finger in a machine on March 19. W. W. Smith, aged 42, and unmarried, employed on a farm near Bath, while walking on the M. C. railroad tracks was struck by a passenger train and killed.

The Decker and Hoppe dams on the Cedar river here blown up by dynamite. Several million feet of logs will be hung up unless repairs are made at once. Dr. P. Duke has sold his interest in the Toledo & Western Electric road, chartered to build from Adrian to Gidwater to the Toledo & Western Electric road. The road has been partially constructed.

The total value of the estate of the late Charles H. Mudgett, of Muskegon, amounts to $6,000,000, an increase of $2,500,000 over last year's accounting, besides disbursements of $3,000,000 have been made. Bay City Y. M. C. A. added $10,000 to the $50,000 raised last year, and will build a standard size natatorium in their new building. They also plan raising more money for the addition of a junior department.

Albert J. Shepard, of Ovid, has discovered a gold vein in his property. He has discovered a gold, silver and copper vein, for which he has received an offer of $250,000 it is said. The body of John Boyle, who disappeared January 22, has been found in Spring Lake. It was thought that Boyle had met with foul play, but his watch, money and several bottles of liquor were found in his pockets.

Henry Mambury, a Michigan General switchman is in Kalamazoo hospital and physician says he is recovering from injuries by being knocked down when he attempted to turn a switch in front of a line of moving cars in the yards. Marshall claims to have the largest postage receipts of any town in the United States in proportion to its size. The receipts for the fiscal year ending March 31 were $84,165.69, an increase of over $10,000 for the previous year. The population is 4,500. It was just twenty-one years ago April 7, 1886, that the worst snow-storm visited Flint. The unusual fall of snow was especially remarkable, inasmuch as on one side of Saginaw street it was seven feet deep, while on the opposite side it was a few inches.

LIFE SAVERS BRING ASHORE CREW OF FOUR-MASTED SCHOONER. Carolina Coast Wreck—Two Women Among Those Hauled to Safety in Greenies' Bury Story of Gulf-port's Foundering.

Norfolk, Va., April 8.—Ten persons, two of whom are women, were rescued from death by Capt. Etheridge and his crew of life savers at the Chesapeake Light Station early Sunday when the four-masted schooner "Lee" was wrecked on the Virginia coast. The schooner was bound from New York to Virginia, S. C. for a cargo, and was swept out of her course by the storm. Shortly after midnight she ran on the beach and was discovered in the breakers by a coast-guard from the Nag's Head station. On account of the high sea no attempt was made to launch the boats. A line was shot over the schooner and the breeches buoy was run out. When the surfmen pulled it in they were surprised to find a young woman as its passenger. She is the daughter of Capt. Fletcher of the wrecked craft. Then one by one the seven members of the schooner's crew were hauled to safety through the seas, and on the last trip Capt. Fletcher came in.

Reports from Nag's Head over the government's coast wires say the schooner is high on the shore, but seemingly in good condition. The schooner "Lee" is a four-masted schooner, built at New York, N. Y., and was captained by Capt. Pierce of Crockett, Miss. She was carrying a cargo of lumber and other goods. She was wrecked on the Virginia coast on Sunday night. The schooner was bound from New York to Virginia, S. C. for a cargo, and was swept out of her course by the storm. Shortly after midnight she ran on the beach and was discovered in the breakers by a coast-guard from the Nag's Head station.

It was shortly after eight o'clock on the morning of Thursday last that the word went around the Bleacher that the vessel had altered her course to head for a wreck which had been sighted, and that a rescue was about to be attempted. Little difficulty attended the work of rescue. The lifeboat, in charge of Chief Officer Beyer, was lowered from the Bleacher and rowed to the wreck. Into this went Capt. Larsen of the bark and 12 members of his crew. There was a large black dog on board. The animal had been injured by a falling spar, and as the boat was already too deeply laden for safety, and it was not thought that the dog could survive its injuries, one of the men killed it, with a belaying pin and threw the body overboard.

ISLE OF PINES IS CUBA'S RULING MADE BY THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

Affirm Decision of Lower Tribunal in Case Arising from Importation of Cigars. Washington, April 9.—That the Isle of Pines is not American territory was officially and judicially declared Monday by the supreme court of the United States. The decision was rendered in the famous case of Edward J. Peary vs. Navada N. Stranahan, collector of the port at New York, and the opinion of the court was announced by Chief Justice Fuller, who said that up to the Paris treaty the Isle of Pines had been considered as an integral part of Cuba and that it could not be held to be covered by article 2 of that treaty which included only islands in the vicinity of Porto Rico.

The case originated in connection with the importation of a few boxes of cigars by Peary in September, 1903, but his hearing by the court was from time to time postponed in the hope that the status of the island might be definitely fixed by legislation or diplomacy. The cigars were made in the Isle of Pines of tobacco grown there and when they arrived Peary refused to pay duty on the ground that they were of domestic origin. The collector thereupon seized them, and Peary appealed to the United States circuit court, where he secured no relief, as the court sustained a demurrer filed by the government and dismissed the case. He promptly brought the case to the supreme court where the decree of the lower court was affirmed.

That a fugitive from justice in the United States who has been extradited from Canada on one charge can not be imprisoned on another charge was decided Monday by the supreme court of the United States in the case of Charles C. Frank, an applicant of habeas corpus. The case arose from a conviction of a man who had been extradited from Canada on one charge and was imprisoned on another charge. The court held that a man who has been extradited from one country to another on one charge can not be imprisoned on another charge.

BELMAS BEGINS HIS POWERFUL APPEAL.

BASES HIS PLEA FOR HARRY K. THAW ON WRITTEN LAW AND SYMPATHY.

Wife's Mother Scored—Bitter Invektive Also Poured Out on Stanford White—Case Likely to Go to Jury Wednesday.

New York, April 9.—The trial of Harry K. Thaw, charged with the murder of Stanford White, is nearing the end. Attorney Delmas M. Delmas, the California advocate Monday afternoon began his closing address to the jury and after he had spoken for more than two hours and a half an adjournment was taken until Tuesday morning. Mr. Delmas expects to conclude before the luncheon hour is reached. District Attorney Jerome will make the closing address of the trial on Wednesday and then, late should he be in the hands of the jury by Wednesday evening.

Justice Fitzgerald Monday ordered the jury locked up until the end of the trial. "In view of this judge's charge to the jury undoubtedly will be delivered immediately after the district attorney concludes. The latter says his speech will occupy not more than three or four hours. Strong Appeal by Delmas. Declaring he would not base his plea upon the "unwritten law," he made an earnest appeal to the sympathy of the jurors, and so far as he progressed Monday the subject of Thaw's insanity at the time he committed the homicide was not even hinted at. Mr. Delmas based his argument solely upon the story of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. With flushed cheeks, but dry eyes, that young woman heard her life history repeated to the men who are to judge her husband, and bowed her head as her mother was denounced in the bitterest terms and tones the eloquent lawyer could command.

Evelyn's Mother Denounced. "Even a beast protests its young," he declared with scornful emphasis, "but this unnatural mother, deserted her daughter in this city of millions to be betrayed by a false friend, and there left the victim of a gray-haired man, wounded, bleeding and devoured." Mr. Delmas went with great detail into the life Evelyn Nesbit had led up to the meeting with Harry Thaw. In all of his remarks he referred to her as "this child," for child he said she was today. He told of Thaw's great love for her and his efforts to rescue her from "the clutches of Stanford White," whose achievements in his profession, the attorney declared were an aggravation of his crime. Mr. Delmas, before beginning his attack upon Evelyn Thaw's mother, poured out a torrent of denunciation upon the architect who became the victim of Thaw's pistol. He accused him of the crime of avarice, and then declared that President Roosevelt had said in a message to congress that such a crime should be visited with death. This was one of the suggestions which Thaw himself made to his counsel for his summing up speech.

Thaw as Agent of Providence. Mr. Delmas declared that God heard the cry of the fated child upon whom Stanford White had fixed his eye and had determined should be his. He quoted from Scripture that "he who smites a fatherless child shall perish," and declared that Providence had sent Thaw to avenge the wrong. The attorney declared that Thaw is his wife's only protector, that he came into her life when she was on the downward path, and told her that no matter what the world thought of her, she was to him an angel. He took her to be his wife, ready to share the burdens that a mother had helped to place upon her daughter. Mr. Delmas accused Mrs. Nesbit of having lived upon the wages of her daughter's ruin. He sought to picture to the jury what he termed the sinister surroundings in which the girl had been reared, and in doing so he mercilessly attacked the mother. He rose to the highest point of his address when he told the jury that the girl's mother was the one who had furnished District Attorney Jerome with the arrows with which to wound the daughter on cross-examination—a cross-examination which he declared would long live in the annals of criminal history, but which left the girl's story unshaken in all its essential details.

Declares Wife's Story True. That Evelyn Nesbit's story was true and was told to Harry Thaw, formed the subject of the argument for more than an hour. Mr. Delmas declared the only evidence the district attorney had to bring against the girl was the "miscellaneous" affidavit procured by Abraham Hummel, speaking of Hummel, Mr. Delmas again drew heavily upon his bitterest invectives and declared that it would require more than the word of a perjured man to send Harry Thaw to an ignominious death. Hummel was accused by Mr. Delmas of having committed a deliberate perjury upon the stand in the present trial when he swore he was not acting as Evelyn Nesbit's counsel.

Washington, April 9.—The president Monday night entertained at dinner in honor of Baron D'Estouffelles de Constant. The other guests were the French ambassador, Dr. Lyman Abbott, Attorney General Bonaparte Postmaster General Meyer, Assistant Secretary Bacon, M. Paul Doumer, of Paris, and Gifford Pinchot, Baron de Constant was an overnight guest at the White House.

Without good blood we cannot be healthy or live long. Plain healthy food, moderate exercise, and a regular habit of taking cod liver oil, make good blood, pastric, candy, and the rich and fatty diets which are considered the masterpiece of cooks are, cause numerous ailments as well as bad blood. It naturally follows that to eat nutritious, wholesome food and breathe pure air would insure good blood. There is another thing to be considered, however, says New York Weekly, and that is the casting out of waste material that renders the blood impure. This is usually performed by the bowels, the kidneys, the skin and the lungs. If, then, we would have pure blood, we must see that these organs do not become inactive or overworked. We must be careful to wear no clothing which in the least interferes with regular breathing. Eat plain but substantial food, use a moderate quantity at regular times, and absolutely nothing between meals—keep the skin active by bathing often, the bowels active by taking freely of pure water, and the bowels active by right food and exercise. Keep a clean conscience and a serene mind, and you will have pure blood, and the ready sign of health will glow in your cheeks.

YOUR RIGHT TO GOOD CLOTHES

It's a man's natural right to wear good clothes. A man's clothes that make him look as well as his best, clothes that make him look his best. And it is his natural right not only to get such clothes, but to get them at proper, low prices.

Only all wool materials find their way into CLOTHCRAFT. No shoddy, no unreliable fabrics are good enough for you or good enough for CLOTHCRAFT. The shrinking of CLOTHCRAFT material is thorough, by the special CLOTHCRAFT process. Every detail of the designing, making and finishing from first to last is what it ought to be to give you satisfaction. Snug collars, flat lapels, modern concealed shoulders, unbreakable fronts are all marks of CLOTHCRAFT quality.

Your own eyes will show you when you come to look—your own experience of their wear will further convince you. But remember the CLOTHCRAFT label—it's your clothing insurance policy.

Bring a copy of the Clothcraft Spring Style Book.

The Reciprocity Meeting

The ladies of the Saturday club, assisted by the superintendent and members of the public school gave a very pleasing and instructive entertainment at the high school room on Saturday afternoon of last week.

A special invitation had been extended to all special teachers in the village and everyone interested in educational work and it was very gratifying to have them respond in such numbers as to fill every seat in the room and overflow into the hall.

The meeting was called to order by Miss Spaulding, president of the Saturday club, followed by a chorus of children's voices. All the lower grades sang during the afternoon session, revealing many sweet voices and reflecting great credit upon their instructor, Miss Agnes Jeffrey.

The second number was a piano duet by Miss Elizabeth Scott and Mabel Spaulding which was finely rendered. There came next a recitation by the Saturday club, followed by a chorus of children's voices. All the lower grades sang during the afternoon session, revealing many sweet voices and reflecting great credit upon their instructor, Miss Agnes Jeffrey.
