The prisoner, under guard of Sheriff Hodgin and two deputies, was brought into court for the argument, and of his counsel both Frank Richardson, of Denver, and Clarence Dar row, of Chicago, pleaded in his behalf. Senator Borah alone snoke in behalf of the state, although James H. Hawles his associate, was in the court room when the proceedings began The discussion, always earnest, was characterized at times by deep feeling and dramatic intensity.

Argument for Defendant. Mr. Richardson, who opened the argument, contended that the indictment was lacking particularity; that it left the defendants in the dark as has been suffering here the past two to the nature of the case to be presented against them, and the defendants were entitled to a more specific showing of the case. He submitted an on April 23 from Minneapolis to de extended brief citing a great number liver a lecture to the students of the of authorities and precedents in favor

Mr: Borah in reply declared that the defense was seeking a disclosure of the proof in the hands of the state rather than more perfect pleadings ted that the reports tained no single authority that would support such a contention

Mr. Darrow, who closed the argu ment, began by saying that it was the purpose of the defense to secure a disclosure of the evidence in. hands of the prosecution, and asked why the defense was not entitled to such a showing. He made a spirited attack upon the attitude of the pros cution towards its witnesses and evidence, describing it as mysterious, un fair and unjust.
