MADE FLAG IN LIBBY PRISON.

Red and Blue Portions Cut from Shirts of Prisoners.

One of the most valued civil war relice in Greater Boston is the old Libby prison flag now in possession of Thomas G. Stevenson post G. A. R. Vine street, Roxbury. It was made in secret by federal soldiers. The story of its making, which was fraught with danger and many obstacles, is a lesson in patriotism.

As the Fourth of July drew near the prisoners wished to find some way of celebrating the day without attracting the attention of their confederate.

Pirally the shutter was forced. After that a pane of glass was cut, and then nothing stood between the burglars and their booty. Five minimus, ten hinutes they worked there indistribunity. Everything was done with business-like precision. Four stout bags stood with yawning mouths ready to receive the swag.

Vidoog looked on the outside of the wall. The streets were deserted. Not a soul was in sight. Had his note miscarried? Would the police fall him. The streets were deserted. Not a soul was in sight. Had his note in such a position he might have a hard time explaining to M. Henry. Presently settle the job, so as to keep him from giving any of us further unexiness.
