ARMY TRAINING CORPS

New Course to Be Established at University of Michigan—Not Compulsory.

A unit of the Students' Army Training Corps will be established at the state university about Oct. 1. This unit has been approved by the War Department and will be in charge of army officers detailed for the purpose.

Men now included in the draft for the first time, who meet the requirements for admission to any of the schools and colleges of the university, are to present their credentials and register in the regular way for work of the next session, which begins Oct. 1. On that date or as soon thereafter as possible, students who are physically fit and who so elect, will be inducted into the S. A. T. C. They will thereupon be under military discipline, will be housed and fed and uniformed and equipped by the government and will receive $30 a month, the regular pay of a private. Their tuition, including all laboratory and other fees, will also be paid by the government. Students are not inducted into the S. A. T. C. unless they so desire. Men subject to draft may continue their university work without military training, while awaiting their call to service.

The program of the corps as arranged, consists of 55 hours of work per week, which includes periods devoted to study, drill and inspection. Thirteen hours are allotted to purely military work, of this 10 being devoted to drill in five two-hour periods, while two hours are devoted to theoretical military instruction and one to inspection. The remaining 42 hours are to be devoted to the academic program, which will make possible an election of 14 hours and allow two hours of study in preparation for each recitation, in addition to the military program.

The student soldiers, while they receive military instruction will be kept under observation and test, to determine their qualifications as officer-candidates and technical experts—such as engineers, chemists or doctors.

SAVE YOUR SEED CORN

Suggestions Furnished by County Agricultural Agent—Don't Overlook Them.

Seed corn to the amount of 12,000 bushels should be selected from the farms of Washtenaw county this fall, in order to provide seed for planting next spring.

Because of the shortage of seed corn last spring hundreds of acres of corn in this county were planted from foreign seed. It has been the experience of growers in every section of the county where foreign seed has been used that it takes several years of careful selection to make such grain adapted to local conditions. Because of the fact that we are located near the northern edge of the corn producing belt, we run considerable risk in depending upon such seed for next year's planting.

Some fields in the county were planted last spring from home grown seed. It is from these that we now should save our supply of seed for next year's crop. In view of a possible shortage next spring, every farmer should save considerable more than enough to supply his own needs. Farmers having a variety of good type which is adapted to local conditions would do well to save all they possibly can in order to help in meeting the demand for seed next spring.

There is an advantage in selecting the earliest maturing ears from the stalks growing in the field. It is not necessary that the corn be perfectly mature before being picked, but corn selected in the glazed stage or even earlier, if properly dried and stored will germinate well in spring, but plants from such seed are apt to be of lower vitality.

As corn comes from the field it should at once be placed on slanted racks, hung on wire racks made from fencing, or on anis driven through inch boards. Seed ears should never be stored in sacks or piled on the floor.

If one row of ears is placed upon another there is danger of mold. Store it so that there will be a perfect circulation of air around it.

Artificial heat should be used with care. A well ventilated attic or room over the kitchen is a good place to cure seed wheat in small amounts. The kitchen may be used. It is risky to hang good seed on a porch or in a building where it will not dry quickly. The freezing weather last fall before the seed was thoroughly dried should be sufficient warning this year.

Field select before frost, keep each ear separate, thoroughly dry with a little artificial heat if necessary provide for good air ventilation, and freeze before drying.

Inquiries regarding saving seed corn or notices of available supplies of good seed should be sent to F. G. Leeson, Manchester, or County Agricultural Agent H. S. Osler, Court House, Ann Arbor.

On the fourth corner of the cross-roads stood the Stagg homestead—a wide, low-roofed house of ancient appearance, yet in good repair. Neatness was the keynote of all about the place.

"Is this where you live, Uncle Joe?" asked Carolyn May breathlessly. "Oh, what a beautiful big place! It seems awful big for me to live in!"

Mr. Stagg had halted at the gate and now looked down upon Carolyn May with perplexed brow. "Well, we've got to see about that first," he muttered. "There's Aunt Rose—"

Carolyn and Prince make the acquaintance of Aunt Rose, and the latter's attitude is not very reassuring to the lonely little girl. Carolyn's first experiences in her new home are told in the next installment.

COST OF BUILDING SMALL

Design Shows Combined Ice and Milk House in Which Dairy Products Can Be Handled to Advantage.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the best authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose three-cent stamp for reply.

An ample supply of ice is of greater economic importance in the country than in the city residence. City people can purchase perishable supplies as needed, but the remoteness of country homes from markets often renders it necessary to use canned, corned or smoked meat products during the season of the year when the table should be supplied with fresh meats. Not only is ice appreciated because of its use in the preservation of fresh meats, butter and other table supplies, but the production of high-grade domestic dairy products is almost impossible without it.

Ice is one of those luxuries which in many sections of the country can be had for the gathering. The cost of harvesting and storing it is not great, as compared with the comfort that it brings.

Since ice at best is a highly perishable product, it is not surprising that the equipment for its storage should be an advantage in locating an ice house. A sturdy structure with a northern exposure has a decided advantage as a location for such a building.

SCARED STIFF

Lieut. Hall Tells How the Soldier Feels When Going Into Battle.

Lieut. Louis Hall, Jr., is back from France where he fought at Chateau Thierry and Soissons. He will join a new division at Camp Meade, Md.

He speaks in great praise of the U. S. Marines who fought so courageously and successfully. "They were fearless, wonderful chaps, and they fought like demons, without thought of themselves, and in three days they had to be taken out. They were terribly cut to pieces, but they had saved the day. The glorious victories make us all too blind to the equally splendid work of the Ninth and Twenty-third United States Infantry. They braved as much, suffered as much and accomplished as much as did the Marines, but of them little has been said. The time will come, however, when the returning soldiers who witnessed the dash and the bravery displayed by the Infantry will bring home stories of their daring that will rival, though it could not surpass, the fighting of the Marines."

Lieut. Hall says that he believes the war is almost at an end, because the Kaiser will consent to a peace treaty rather than allow the allied armies to invade Germany.

In the Soissons offensive, Lieut. Hall's division was relieved by British troops coming from the Palestine campaign and many of the officers had said to him that they had never seen anything that equaled the fighting in France. They had never been up against the Hun before and were simply agast at what it meant.

"These troops had had no experience with mustard gas, had never followed a barrage, knew nothing of what our army had been forced to learn so well," said Lieut. Hall. "But after all, war isn't half so bad as you believe whose only means of knowing it is what you read about it. It's something whose horror diminishes, if you are in the army, the nearer you get to an engagement. Somehow, some way, the soldier gets on through it, and is ready for more. To say he is not afraid is not to be truthful, for he is afraid, or he is not human. No human being can go into that hell of shot and shell without fear, but it is a different kind of fear than one can ever experience in civilian life. He fears, and yet he is enough of a fatalist to believe that he is or he is not coming out of that engagement alive and unharmed. If he believes he is going to die, he is determined to do his best, and he comes out unscathed."

Government Recognizes Value of Newspaper Advertising—Asks Local Patriots to Pay Bill.

Washington.—Newspaper display advertising will be relied on more than ever to sell bonds during the fourth Liberty Bond campaign, which opens Sept. 28.

In full-page and part-page advertisements designed by trained advertising men, the story of Liberty Bonds will be borne home to newspaper readers. The campaign will be one to advertise the war as much as to sell bonds.

The government will not pay the newspapers, but local committees will canvass merchants and business interests in each community to pay for the space.

IT'S A SURE FRIEND

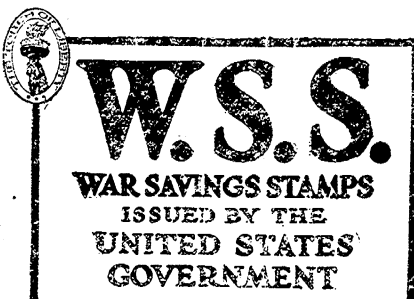

Did you earn that money? Well you worked for it, didn't you? Why can't you put some little piece of it in the bank each pay day, so that some day it can work for you?

You won't always be able to work; even if you are well. Then it will be a fine feeling to have money you banked while you could work, which is now. Bank it.

OUR LIBERTY LOAN QUOTA

Manchester Will Back To The Limit Our Boys Who Are Pushing On to Berlin.

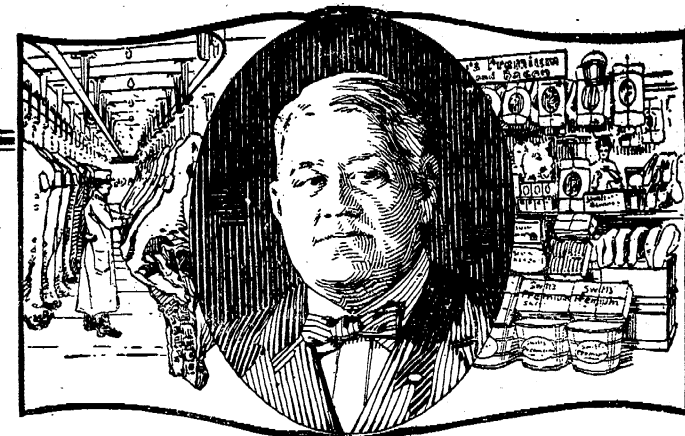

The quota for Manchester for the fourth Liberty Loan has been fixed at $132,300. That is the amount our people are to buy of the total which must be sold if the government is to successfully finance during the next few months, our part in the terrible conflict the Kaiser and his hordes have brought upon the world.

Of course the people of Manchester are going to buy that amount, and the only question is how much more and how quickly are we going to do it.

Manchester people are going at this bond buying proposition in just the same way that our Manchester boys are going at the Heintzes in France. We are not going to wait until the fight is over before we get into it, and we are not going to stop at the fixed objective of $132,300 any more than our boys stop when they reach the first German trench or German machine gun nest.

We are going to put Manchester dollars back of Manchester boys and let them work together so that in the end the world may be a decent place to live in. Our boys are just as good as any boys on earth and we think just as much of them as any community thinks of its boys and we're going to do our share, so that they will be just as proud of their home folks as are any boys. We've got the money, all we have to do is to come forward with it.

The Branch House Man

This is one of the Swift & Company Branch House Men.

They are all pretty much alike in the way they feel toward their work—and that is what this ad is about.

They know that most people couldn't get such good meat promptly and in good condition if it weren't for the branch houses of which they are in charge.

They know that the branch house is one of the most important links in the chain of preparing and distributing meat for a nation.

They know that Swift & Company must have its branch houses run at the highest notch of usefulness; that even a Swift &

Company branch house won't run itself, and that it is up to the branch house man to run it properly.

Any branch house man who doesn't see his work in this light is transferred to some other place with Swift & Company to which he is better adapted.

They are picked men, these branch house men. Every time you sit down to a steak or chop, or cut of roast, you can give a grateful thought to the whole crew of them.

And remember, in a general way, that everything that makes life smoother and more convenient for you, is the result of the thoughtfulness and effort of a lot of people of whom you have never heard.
