HAS HAD LONG TRIP

Soldier Writes Interestingly of His Trip That Has Taken Him Far From Camp Custer.

Lieut. Elbert Lewis, who was born and reared in Manchester, has written interesting letters to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lewis of Ann Arbor, while in the army, from which the Times makes extracts. He says: Stoney Castle Camp, England, August 25, 1918.

Am en route for some point in Russia. During the last few days I received quite a good deal of information about my present move. It is an intensely interesting prospect and I consider myself very lucky indeed. Needless to say it is going to be pretty cold this winter, but in addition to my warm knitted things, I have stocked up as well as possible on warm clothing while in England and am quite well prepared for the severest cold. Am certainly in excellent health and so far have had splendid food, and comfortable sleeping quarters all the time. While at Camp Mills, Long Island, and in England we were in tents. I enjoy living that way immensely, at least in summer time. Our food on the ship this trip is even better than before and sleeping quarters more roomy. Until today I have had no special job on board, and have been making the most of the opportunity by reading, resting and taking it easy in general, after my somewhat strenuous time coming across to England and in camp.

Today, however, I was appointed ship censor, which will keep me busy during the remainder of the trip. As soon as possible will cable you my new address, if it is changed. From information now at hand I may not be so completely out of mail communication as I supposed at first, but it is quite an uncertain proposition. As for me I have not received a word from anyone since I left the States, and I will certainly be delighted and relieved to hear from you all.

Some days later he writes: We are nearing land again and preparing to debark. This has been a wonderful trip in many ways. We have now reached the land of the midnight sun. The sky effects both day and night are beautiful. Of course I have seen the usual sea sights in the course of my trip of 8,000 miles, since leaving the States, such as flying fish, whales, etc.

Guess I had better wish you a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year right now. We sighted land today and expect to land today.

Arriving at Archangel, Russia, he writes on Sept. 10th: Here I am safe and sound and writing you without having heard from you since July sometime. I expect about a bushel of mail when it finally does reach me. Until then I can only hope that everything is going along all right with

COTTON

ITS WASTE AND PROSPECT.

America holds and has long held, a monopoly of the world's cotton production, says Richard Hoadley Tingley. Every year we raise something like 14,000,000 bales and a bale contains on the average 500 pounds of cotton. Every year we export some- thing like 8,000,000 bales to keep the European spindles turning and the balance we use in our own mills. These are peace-time figures, our war production being too erratic to base averages upon.

The bales of cotton we send abroad to our own mills have long been a disgrace. Perfectly good cotton is baled in such an unscientific, haphazard, hit-or-miss way that in its long journeying it often loses all semblance of its original shape and form and becomes a mass of dirty, weather-beaten fibre, greatly depreciated in value. By the time it reaches the mill in Manchester, England, or Fall River, Massachusetts, it is a disgrace, a scandal, a crying imputation upon our boasted efficiency. Who is responsible? Many people; many interests.

Measured by the standard of dollars cotton ranks second in value of all our agricultural products, corn being first. The money value of an average cotton crop is, at war prices now prevailing, something like $2,000,000,000. War cotton is about double the price of peace cotton. But the cotton crop worth $2,000,000,000 or half that amount, it is of sufficient importance to command more the hands of those responsible for raising, harvesting, ginning, compressing, baling, sampling and transporting it to the "heaven where it should be."

Abuses of Perfectly Good Cotton.

Corn, wheat, hay, sugar, tobacco and all other agricultural products are carefully and systematically prepared, inspected, graded and certified in accordance with established rules based on sound, up-to-date business methods. They are so covered as to insure against damage from rough handling, the vicissitudes of weather, and losses by mutilation and theft. The care devoted to the preparation and transportation of these commodities indicates intelligent, progressive and commercial methods; but behind all this is the powerful incentive of competition, an incentive that is lacking in the case of our monopolistic cotton.

The world's cotton crop annually, a demand that is rapidly increasing. Since no real competitor country or group of countries has yet come forward it is apparent that all who want cotton must come to the United States for it, and necessarily compel them to accept our product in such form as it is presented, good, bad or indifferent. If the spinners of Europe could obtain cotton elsewhere in sufficient quantity and of the right quality they would not come here and accept ours, and antiquated methods there is no commodity that enters into the domestic and foreign trade of any country in the world so carelessly prepared and so inadequately covered as our American cotton. In the markets of the world it is prized and execrated for the same reasons; and for its present quantities; execrated for the slovenly condition in which it is presented. This condition is admitted by all.

Annual Waste of $100,000,000.

It is estimated by cotton experts that at least $100,000,000 is annually unnecessarily wasted in one way or another in planting, packing, ginning, sampling, compressing, baling and transporting this product. In nearly every one of the processes which cotton is subjected while on its way from plantation to the mill there is a remedy that might be applied to eliminate the present unnecessary waste; there is an approved process that could be installed there at an economic method of handling that could be adopted. Nearly all of these are well known and proven, and would if applied, help greatly in cutting down this $100,000,000 waste that is going on every year; a waste equal to nearly six per cent of the present abnormal value of the crop; a waste nearly equal to 13 per cent of the normal value of a year's crop.

Distinct and separate losses are sustained in the mutilation of the fibre in the operation of ginning and compressing; in exposing the raw cotton to the elements; in dragging, in nearly every one of the processes which cotton is subjected while on its way from plantation to the mill there is a remedy that might be applied to eliminate the present unnecessary waste; there is an approved process that could be installed there at an economic method of handling that could be adopted. Nearly all of these are well known and proven, and would if applied, help greatly in cutting down this $100,000,000 waste that is going on every year; a waste equal to nearly six per cent of the present abnormal value of the crop; a waste nearly equal to 13 per cent of the normal value of a year's crop.

War Brings Interests Together. But war is bringing the cotton interests together. The various associations of cotton manufacturers, the ginners, the compress men, warehousemen, growers, transportation men are all getting together now. They are sitting down quite amicably with their legs under the table with the Railroad War Board, the Federal Shipping Board, the Department of Commerce and other government departments. They are formulating plans to take the cotton industry out of the ranks of the unscientific, the uneconomic, and place it in the ranks of the scientific, the economic, the up-to-date. It has taken a generation to bring about even a spirit of co-operation, but war and the exigencies of war are doing what the exigencies of commerce and business could not do. If something like this does not happen it is only a question of time when the American bale will kill itself. But our cotton industry is too well established to be overthrown so long as we observe the ordinary rules of good business and we refrain from angering our best customers, the European and American spinners, with our damaged products.

ECONOMY STILL NEEDED.

Over Three Times Pre-War Shipments Required—Situation in Wheat and Fats Proves Government's Policy Sound.

With the guns in Europe silenced, we have now to consider a new world food situation. But there can be no hope that the volume of our exports can be lightened to the slightest degree with the cessation of hostilities. Millions of people liberated from the Prussian yoke are now depending upon us for the food which will keep them from starvation.

With food the United States made it possible for the forces of democracy to hold out to victory. To insure democracy in the world, we must continue to live simply in order that we may supply these liberated nations of Europe with food. Hunger among a people inevitably breeds anarchy. American food must complete the work of making the world safe for democracy.

Return to Normal Bread.

With the enlarged wheat crops which American farmers have grown, and the supplies of Australia, the Argentine and other markets now accessible to shipping, there are bread grains enough to enable the nations to return to their normal wheat loaf, provided we continue to mill flour at a high percentage of extraction and maintain economy in eating and the avoidance of waste.

In the matter of beef, the world's supplies are limited to the capacity of the available refrigerating ships. The supplies of beef in Australia, the Argentine and the United States are sufficient to load these ships. There will be a shortage in the importing countries, but we cannot hope to expand exports materially for the next months in view of the bottle neck in transportation.

We will have a sufficient supply of sugar to allow normal consumption in this country if the other nations retain their present short rations or increase them only slightly. For the countries of Europe, however, to increase their present rations to a material extent will necessitate our sharing a part of our own supplies with them.

Twenty Million Tons of Food. Of the world total, North America will furnish more than 60 per cent. The United States, including the West Indies, will be called upon to furnish 20,000,000 tons of food of all kinds as compared with our pre-war exports of about 6,000,000 tons.

ANOTHER BOND SALE

American People Will Be Called Upon to Purchase New Issue in January.

The war is over; peace reigns on earth. But in Europe today there are more than 2,000,000 American soldiers, who took and important part in bringing the war to a victorious end, and these men must be fed and clothed for a long time to come. It is estimated by the War Department that the cost of equipping and maintaining an American soldier in Europe is $425.27 a year.

The American army was transported to France at the rate of 250,000 men a month by giving them first call on the shipping facilities of the United States. If they could be brought back to their homes as speedily—and it is doubtful that they could—would require at least eight months. It is obvious therefore, that we must continue to raise money with which to maintain our army abroad.

DOES THE HORSE LIE DOWN?

One occasionally sees the statement that horses seldom if ever lie down. That there are horses whose caretakers have never seen them resting in that way we do not question, because we have heard it from stablemen who have carefully observed them. But no one who knows anything about horses, and who has seen them stretched out at full length in pastures and in their stalls, and who has noticed the unmistakable evidences on the horses themselves in the morning of having lain down, will credit the assertion. Many a horse is doubtless too sensible to lie down on a rough, filthy, unbedded floor, but give him a comfortable, well-bedded stall, and not only will he lie down, but he will lie down for many years of usefulness because of more perfect rest thus obtained.

LEaving money to the government on earth, at a good rate of interest, isn't charity. It's a mighty fine financial opportunity.

"We are going to have to finance peace for awhile," said Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, "just as we have had to finance war." And that means that the American people, having supported four Liberty Loans with a patriotism which future historians will surely extol, are to be vouchsafed an opportunity to support our victorious peace. There will certainly be at least one more government loan. There will probably be two more and possibly three. At any rate, the next loan must be prepared for and its success made certain. Get ready now to buy more bonds.

Kill Germs and Save Human Life

The menace of militarism, the horrors of war and the toll of death taken in all frightful accidents is as nothing compared to the danger of unseen deadly germs.

Even in war itself the toll of human life taken outright by the whizzing bullet, the bursting shrapnel, or the piercing steel is less than that caused by the unseen deadly germs that attack the wounded and the well alike.

Human life will be lengthened and human happiness increased when we learn better to guard ourselves against the danger of the ever present germs of disease.

Powdered boric is one of Nature's most wonderful gifts to man, for it enables us, through antiseptics, to ward off the danger of infection.

Owing to its wonderful antiseptic properties it cannot be too highly recommended for liberal use in the care of the person wherever and whenever exposed to the germs of disease.

Pure powdered boric may be used with absolute freedom and safety in all the natural cavities of the body. To realize how healing it is, yet how safe, we have but to recall that the physician almost always prescribes it as the principal ingredient of an eye water.

The manufacture of powdered boric has been brought to such a high degree of efficiency by one concern that if we always remember to specify "20 Mule Team Powdered Boric" we know that we have the real article in full strength.

On every package of 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric will be found directions for its multitude of uses and the expense is so little that no one should ever be without it.

A solution of 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric in water makes an absolute and positive antiseptic for all personal use. It is excellent for a shampoo, for it kills the germ which makes the dandruff that spoils the lustre of the hair and causes it to fall out and cease to grow.

It should be used as a mouth wash on account of its antiseptic qualities whenever there is the slightest danger of having been exposed by being brought in contact with persons suffering with colds, sore throats, etc.

To overcome the unpleasant effect consequent upon excessive perspiration the use of 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric will give great satisfaction, making everything sweet and clean and healing any abrasion that may have occurred.

A hot foot bath with a liberal quantity of 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric will make the feet feel ten years younger.

For the baby a liberal dosing with 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric not only assures freedom from chafing but helps to maintain an antiseptically clean condition on the little body.

To any out or abrasion 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric should be freely applied.

20 Mule Team Powdered Boric is a ice to germ life.

It should be on the dressing table of every dainty woman and liberally used in every household where health is prized.

Authorized representative will soon call at your home and make arrangements for you to obtain, FREE, a full size package of 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric from any of the following druggists:

There appears to be fear lest the boys who return from the war will not be given their old jobs back, or others now filled by stay-at-home men. We do not think there is much doubt that the boys who have returned will be treated fairly.

During the late gasless Sundays we saw a good many farmers drive to church in their horse-drawn vehicles. In several instances they were assured that they enjoyed the change.

The boys are arriving home from war, some from camps and some from France. Shiploads and some from France. Shiploads and some from France.

If the American fighting spirit was a surprise to England and France, and fairly took Germany's breath away, what an eye opener will our after war work prove. America is awake now.

I will tell no nonsense from the American people after the war was a surprise to England and France, and fairly took Germany's breath away.

CHAPTER XII. —12— Something Carolyn May Wish to Know. Carolyn May was filled with trouble. This was the result of her first talk with the old sailor. Not from him, nor from anybody else, did Carolyn May get any direct information. It was the sailor had aboard the Duranven on her fatal voyage. But his story took in the child's brain and longings, uncertainties and desires that had lain dormant for many weeks.

An International Service Built on Tiny Profits Per Pound

Some industries have been able to get in step with war demands more quickly than others.

In many cases mighty plants have sprung up—but at a prodigious cost. The packing industry was able to adapt itself to unheard-of demands more quickly, perhaps, than any other industry.

Not by making vast inroads into the capital wealth of the country, but largely by using, from year to year, a portion of the profits, to provide for expansion.

Swift & Company's profits have always been so tiny, compared with sales, that they had practically no effect on the net (amounting to only a fraction of a cent per pound).

And yet the owners of the business have been content with reasonable returns on their capital, and have been able, year after year, to put part of the profits back into the business to provide for its expansion.

Could any other method of financing a vital industry involve less hardship to the people of the country? Could there be a better instance of true "profit-sharing" than this return in added usefulness and in national preparedness?

Carolyn of the Corners BY RUTH BELMORE ENDICOTT

"Comin' back from drowin' is a whole lot worse than bein' drowed. You take it from me." "Well," sighed Carolyn May, "I'm glad to know that. It's bothered me a good deal. If my mamma and papa had to be dead, maybe that was the nicest way for them to go."

Since Joseph Stagg had returned to the rambling tale of the sailor regarding the sinking of the Duranven, he had borne the face of his sister and her husband much in mind. He had come no nearer to deciding what to do with the apartment in New York and its furnishings.

Mr. Stagg plunged into the little house, head down and belting. "Where's that plighted boy?" he demanded. "Don't tell me he's taken and run away with her. Carry out on the case!" "But—" "What if I did? I didn't know 'twas going to snow like this, did I?"

"Where's That Plighted Boy?" Carolyn May was delighted. Although the sky was overcast and a storm threatening when they got down to the ice, neither the boy nor the girl gave the weather a second thought.

Princess Anthony likes his job at the rate. He is and has been in Detroit were at home Thursday night. Mrs. Mary Wallace and Mr. Stagg were guests of the party.

CHAPTER XIII. The Chapel Hill. If Joseph Stagg had obeyed the precept of his little piece of the parchment after and had been "looking up" instead of having his note in the pocket, he would have discovered the coming storm in season to withdraw his permission to Carolyn to take Carolyn May out on the ice.

THE JOY OF MOTHERHOOD

Elizabeth, Wash.—"After I was married I was not a very happy woman and a good deal of the time was not able to go about. Our greatest grief was to have a child in our home and one day my husband came back from town with a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and wanted me to try it. It brought relief from my troubles. I improved in health so I could do my housework; we now have a little one, all of which I owe to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Stagnation. "I have taken Dr. Pierce's Female Regulator and have done me much good. It is a total relief. I feel like a new woman. I have never felt like this before. I have never taken any medicine like this. I have never felt like this before. I have never taken any medicine like this. I have never felt like this before."

THE NEW RESPONSIBILITY

Oh, we've got to pull together when the work of war is done

For the truth that is triumphant and the peace that we have won;

We may let down just a little from the striving and the strain

But as soon as we have rested we must go to work again.

Oh, we've got to pull together for the bigger, better day;

There are problems grave before us, there are doubts to clear away;

We have fought for right and justice, now we've got to make it plain

By the manner of our living that we have not fought in vain.

We have triumphed o'er the tyrant, we have made his cannons cease,

We have fought for human freedom and a just and righteous peace;

But our tasks are uncompleted, we must prove by all we are

That we served no selfish purpose when we sent our boys afar.

We have sacrificed for freedom, side by side to death we've stood,

Now we still must stand together for our nation's greater good.

There are many tasks before us, we shall all be sorely tried;

We must live the peace of justice for which every soldier died. (Copyright 1918 by Edgar A. Guest)

The American people have shown that they can meet any necessary requirements of food saving, and have not yet returned to old methods of living. There will be a great demand for food to feed Europe and if we do not meet it we will show our love for our fellow man. Besides the humane feature there is the commercial side. The high prices paid will afford a good profit.

Alien enemy property is learning the meaning of "benevolent assimilation."

Editor Enterprise: Having a little time this afternoon, thought I would drop you a few lines. I am now cooking for 240 soldiers and have to work every other day from 4:00 in the morning until 7:00 or 7:30 at night.

The people in this locality make lots of wine; grapes are about all they raise and there is a lot of the fruit yet to be picked out two nights and helped some folks make wine. Everyone works here; most all are old folks and children.

The nights are quite cold but the days are warm and nice. We have good beds here and all we want to eat. Tonight for supper we had beef stew, cabbage salad, bread and butter and coffee.

I am well and feeling fine, and I send best regards to everybody. PVT. HERBERT P. LAMMING. Training Camp for DeGassing Unit H. G. S. O. S., Am. P. O. 717, Am. Exp. Forces.

All summer the contractors have been working on the Washtenaw extension of the Detroit-Michigan-Chicago concrete highway and on Tuesday it was finished to the Ypsilanti city limits and was opened to the public. The Record says: The road is now finished to the east city limits and it is expected that it will be open in a few days for travel as far as the Harris corners, where a short detour will be made, coming into the city over Cross street or Forest avenue for westbound travel and east-bound will make a short detour to the south. Next spring there will be two and one-half miles built west of Ann Arbor, and with two miles built there this spring, will leave only about 12 miles to build through Lima and Sylvan townships, to connect up with the Jackson end.
