Governor Sidetracks Rapid Transit Measure As Being Unconstitutional.

Governor Alex J. Groesbeck who pull- also. ed the switch turning the Detroit commission's enabling bill off the legislative right of way and back into committee.

The transit commission's bill was this session of the legislature. Twice it has been sent back to committee and amended to conform to ideas of manufactures and business interests of Detroit. It was apparently acceptable to everybody interested, but the governor decided it was unconstitutional. He declared that ig it came to him in its present form he would veto it. Its present form it fundamentally the same as the enabling act of 1923, which he signed.

No Vote Reform In Prospect

Governor Alex J. Groesbeck's opposition to any type of primary election reform, to party enrollment and to the pre-primary convention has made itself known. The hopeless election law tangle, which has only increased since the beginning of the session, reached a point where it is about certain no reforming legislation will be passed.

The senate passed the Wood election law bill on third reading. The bill passed, however, is not the Wood bill which was introduced, but a mere codification of the existing law. Still bearing Wood's name, but with all its party enrollment and election of delegates' teeth neatly drawn, the bill was brought out of the committee, passed on general orders, put on its immedtate passage under suspension of the rules and shot through the senate.

House Wants Poet Laureate

The house of representatives has expressed a desire to honor Edgar A. Guest, whose verse has won him national renown.

U. of M. Denied Buildings

The University of Michigan appropriation biil, calling for an expenditure of $3,192,700, was reported out of has been paid, under protest, by Mrs. the House University committee without amendment. But, it is reported authoritatively, the Governor and House leaders have agreed to grant the university nothing in the way of Ford Motor company. Several other funds for new buildings except $900,-000 for the proposed museum.

School Fund Amendments Lose

The members of the House who want the richer counties of the state the payment. to contribute toward the upkeep of schools in the needy counties, fought off two amendments to the Bohn Primary School Fund Bill, and sent it sailing on its way to a third reading. Wayne county will lose $300,000 of its annual school funds if the bill becomes a law.

Sanitarium Bill Slashed

One of the bills passed by the House of Representatives would appropriate $69,000 for the State Sanitarium at Howell. Originally this bill called for an appropriation of $770,000, but the members of the Ways and Means Committee, with their eyes on the $14,500,000 mark set by Gov. Alex. J. Groesbeck, had used their sharp axe.

Goldfish Balk Robbers

Mrs. Mary Gaglina, 1216 Clark street, Pittsburgh, used her bowl of goldfish to foil a robbery, and did it successfully. Awakened by noises below during the night, she peered out of an upper window and saw two men trying to force their entrance through the kitchen door. The large bowl of goldfish standing nearby offered itself, and she dropped the bowl, fish and all, on the heads of the prowlers with the result that they fled hurriedly.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

PROPER COOKING OF FISH IS IMPORTANT

Doctor McCollum of Johns Hopkins discusses the importance of fish in our diet and gives some points as to proper preparation. In introducing some recipes, he says:

"The ways in which you should cook fish depend upon the kind of fish they are. Oily or 'fat' fish should not be cooked in fat. Fat fish, such as salmon and mackerel, are best when baked or broiled. On the other hand, white or 'lean' fish, such as cod, halibut and haddock, may be fried or sauted, since they are dryer. When you cook fish in water, as boiling, you will find them better if they are served with rich sauces. If you bake them, they should be basted and frequently larded. "Steaming fish is perhaps better than boiling, since it does not take away as much of the delicate flavor or nutriment as boiling does. After the fish is thoroughly clean, wrap it in a piece of gauze or cheesecloth, place it in the steamer and steam until tender. When done, remove the cloth and place the fish on the platter. Steamed fish is better with a sauce."-McCall's

Lenin's tomb is a temporary structure built of wood, somewhat Egyptian about its broad, squat base and walls that taper up in conical slant.

It has neither the whiteness nor the dignity that we are accustomed to associate with the mausoleum of a great national figure, writes Fanny Hurst, in McCall's, and yet somehow, some way, there is a strange brooding beauty about this small wooden tomb, set out in the cobblestone aridity of Red square. #### EXTREMES OF LIFE IN AIR AND OCEAN

The condor of the Andes has been observed soaring at tremendous heights above peaks themselves exceeding 20,-000 feet. Naturalists say the condor can fly at an altitude of five miles above sea level. To go to the other extreme, it is known that life exists in the greatest depths of the ocean. It is said that the blackest, coldest and remotest abysses are tenanted by fish of the strangest of shapes and by colossal cephalopods.

Ocean, earth, and the lower portions of the atmosphere form layers of strata of life. Of the lowest layer least has been learned, yet it is known that creatures which dwell in the depths are specially made to withstand the tremendous pressures, and are provided with luminous appendages so that they may be visible to one another.—Grit.

Poultry and Swine Tuberculosis Cure

Infected Fowls and Animals Were Disposed of.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

With the widening knowledge concerning the nature of tuberculosis, live stock owners are rapidly putting methods of eradication into practical use. The close relationship between fowl and swine tuberculosis is illustrated by a recent occurrence in Michigan. The facts were obtained by 'the Michigan Agricultural college in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture.

A shipment of hogs from a certain farm proved to be badly infected with tuberculosis. An inspector who visited the farm applied the tuberculin test to the remaining hogs and found practically all of them tuberculosis. He also found the chicken flock on the farm badly affected. Acting on the inspector's advice, the owner disposed of the entire flock of chickens, restocking with day-old chicks in the spring. Meanwhile he had also disposed of the tuberculous hogs and cleaned and disinfected the premises, especially the poultry buildings and yards.

After a period of time the owner sold 32 hogs which went to the same market as before. A report covering the postmorten examination of 27 of these animals showed that none was infected. With the source of infection gone the introduction of healthy stock naturally resulted in continued freedom from the disease.

New Pest of Bees Found

in a Maryland County

A new pest of bees, Braula coeca Nitzch, popularly called the bee-louse, has been found present in considerable numbers in Carroll county, Maryland, and in a few other places in the United States. It is undoubtedly imported from Europe with queen bees, and while it is not, so far, to be regarded as a serious menace, beekeepers will do well to take steps to eradicate it from their colonies when discovered Braula is not a true parasite, according to the bureau of entomology, but it is capable of weakening a bee colony by taking its food and by tormenting the queen bee. It lives on the honey carried by the bees, not on their blood, as was at one time supposed. It is found singly on the workers, and in numbers on the queen bee, but seldom on drones.

United States Department of Agriculture Circular 334, "The Bee Louse, Braula Coeca, in the United States,' by E. F. Phillips, apiculturist, contains a description of the species, its distribution, feeding habits and methods of control. This circular may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Rotation Will Cut Loss

Due to Soil Erosion Prof. M. F. Miller, head of the department of soils, college of agriculture of the University of Missouri, presented interesting figures on losses due to soil erosion in a talk made at the annual meeting of the Kansas Crop Improvement association at the Kansas State Agricultural college. Professor Miller and his associates in the Missouri agricultural experiment station have found that on an average Missouri soil having a slope of about 31/2 per cent, the entire surface soil to a depth of 7 inches would be lost in 50 years of continuous cultivation of corn, in about 150 years under continuous wheat culture, and in about 250 years in fields rotated to corn, wheat, and oats. Sod land, that is, land in permanent pasture or native sod, would require 3,400 years for the same loss to take place, according to the Missouri-

Improving Live Stock Breeding

Reports and Comments From Stockmen in Various Parts of Country.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An unusual amount of sound counsel on questions of live stock breeding is contained in recent reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture from stockmen throughout the country. The reports and comments were invited by a questionnaire on methods of improving farm live stock. The following terse statements seem suitable for consideration by farmers seeking to improve their herds and flocks:

The choice of a herd sire will likely make or break you in the dairy game. If you pick a good one, the price you pay is of little consequence; if you pick a poor one, you will pay too much even if you get him for nothing."

Terse Statements.

"Pure breds are better sellers and make more meat for the amount of feed and length of time.'

"When young, untested stock is sold, the breeder should keep in touch with the purchaser, so that if the stock does not turn out as it should through no fault of the purchaser, the breeder can make the deal right. It pays directly and indirectly, aside from the fact that it is the fair way to do." "Preach individuals first and pedigrees second."

"None but high-producing cows are profitable and the use of pure bred sires is the shortest road." High Utility Value.

detailed report to which the foregoing comments were incidental shows briefly that pure bred live stock has high utility value from a production and market standpoint, and that it costs but little more to produce highclass animals than the ordinary kind. The investment and other factors which appear sometimes to increase production costs are offset by early maturity and other important savings due to improved breeding.

How to Get Most Value

From a Good Male Bird

The male is more than half the poultry flock. An inferior hen will produce poor chicks from only her own eggs, but an inferior male will produce inferior chicks from all eggs laid by every hen in the pen, says D. J.  $Tay_T$ lor, poultry specialist, Kansas State Agricultural college.

The selection of a male to head a flock of pullets requires a knowledge of what his ancestors did in egg production.' He should be a good standard-bred male from a high-producing family. It is preferable to select a male whose mother, grandmother, great-grandmothers and older ancestors have been trapnested and have shown a high percentage of yearly egg production records of over 200 eggs. A male having consistently high records in all ancestors with high-producing sisters is better than a male with a much higher record mother, but records of sisters and others poorer, according to Taylor.

Look to the male bird to furnish a higher degree of excellence than the females. Any improvement is largely the result of his superior qualities. Only one male need be kept to each ten or fifteen hens.

Good Silage Keeps Well

When It Is Transferred That good silage can be successfully transferred to another silo if necessary was proved at the Ohio experiment station as an outcome of a fire which burned a large live-stock barn and two wooden silos in connection with it, leaving the silage unprotected. The silage thus exposed was transferred to empty and partially filled silos, being blown into them through a silage cutter. Three men in the silo did a thorough job of tramping.

In filling one of the silos water was added at the rate of one pound to every thirteen pounds of silage; no water was added to the silage in the other. The silage from both silos which has since been fed, was of excellent quality.

It appears from observing these tests that, if the original silage was put up in good condition, that is, not too mature or dry, it may be trans ferred without additional water to an other silo when occasion demands.

Best Feed for Pullets

Pullets at Cornell University college of agriculture lay best when fed three parts of hard grain to two parts of mash by weight. It is very necessary to feed green food in some form, such as sprouted oats, beets or cabbage. A small amount of milk is a valuable addition to the ration, and helps to keep the birds in good condition. The birds should never be starved, but on the other hand they should be hungry at feeding time

The secret of long and continuous laying with a well-bred flock is to keep the birds always reasonably fat.

Geese Thrive on Grass Geese will thrive on almost any kind of pasture grass that a cow will eat An orchard in clover sod makes an ideal range. Any meadow composed of red clover and alsike mixed, will make a good pasture for geese. If you have low land pasture it is probably abundantly seeded by nature with the grasses that thrive on such soil and that will be good for geese.

Famous Forts in U. S. History

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(@. 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

A Fort That Once Was a Territorial Capital

Among the military posts established by the federal government, Fort Whipple in Arizona is one of the few that can boast of having been a center of civil as well as military government and that it once served the state in which it stands as a territorial capital. It was built in 1863 near Granite creek by Maj. E. B. Willis of Col. James H. Carleton's famous "California column" and it was established there to help hold the southwest for the Union after Carleton had driven the Confederates out. It was named in honor of Brig. Gen. Amiel Weeks Whipple, who in his youthful military career had explored a part of the wilderness of Arizona before the Civil war and who lost his life at the battle of Chancellorsville.

In January, 1864, John N. Goodwin, governor of the newly-created territory of Arizona, arrived at Fort Whipple and immediately designated it as the temporary capital. In May the fort was moved about 20 miles southwest to its present location and by July there had sprung up near it a thriving little town which was named Prescott in honor of the distinguished historian. During the following years there was a spirited rivalry between Prescott and Tucson for the honor of being capital of Arizona. Eventually both lost out to Phoenix, but for a long time Prescott seemed to have the better claim, partly because of its nearness to Fort Whipple, the center of military affairs in the territory.

In 1869 Fort Whipple was made headquarters of the military department of Arizona and Southern California and there in 1872 came Gen. George Crook to subdue the hostile Apaches who had terrorized the southwest from the days of the earliest white occupancy. Fort Whipple at that time was described by one of Crook's officers as "a ramshackle, tumbled-down palisade of unbarked pine logs hewn from the adjacent forest slopes, which was supposed to 'command' something—exactly what it is not known for it was so dilapidated that every time the wind blew we were afraid it was doomed."

Unimpressive as the old fort was, however, it deserves a place in history if for no other reason than that it was the base of operations of campaigns against the Crook's Apaches, as brilliant an achievement as any in the annals of the American army, which brought a greater period of peace to the harried border than it had known for centuries. Today Fort Whipple is only one of a number of posts, which the war department maintains in the west, whose glory lies in the past when the red man rode the war trail against the

"He Who Finds Gold Dies in the Almshouse'

He was a Swiss adventurer, born in Germany, schooled in the French army and a member of a band of trappers who crossed the western plains to California in 1838. There the Spanish governor Juan Alvaredo, made him a general and presented him with 11 square leagues of land upon which he built, at the junction of the American river and the Sacramento, a fort which he named Fort New Helvetia.

With an army of 50 men as a garrison, he dwelt here in feudal state, ruling over thousands of Indians who cultivated his broad acres of wheat, tended his vineyards or cared for his herds of 12,000 cattle, 10,000 sheep and 2,000 horses and mules. Governor Micheltorean, Alvaredo's successor, presented him with an additional 11 square leagues of land and so Gen. John A. Sutter was truly a "monarch of all he surveyed."

Then on January 24, 1848, Capt. James W. Marshall, employed by Sutter to build a sawmill at Coloma up the American river, found in the sands some shining particles. He told Sutter about it and although they tried to keep secret the discovery of gold, the news leaked out. One day in May a man walked down the streets of San Francisco holding aloft a bottle of shining dust and shouting, "Gold! Gold! Gold from the American river!"

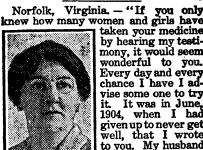

The news depopulated San Francisco. Sailors deserted their ships in the harbor. A tide of gold-mad humanity surged around Fort New Helvetia or Fort Sacramento, as it was also called. The Swiss "king's" stores were looted by reckless adventurers who soon followed the first argonauts; his live stock was stolen; his lands were overrun by squatters.

"He who finds gold will die in the almshouse." So runs an old Spanish proverb. Gen. John A. Sutter learned the bitter truth of that. California became a part of the United States and the titles given by the Spanish governors were no longer recognized. He appealed to the United States courts for recompense and justice. For awhile he was given a monthly pension of $250 but relinquished this bounty after receiving it 14 years. Embittered and poverty-stricken he went east and settled in the little town of Lititz, Pa. There he died in 1880.

Fort New Helvetia, Sutter's Fort, is now the city of Sacramento, the capital of California.

Soviet Admits Persecution of Private Trade Nearly Brought Ruin.

Moscow.-Far-reaching decisions affecting the future economic policy of Russia were taken by the council of labor and defense. Finding complete government control of trade and industry was a failure, the council meeting, of which Leo Kameneff, acting premier, was chairman, decided to invite private capitalists to enter trade.

Present restrictions regarding the sale of goods to private concerns by state trusts and co-operative organizations will be removed and taxes on private traders greatly reduced. In introducing these reforms, which are considered the most important since the late Premier Nikolai Lenin inaugurated the so-called new economic policy, M. Kameneff said:

"At the present juncture the 'trade desert' which exists in certain regions of the Soviet union is more harmful and dangerous to the economic structure of the socialistic state than private capitalists."

It was on the initiative of the supreme ec nomic council that the new reforms are being introduced. It is admitted now that the drastic campaign which was waged against private trade virtually ruined Russia's internal trade, bringing the country to the verge of economic crisis. M. Dzerjinsky, head of the supreme economic council, was more outspoken in condemnation of the present attitude toward private trade than was Kame-

"The great aims before the government." said M. Dzerjinski, "force us to admit that our previous economic policy was a mistaken one. Our source of strength is in the very fact that we are not afraid to admit our defects."

Wasnington.-Reorganization plans n the Treasury department announced here foretell a plan for vigorous enforcement of the prohibition laws directly under the control of the new assistant secretary of the treasury, Lincoln C. Andrews, who took the oath of office succeeding Eliot Wadsworth, resigned.

Assistant Secretary Andrews, for thirty years an army officer with world-wide experience as a disciplinarian and organizer, is placed in charge of customs, the coast guard and the prohibition unit.

The arrangement, grouping the three divisions of the treasury which have the most to do with prohibition enforcement under one head, practically separate prohibition unit within the Treasury department itself, and presages, according to administration officials, a drastic campaign against smugglers and big bootleggers.

The internal revenue bureau, which has control of the prohibition unit under the law, will still retain, control, with Commissioner Blair at its head and with Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Moss its direct sponsor in the treasury organization. But this branch will deal only with legal phases of the prohibition unit and that portion of its affairs which comes strictly under internal revenue classification.

JUDGE ENDS GISH TRIAL; HITS DUELL

Motion-Picture Producer Is Held on Charge of Perjury in New York.

New York .- The suit of Charles H. Duell, motion-picture producer, to make Lillian Gish act only for him ended with dramatic suddenness when Judge Julian W. Mack dismissed the application for an injunction and held Duell in $10,000 on a charge of perjury.

Within fifteen minutes after the judge had ascended to the bench the case had been dismissed, Duell had been told that instead of being the accuser he should have been the accused, and then he was charged with perjury, threatened with disbarment (he is a lawyer), forbidden forever from appearing in the Federal court, held in $10,000 bail for the action of the grand jury, and finally paroled in the custody of his brother, Holland Duell, who is his counsel.

Stunned at the suddenness and the severity of his misfortune, Duell left court without a word. Later he issued a statement in which he described himself as "the world's worst witness," and he gave out copies of letters and radio messages said to be from Miss Gish and her mother and her relatives to show that he and the screen star vere actually engaged to marry.

Miss Gish could not be reached at her hotel, and at the offices of her lawyers it was stated that they were "out." All had insisted that no engagement existed. Duell had to sit dazed while Judge Mack excoriated him for imposing upon Miss Gish, for tricking her into signing away various contract rights at large monetary loss, and for being himself guilty of breach of contract. The judge concluded:

"In fact, in twenty-two years of judicial experience it has not been my fortune or misfortune to have had before me, with possibly one exception, any case of more flagrant, outrageous breach of trust and overreaching than has been shown on the plaintiff's own testimony in this case."

Osborne Wood Back Home; Regrets Acts Hurt Father

Tampa, Fla.—Osborne Wood came back to his native land to "start all over again."

As for being "broke," however, a junior officer on board the federal shipping board vessel West Chetac, which brought Wood back from Spain, said the former army lieutenant was "loaded with money.'

"It is true that during the four months in Europe I threw away a large portion of the winnings on Wall street in gambling resorts," the son of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, governor of the Philippines, said. "But I still have plenty-enough not to worry."

Wood said that in all probability he would leave at once for California. "There is nothing to the report that gave worthless checks," Wood said.

"I regret what I did because of my Ends Life With Bullet father. He is the finest chap in the Warrenville, Ill.—With a revolver in world. I regret only the unpleasant both hands to make sure of steadiness, notoriety which might reflect on him. proper word for enough to keep his money."

Fake Stock Bill Signed by New York Governor

Albany, N. Y .- The "teeth" were put into the Martin act when Governor Smith signed the Webb bill amending the stock transactions law by giving the attorney general increased powers to detect and prosecute fraudulent financial transactions.

Without waiting for a hearing, the governor accepted the bill, which was drafted by Attorney General Ottinger to enable him to carry out his program of cleaning up the state so far as fake securities are concerned.

The measure requires all promoters of stock and bond issues to file advance notices of issues with the attorney general. This gives the attorney general's office a chance to check up on the value of the securities before any are sold.

Jean De Reszke, World Famous Tenor, Is Dead

Nice, France.-Jean de Reszke, considered one of the greatest tenors in the annals of the operatic stage, died at his villa here after a short illness. Death was due to complications following an attack of influenza.

Secretary of War Weeks Ill; May Be Forced to Quit

Washington.-As the result of an attack of thrombosis suffered two days after he had returned from a vacation trip, Secretary of War Weeks may be for Cook's astounding career, and also compelled to leave the cabinet within the near future.

First knowledge that the condition of Secretary Weeks was of a serious nature came when his physician, Dr. B. L. Hardin, issued a statement saying that "the secretary on the morning of April 1 had a thrombosis of one of the small branches of the middle cerebral artery, which had produced a weakness of the muscles of the left arms but that no other symptoms had developed.

It was said that a partial paralysis of his left arm has yielded to treatment and Secretary Weeks was able to move the fingers of that hand which had not responded since April 1.

CHAPMAN, BANDIT, TO DIE ON JUNE 25

King of Outlaws Found Guilty of Murder of Police Officer.

Hartford, Conn.—The colorful life of Gerald Chapman, vivid in spectacular misdeeds which earned for him a reputation as the country's most dangerous criminal, was ordered forfeited by a Connecticut jury.

He was sentenced to be hanged a few minutes after midnight next June 25 for the murder of Patrolman James Skelly last October 12 in New Britain.

Motion-picture spectators had for the last week hissed pictures of Walter E. Shean, the Springfield (Mass.) advertising man who first accused Chapman of murder. These sam crowds applauded when Chapman's picture was thrown on the screen.

Hugh M. Aloorn, state's attorne said that he would recommend to the court a long prison term for the Springfield man, who is expected to plead guilty to a robbery charge.

Shean, when captured near Davidson & Leventhal's New Britain department store on Sunday morning, October 12 last, told the police that Chapman had been his partner in looting the store safes. Shean said Chapman was the cracksman who had shot a path to freedom, killing Skelly.

Chapman did not flinch at the reading of the verdict, "guilty as charged." Nor did he gaze at the jurors.

Army Lieutenant Held for Killing Captain's Daughter

Manila.—Miss Audrew Burleigh was shot and killed here. Lieut. J. S. Thompson of the United States signal corps, with whom Miss Burleigh was driving toward her home in an automobile at the time of the shooting, drove with the body to Fort McKinley, where he surrendered to military au thorities.

Jealousy is said to have been the cause of the shooting. Miss Burleigh had taken part in an amateur show at the Army and Navy club, Thomp son objecting.

Miss Burleigh was a stepdaughter of Capt. H. P. Calmes of the United States general hospital, Manila.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook Goes to Prison for Fourteen Years

Fort Worth, Texas.-Dr. Frederick A. Cook said au revoir, but not goodby to Fort Worth.

"I'll be back sometime," the physician-explorer-writer-oil promotor-convict told his friends who gathered to bid him farewell as he boarded the train for Leavenworth prison.

His departure for the federal penitentiary, in which he is under sentence of fourteen years and nine months for fraudulent use of the mails, marked the end of another installment of Docterminated his sojourn of more than sixteen months in the Tarrant county

3 Killed, 23 Hurt When Tornado Sweeps Miami

Miami, Fla.-Three persons were killed and twenty-three injured, three seriously, when a tornado struck the White Belt dairy, located a few miles west of Miami, Westwood inn, a roadhouse near Little River, and, continuing northeastward, demolished about seventy-five houses. Three hundred to four hundred persons are homeless. After crossing a canal at Hialeah the great cloud lifted and then crashed down on the White Belt dairy, two miles away, completely demolishing six buildings and injuring a number of employees.

Federal Prisons Filled: Paroles to Bring Relief

Leavenworth, Kan.—Steps are under way to relieve congestion at the federal penitentiary here. The population is more than double that provided for in the original planning of the prison twenty-four years ago. A special parole board session at which 700 applications will be heard probably will begin in a few days. The number of prisoners now is 3,185, the highest in the history of the institution. The population has been growing steadily since the close of the war In 1918 it was down to 1,600.

Bandits Rob Passengers on Car of Thousands

Maywood, Ill.—Thirty-five passengers and the motorman and conductor of a street car in Maywood were held up and robbed by four gunmen who took charge of the car for half a mile of its course through the town. The robbers escaped with loot totaling many thousands of dollars.

But fate destined otherwise. With increased sense of desolation and hopelessness, she foresaw the trails looming in front of her-the misery she must cause, the lack of understanding she, must face alone. Only the desire to reach Mrs. Field had reconciled her to this return; now that was crushed.

. . . Bewildered with conflicting emotions, with burning throat and aching head, she crouched, shivering, in a corner of the carriage while Hugh wrapped his traveling rug round her knees.

The train rushed through the wintry darkness. An elderly clergyman dozed in one corner of the compartment; two girls carried on a low-voiced conversation, interspersed with bursts of laughter. Hugh discoursed upon all the little mundane happenings in Darbury during her absence, and she was grateful to him.

Thus, amid prosaic surroundings, hidden under unemotional exteriors, life's tragedies and comedies work out their scenes. The two girls, absorbed now in their magazine stories, were oblivious to the living drama, full of tragedy and bitter irony, being enacted but a few feet away. When ever Barbara looked at Hugh, the ironic misery of this false situation was increased. To him, at present, things seemed only vaguely unsatisfactory. This he had accounted for in the obvious way; therefore, worrying was futile. . .

"I shall soon know without being told," Miss Davies had said. And she did. By the time she had extricated her niece from the combined watery tendrils of Mrs. Stockley and Martha and kissed her cold face, she knew! The girl greeted them all with a certain quiet warmth, lacking both effusion and emotion, which bore as little resemblance to her old impulsive ways as the forced smile and sunken eyes to a face distinguished by its serenity. Nobody returning to a longed-for home and flance would look upon them with those eyes of haunted hopelessness! No illness would leave those rigid lines of pain around a mouth ever easily wreathed in smiles. . . . "Something has happened," the woman of the world said to herself, watching in silence. What it might be, she was left to conjecture.

Mrs. Stockley, after the poison dropped into her mind the night before, regarded her daughter's island life as some terrible blot staining the clean pages of her existence, which must not be lightly touched upon. She felt self-conscious upon the subject. shocked and apprehensive over the girl's appearance. As usual, she took refuge in helpless tears. It was Martha, urged by Hugh, who, noticing the chattering teeth and clammy hands, suggested hot soup and bed at once.

"With a 'ot bottle.' throat, preventing speech. Everything was so familiar, so home-like; and yet-so intolerable! She allowed herself to be led into the well-known dining room. Somebody removed her coat, and somebody her hat; then Hugh's voice uttered an exclamation.

"You've bobbed your hair, Bab! Why?"

Kneeling unsteadily before the fire, with hands stretched to the cheerful blaze, she was struck by the strangeness of this question coming from him -the indirect cause two years before. "It—was—better short," she replied shakily.

"I hope it will soon grow again now," said her mother anxiously. "I dislike the craze for 'bobbed' hair; it's un-

The meshes of the net which had loomed near with the advent of the De Borceaus, appeared to the girl's distraught mind to be closing steadily round her. Like one struggling in vain to elude them, she staggered to her "Mother-let me go to bed! I feel too-ill-"

It was Hugh who caught her, as she stumbled toward the door. With Martha, he half carried her up the stairs to her old room. . .

And all through the night, as she tossed about, with wide feverish eyes staring at Martha fussing near at hand: where-hundreds of years ago. it seemed, she had blown out the candle upon her old home-life-vision after vision rose, full of exquisite torture, to her mind. . . . A night of delirious terror in a little, vault-like hut. . . . A fearful vigil seated upon upturned suit-cases, waiting in the dark for the natives' attack. . A pair of scissors and a shock of dark hair, from under which dear gray eyes laughed up into her face. . . . An early dawn, with a little tin key ring. Golden hopes of motherhood, dashed almost as soon as awakened. . Like a relentless panorama, detail after detail came vividly to life again, with, ever present, the buoyancy of a man's strong personality carrying all before it. . . . She pressed her hurting the kind old couple by actual lips passionately to that little circlet rudeness. Having decided that Hugh of tin, with a bitterness of grief too deep for the relief of tears. . .

"She is so changed—so changed!" she repeated at intervals. "If people are already talking, I don't know what they will say when they see her!"

"She is sure to tell you, soon, all that happened," consoled her sister. Then we can contradict any wrong suspicions."

"I am sure she has been ill-treated," moaned the other; "or why should she look so ill and miserable, now she has come home? I don't believe she was even glad to see me-her own mother! It seems so ungrateful. But Bab always was thoughtless and inconsiderate over my feelings."

"Why not ask her for the truth, tomorrow?" suggested Miss Davies, her curiosity difficult to curb. "Or shall I? I am more used to girls in trouble-

"No. Mary!" said Mrs. Stockley, with quick anger at any interference. "I will not have you insinuate that she is one of-of your 'fallen girls,' like this! If she has suffered anything at-that man's hands, she will tell me, herself, I couldn't speak of it now. Besides, I wouldn't dream of forcing her confidence! After all, it may be only the result of her illness."

Miss Davies glanced at her, rather sharply.

"What was really the matter at Singapore, do you suppose?" she asked. "Prostration. And shock. Don't you remember? Very natural, I am sure. after such terrible times.

Miss Davies drew in her lips, in her usual way when considering discretion the better part of valor, and made no

Mrs. Rochdale gave an annual local dinner party before Christmas every year, over which she presided like a good-natured hen—clucking, with her Buff Orpington smile, upon the chickens pecking at the good things provided for them. Everybody who was anybody in the neighborhood received an invitation, so that the parties bore a singular similarity.

Fresh interest was aroused this year, owing to the expected presence of Barbara. So far, she had been seen by few. For a week a severe chill had kept her in bed, invisible to the curious eyes of those who buzzed around Lake cottage. The more persevering. after her arrival downstairs, spread interesting reports of the extraordinary change wrought in her looks and behavior.

To the girl, weak in health and tortured in mind, everybody and everything seemed unbearable. Perceiving the suspicious curiosity around her, she instinctively cloaked herself with reserve, throwing no intimate sidelights upon the vital point causing so much conjecture. News from De Bor-A contraction caught Barbara's fresh anxiety concerning the lack of it. Had Mrs. Stocklev's weak mind not been poisoned, making natural talk upon the island life impossible to her, things might have been vastly different for all. As it was, the topic became increasingly difficult of approach; until it assumed the character of something mysteriously tabu. Only the wreck and possible fate of Aunt Dolly were discussed. Croft's name was never even mentioned between them.

Urgent business on Mr. Rochdale's Devonshire property summoned Hugh thither before Barbara came downstairs. Still, therefore, the full explanation she intended to give him hung heavy on her mind, assuming increasing proportions the more she pondered over it. His horizon had been so contentedly bounded by conventional, orthodox views, that it might be difficult to make him understand the true case. She shrank from hurting him, from destroying his faith, as she knew she must do.

Mrs. Field's letter, full of the largehearted, far-seeing sympathy so vital a part of her nature, brought a grain of comfort. Full of genuine grief and affection for her cousin, which she took for granted was shared now by the girl, there was no discreet avoidance of the matter. Being his nearest relative, she was kept informed of all proceedings concerning the recovery of his body: the lack of information from the De Borceaus, with their possible fate, was, she said, causing renewed anxiety. She urged Barbara to use the "House on the Moor" and its library. whenever she wished, as usual.

Mrs. Stockley never encouraged-or believed in-invalidism other than her own. Once downstairs, her daughter was expected to renew her old household duties and seek diligently to recover parochial ones. That she showed no inclination for either increased the sense of strain between them. Her shrinking from company would give rise, her mother dreaded, to further 'talk." It was, therefore, strongly condemned. She found it impossible. as things were, to escape the ordeal of Mrs. Rochdale's dinner party without must be told the truth before anyone else, she was obliged, though shrinking in every fiber of her being, to dress sister sat long into the night, talking, in one of her old evening frocks and be fetched in the Rochdale's big car.

This had been one of her few poignant pain of it all struck her afresh. . . . The reflection of shadowy, sunken eyes and aureole of dark hair mocked at her, in the large drawing room mirrors. . . . The unconscious irony of the conversation, the kindliness of Hugh's parents and their delight over her, his own affection, were unbearable torture. . .

He had only returned that day, and she spoke to him in desperation, as they went in to dinner together. "Hugh!" she whispered, "I must see you alone, to tell you-"

"I know!" he broke in eagerly. "I'm dying to hear everything! It was a beastly nuisance having to go away just then; but it couldn't be helped. Afraid we shan't get a chance tonight, though."

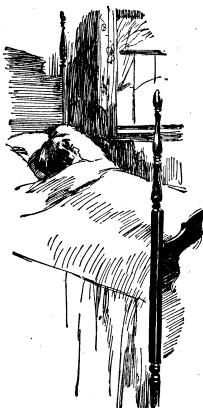

"Tomorrow, then? Hugh, I must see you alone tomorrow!" There was a passionate urgency in her voice, a tragic pleading in her eyes-both signs which he entirely misunderstood. flush overspread his face, and pressed her bare arm to his side.

"Bab, darling!" he whispered, "don't you think I'm just longing to be alone with you, too? I-I counted the hours until I got back, today!"

Barbara sat down at the table, her heart like lead. She felt like a murderer who, about to drop poison into the cup of a trusting friend, talks and smiles upon him the while.

The vicar's enthusiasm over the missionary results of this providential visit to "children of darkness" (having a double meaning, this phrase was considered witty in Darbury), broke loose almost in the same breath wherein he concluded grace. He was not among those whose importunity had been crowned with success where seeing the Wandering sheep" was concerned.

in Hugh, with a grimace. "I wonder you weren't scared stiff, Bab!"

"I was at first," she owned. "But I grew very fond of them."

"Capital!" beamed the vicar. "Our brothers, in spite of difference in color. Doubtless they responded to your affectionate overtures, poor souls?"

A vision of Alan's affectionate overtures with electrified wire, flashing eyes, and fearful rhetoric, until his brothers became responsive, brought the shadow of a smile into her white face, which old Mr. Rochdale saw and

"I imagine Croft got 'em under more by bullying than affection; didn't he?" he laughed. "That wireless stunt was a brainy notion! I suppose he had to whip up the lazy beggars pretty hard afterward, to make 'em work?"

"No," she replied, aware of many eyes upon her face at this open allu-"They loved him and obeyed him because"-her voice faltered-"because he had the personality to command obedience. He inspired them to work for their own good. They learned cleanliness; and we taught them to talk a little English-'

"Wonderfully quickly," she answered, misunderstanding. "Some of them could talk quite fluently in a very listlessly finished her toilet, the unwise, for many reasons. For one thing, we had to play upon their superstitions to insure our own safety and obtain any influence at all. It needed great wariness."

"But surely," he remonstrated pedantically, "at the risk of one's life one should carry on the Gospel? Missionaries have to risk-"

"We were not missionaries!" she reminded him sharply. She looked impatiently at his self-complacent, horrifled face and short-sighted eyes. "We tried to encourage them in cleanliness, gentleness, and consideration. Isn't that all part of the Gospel's real meaning? To have stuffed entirely new doctrines down their throats would have been ridiculous!"

Quick startled glances were directed upon her from all directions: the "Negatives" present flushed uncomfortably: Mrs. Stockley tried, ineffectually, to fix her with a stony eye.

"Apparently your success was not very great," she observed tartly.

Old Mr. Rochdale hastily smoothed over possible trouble by inquiring concerning the personal character of the natives.

"They are very simple and real," the girl replied warmly. "You find the same fears and jealousies and faults as everywhere else; but they are not hidden by any thin veneer of civilization. When they love or hate, they do so openly." "I hope," remarked Miss Davies, not much liking her tone, "you made them wear decent clothing?

"Most of them were naked." said Barbara: "some wore a little matting." Everybody rather hurriedly went on eating. Hugh hurled himself into the silence, thinking to change the sub-

"And you are wearing that instead? I must get another at once. What is it? A key ring?" "Y-yes."

"Quite! Provided, of course, that everything else is in order and a priest performs the ceremony." .

Refused to "Fall" for Bishop's Second Scheme

A western minister tells a story, according to the Kansas City Star, showing how a bishop, accosted in a Chicago street by a neat but hungry stranger, derived profit from the en-

Now the bishop took a fancy to the needy one, took him to a hotel and shared a good dinner with him. Yet, having left his episcopal wallet in the pocket of a different episcopal jacket, he suddenly faced the embarrassment of not having the wherewithal to pay for the dinner.

"Never mind," exclaimed the guest, "I have enjoyed dining with you, and I shall be charmed to pay the price. Allow me."

And the stranger paid for the two. This worried the prelate, who insisted: "Just let me call a taxi and we'll run up to my place, where I shall have the pleasure of reimbursing you." But the stranger met the suggestion with:

"See here, old man! You've stuck me for a bully good dinner, but hanged if I am going to let you stick me for taxi fare!"

DAIRY COW MUST HAVE PLENTY SALT

Dairy cows must have plenty of salt in order to thrive. Allow them to have free access to salt or feed it to them in their feed. Many dairymen mix 0.5 to 1 pound of salt with each 100 pounds of concentrated mixture or grain mixture, and then supply salt in addition so the cows can take what they wish.

If trouble has been experienced from goiter or "big neck" in calves, this may be prevented in the future by giving potassium or sodium iodide the cows during their gestation period. Where there is no trouble from goiter this treatment is not needed.

Milk is very rich in both calcium (lime) and phosphorus. Therefore, dairy cows must receive liberal supplies of both/these minerals to secure continued high production and to have a thrifty offspring. In the usual dairy rations there is more danger of a lack of calcium than there is of phosphorus. This is because the protein-rich feeds are also rich in phosphorus. This includes wheat bran in particular and also wheat middlings, cottonseed meal and linseed meal. Gluten feed, germ oil meal (corn germ meal) or brewers' grains and distillers' grains are not especially high in phosphorus.

When 20 per cent or more of the concentrate mixture or grain mixture consists of wheat bran, wheat middlings, linseed meal or cottonseed meal, the cows will get plenty of phost phorus. If less of these high-phosphorus feeds are fed, it is best to supoly additional phosphorus by adding bone meal, ground rock phosphate or acid phosphate.

A large production of milk and thrifty calves are an impossibility if there is a lack of calcium in the ration. The best way of furnishing plenty of lime is to grow and feed an abundance of alfalfa, clover or soy bean hay whenever it is possible. All legume hays are rich in lime. Furthermore, well-cured, green-colored legume hay contains a vitamine which animals need to enable them to assimilate and use the calcium in their

If poor roughage must be used, such as hay from the grasses (not legumes), corn stover grown on acid soil, or straw, add 3 to 4 pounds of ground limestone, wood ashes or dried marl Hugh laughed. "I shouldn't be much | to each 100 pounds of concentrate or grain mixture.

If there is not 20 per cent of highphosphorus feeds in the concentrate mixture (wheat bran, wheat middlings, linseed meal and cottonseed meal), it is best to use 3 to 4 pounds of steamed bone meal, ground rock phosphate or acid phosphate with each 100 pounds of the concentrate mixture, instead of using the limestone, wood ashes or marl. Bone meal and the phosphates supply both calcium and phosphorus, while limestone, wood ashes and marl furnish lime but practically no phosphorus.

Community Associations

Improve Stock Breeding (Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The influence of community organizations in promoting the breeding of better live stock is shown in frequent reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture in connection with its work in encouraging the use of pure-bred sires. The president of the Middlesex County (Conn.) Farm bureau reports the introduction of 30 registered dairy bulls within six months for use in improving local herds and adds that "none of our farmers is inclined to revert to grade or scrub sires."

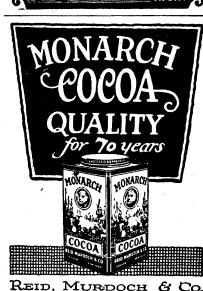

Stockmen of Hidalgo county, Texas, have formed a pure-bred live-stock association, the purpose of which conforms closely with activities which the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, is encouraging. For the guidance of progressive live-stock owners interested in forming similar organizations, following is an extract from the constitution and by-laws of the Hidalgo County Purebred Livestock association, as furnished by its secretary. "The object of this organization shall be to promote interest in the breeding and improvement of highclass pure-bred live stock; to instruct its members in the prevention and eradication of diseases peculiar to such animals; to provide and establish an adequate market for the same; and to create in the members of the association an affection for farm animals which will result in a fuller appreciation of farm life and pure-bred live stock." Another clause provides for a high standard of business dealings and for the expulsion of members who are found to have misrepresented animals or to indulge in questionable

Care of Dairy Bull

The amount of grain to feed to dairy bull varies from four to ten pounds, depending on the size and condition of the animal and the kind of roughage. A grain mixture recommended as having been used with success consists of three parts ground corn (by weight), two parts ground oats, two parts wheat bran, and one part linseed meal. Another mixture suggested consists of three parts ground oats, two parts wheat bran, one part ground corn or barley, and one part linseed
