Bees Studied on Delaware Coast
Carefully Planned Experiment Will Be Conducted to Solve Problems.

Dig for RICHS. Garnet is to Garnet, the stone that is to Garnet.

A great discovery in the field of agriculture has been made in the Delaware region. Scientists have begun a carefully planned experiment to solve the age-old problem of pests in the vicinity. The study involves the importation of bees from a distant country, and the bees will be released in the fields to help control the insects. This is expected to be a major breakthrough in the fight against pest infestations.

Catching Chickens Helps in Culling Corns
Best Way Is to Have Crates With Wire Sides.

Catching the chickens is a large part of the work involved in culling corns. The best way is to have crates with wire sides. This makes it easier to separate the good from the bad. Without wire sides, the chickens tend to get tangled up and cannot be sorted easily. The wire sides allow for better airflow, which helps keep the chickens cool and comfortable.

Guard Against Bloating With Sheep on pasture

It is important to guard against bloating when sheep are pastured on rough pasture. This can be done by ensuring that there are enough water and feed sources, by breaking up the diet with other types of feed, and by using different feeding strategies. This will help to prevent bloating and other digestive issues.

Do Not Get Caught Twice! Remember last year's Soft Corn?
It was caused by a late Spring. This Spring so far has been very chilly, too. You are not going to make the same mistake again, are you?

Even with good weather, soft corn is the result of not using sufficient fertilizer. Insure your corn against failure by applying plenty of phosphates. Even if already planted, hasten maturity by broadcasting phosphates over it now. It will shorten the growing season ten to twelve weeks.

FIELD MARSHAL FRENCH IS DEAD

Wax Commander of British Army Dies in World War

Deal, England—The death here of the Duke of French, former British field marshal, was given as the reason for the withdrawal of A. C. Stirling from the post of military attache in France. The death is the second occurrence of the former British field marshal who was wounded in the battle of the Somme and who was killed in the course of the British military operations in France.

Stirling had been commanding the British and French forces in the battle of the Somme, and the withdrawal of his forces was ordered as a result of the British military situation in that area.

The news of Stirling's death came as a shock to the British military authorities, who had been expecting to receive reports of his continued progress in the battle. However, the report of his death has cast doubt on the possibility of his continued command in the battle.
