Damasus-the Deserted

Soldiers Now In The Street That Is Called Straight

By DEWITT J. MASON

Damasus, the oldest city of the world, and at one time the wealthiest and most beautiful of the Roman Empire, is now a desolate and forsaken city. The once grand and beautiful streets, now covered with sand and rubbish, are deserted by all who have had any connection with it. The once mighty walls that protected the city are now but a memory. The once beautiful public buildings and homes of the people are now in ruins. The once prosperous trade of the city is now at an end. The once fertile fields are now deserted.

Many of the recent changes, however, are not due to the desertion of the city. The city has been abandoned because of the war in Arabia. The war has caused the city to be deserted by all who have any connection with it. The city has been abandoned by the people because of the destruction of the city. The city has been abandoned by the people because of the destruction of the city. The city has been abandoned by the people because of the destruction of the city. The city has been abandoned by the people because of the destruction of the city. The city has been abandoned by the people because of the destruction of the city.

There remain only a few ruins. A great stone arch remains, broken only by the burning smoke of the fires that have destroyed many of the buildings. In the ruins of the arch, the people of the city can still see the grandeur of the city that once was. The ruins of the arch are a reminder of the city that once was. The ruins of the arch are a reminder of the city that once was. The ruins of the arch are a reminder of the city that once was. The ruins of the arch are a reminder of the city that once was. The ruins of the arch are a reminder of the city that once was.

We are reminded of one of our large pool factories wherein he said, "The ground is that the real man brought forth cleanliness and we thought within himself truly, stating, what the I do because I love my own, where to lower my friends. And he said, this will I do, I will pull down, my horses and build another, and there I will build in all my fruits, and my goods, and I will pay to my own. And there have that good end up for many years, take the real one, drive and be merry. But God said unto them, "Then do this, that the wind is clean and be reason, that shall I have two things to which those last provided? Be it that he cut lythly up treasures for himself and is not rich toward God." A. S. Williams, Minister.

Small Grain Seeded to Withstand Frost

Order of Resistance Wheat, Oats and Barley.

Observations made at the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station by Dr. G. W. Nettleton and Dr. H. G. Bartlett show that the order of resistance, in degree of superiority, is as follows: wheat, oats and barley.

At the Nebraska station, at Lincoln, a test was made to determine the order of resistance of wheat, oats and barley to small grains seeded during the last season. A row of wheat, oats and barley was planted in each of the plots.

The results show that the wheat is most resistant, followed by the oats and barley. The difference in the order of the crops was very small, but the wheat was more resistant to the small grains seeded during the test.

In conclusion, it is suggested that farmers should plant small grains seeded to withstand frost. This will not only save the yield of the crop but will also help to improve the soil.

DIVIDE HEN FLOCK FOR BEST RESULTS

Separate periods from any pasture from the New York State poultry flock for the best results. This will allow the birds to have a chance to develop to their best size and quality.

The biggest known secret to egg production, and the successful application of the statement, is the use of a series of poultry pens and coops. The pen should always have the coops and pens in a series, so that the birds will not be crowded and will have plenty of room to grow.

The results show that the birds will produce eggs faster and in larger quantities if the pens and coops are divided into smaller sections. This will help to keep the birds healthy and will also help to reduce the cost of feeding.

VOUGE FOR LACE GARNITURE; CAPE COATS ARE IMPORTANT

PLACERS continue to provide the prospect of a rising lace wave. While lace-making problems are in the hands of several mer- chants, the material—particularly the fine of every imaginable type of cape, chintz, heavy velvets and velveteens, gingham, silk, satin and others—are in the program. In addition to these, lines of lace and many other goods have been in the market. The workmen are all well paid and the goods are well finished. As for the lace, it is a matter of no little importance. The lace-making business continues to flourish. A large number of lace-makers have been employed in the market for the past few years. Many lace-makers have been employed in the market for the past few years. Many have been employed in the market for the past few years. Many have been employed in the market for the past few years.
