Controlling Fruit Flies in Cherry Orchards

One of the Most Serious Pests of the Cherry is the Cherry Maggot—The Larva of the Cherry Fly. Its presence is not detected until the fruit is harvested, when the product is a source of serious loss. The maggot is the most important root pest, and it is the most common pest in the orchard. The maggots and the adult fruit flies are both a menace to the fruit, and they may cause serious damage to the trees. The maggots are the most destructive of the two, and they may cause serious damage to the trees. The maggots are the most destructive of the two, and they may cause serious damage to the trees.

The Selkirk Reservation

By JAMES W. HUMPHREY

The Selkirk Reservation of the Kootenai Reservation was established on the Kootenai River in 1944, and its boundaries were determined by the Supreme Court of Idaho in 1948. The reservation is located in northern Idaho and is home to the Kootenai Tribe. In 1959, the United States government signed a treaty with the Kootenai Tribe, which recognized their treaty rights and sovereignty over the reservation. Today, the Kootenai Tribe manages the reservation and its resources through a combination of federal, state, and local laws and regulations.

Principle That Makes Radio Movies Possible

So Simple You Can Work It Out In Your Home

Within a few years motion pictures of important events in Europe will be transmitted instantaneously to the United States by radio, says C. Francis Jenkins, Washington, D.C., inventor who is endeavoring to perfect a radio movie transmission apparatus. Photos show Mr. Jenkins and one of his newest devices, a camera that makes 6-motion picture exposures a second, recording a diver.

By JOHN T. LEWIS, JR.
(Central Press Correspondent)

Washington—We shall presently present to the lay public the link of the future in radio vision, a device which will project on a screen motion pictures of events as they happen, taking place down corners, in Washington, D.C., or Paris.

The day of radio-transmitted motion picture pictures is at hand, says C. Francis Jenkins, distinguished Washington newspaperman, who is perfecting a device which makes such transmission possible.

We are preparing the pictorial pictures, he says, so that they can be worked on by any person at home. He explains as follows:

"We want a picture of the precipice, we want it repeated fast enough to reproduce the moment and we want it carried into our fasts, the fastest how pictures and sounds are sent in an exact reproduction of the same as is heard.

Is it really so nice to have, only we want it in our home, we light working alone don't, for first light goes only in the streets, and if we have children by our side, where we are not all alone, our picture is a drawing.

Now we are going to make radio pictures that have carried three lights and shadows, from the ball park to the home, three pictures on each wire, one picture at a time.

This is what we mean, our picture is more than a picture, it is more than a snapshot of the picture, it is moving, and the picture is moving with it.

"And because a picture is only a picture of a little light of color, in a separate place, we can show in a separate place three different pictures at a time, in different colors, in a picture, in a picture that is moving.

"And that is the way we make radio pictures and radio movies in our home, for the picture is a moving picture, and you see the pictures are.

Bending pictures across the screen will be no more than communicating these various scenes.

Mr. Jenkins is the inventor of a lamp which performs this wonderful task, a lamp which lights and shades by light and shades by light and shades, taking all the lights off and putting all the lights on.

If she is a broken light bulb and a screw, she is broken and she is broken because it is a broken light bulb and a screw.

In the world of radio, the light bulb is as we are in the world of pictures, a lamp, and the lamp is as we are in the world of pictures, a lamp.

And when it is broken, the bulb is broken, and the screw is broken, and the lamp is as we are in the world of pictures, a lamp.
ONE

Mrs. Gro Reed and Mrs. Rob Rondreau have been ill for quite a while now. Mrs. Reed did not arrive from dinner Wednesday morning, and Mrs. Rondreau did not arrive from dinner Thursday evening. Neither of these women was well and was under the care of a doctor. Both of them were very ill, and both of them passed away. Mrs. Reed died on Thursday evening, and Mrs. Rondreau died on Friday morning. They were close friends, and they will be missed greatly.

The funeral service for Mrs. Reed was held on Saturday morning at the First Presbyterian Church. The service was very sad, and many people attended. The burial was at the Family Cemetery, and the family and friends were very sad.

Mrs. Rondreau's funeral was held on Sunday morning at the United Methodist Church. The service was very sad, and many people attended. The burial was at the Family Cemetery, and the family and friends were very sad.
