GARDENING IS AS HARD AS YOU MAKE IT
By J. H. BURDETT
C GARDENING can be made hard or easy, as you like it, and the latter is the result of simple things that you do and the care you give to your garden. A very simple lesson this about the attention to the nutrition of your soil and the plants that you want to grow in it. If you do not give them what they need, they will suffer and the result will be poor plants. The same is true of gardeners who do not attend to their gardens. They will not make good if they do not take care of them.

GARDEN SEEDS
Seed is the heart of any garden and if you are going to have a successful garden, you must give serious thought to the choice of your seeds. The best place to buy your seeds is at a reliable nursery or seed dealer. Do not buy from a stranger. Give the seeds a good inspection before buying them. Check the dates on the packets and see that they are current. Read the instructions on the packets and follow them accurately. Do not plant old seeds or seeds that are not thoughtful. These seeds will not germinate. They will not grow and will not produce good plants.

VEGETABLES FRENCH SZELOUER Our soonest. We will be ready to grow some vegetables for our own use. I have been doing so for several years and I have found that they are very good. They are easy to grow and they can be harvested at any time of the year. We have been growing them in our garden for some time now and we are very pleased with the results.

Three Crops for Next Winter 1. Winter Squash: These are planted in the late summer and harvested in the fall. They can be stored in the basement until they are ready to be used.
2. Cauliflower: This is planted in the early spring and harvested in the fall. It is very important to water the plants well during the hot summer months.
3. Broccoli: This is planted in the fall and harvested in the spring. It is best to plant the seed in a cold frame or in a greenhouse.

Our Poultry Department
Poultry Sanitation
Much improvement has been made in poultry sanitation during the last few years, but the problem is far from solved. Poultry sanitation is a hard and tedious job, but the results are well worth the effort.

The raising of young poults Sturdy, vigorous pullets hatch from eggs laid by healthy mother hens. Healthy, vigorous pullets are half the battle. Sickly weak pullets are not easy to rear, while strong, healthy pullets grow well from the start. It is important to get sturdy, healthy pullets. The first two weeks are the critical period for the growth of the pullet. During this time, the pullet should be given the best possible care. The pullets should be kept warm, dry, and well fed. They should be given water and food daily.

Greater Strength in United Action When it was realized that the United States had spent three-fourths of the country's working population to keep the country going, there began a search for a better way to do it. In 1917, the Rider Company was formed to research and develop new methods of production. The company's motto was, "Greater Strength in United Action." This idea was based on the belief that by uniting the efforts of everyone in the country, the country could achieve greater strength and prosperity.

The Rise of United Action The Rider Company began by examining the production process in depth. They found that the production process was inefficient and wasteful. They also found that there was a clear need for better equipment and machinery. The company's first order of business was to develop new equipment and machinery that could improve the production process. The company spent several years developing new equipment and machinery, and by 1920, they had created a revolutionary new production process.

The Impact of United Action The impact of the Rider Company's new production process was immediate. The company's production increased by 50% in the first year alone. By the end of the decade, the United States was producing more than ever before. The company's success led to widespread interest in the concept of "United Action." Other companies began searching for ways to improve their production processes, and a new culture of productivity and innovation began to take shape.

The Future of United Action The Rider Company's work in unifying the efforts of everyone in the country had a lasting impact.
The concept of United Action has continued to evolve over the decades, and it remains a powerful force in the United States today. The success of the Rider Company demonstrates the potential of United Action, and its impact on the country's economic output is undeniable.

The Only Selling Point
The only selling point is not merely the product itself, but the combination of it with the service it provides. The manufacturer must be willing to go the extra mile in order to ensure that the customer is satisfied. The service provided by the manufacturer must be of the highest quality in order for the product to be successful.

Conclusion
In conclusion, United Action is a powerful force in the United States. The Rider Company's work in unifying the efforts of everyone in the country has had a lasting impact, and its

Indian Legends of Northern Michigan

by John C. Wright

In the year 1600 a little girl was born in the banks of Great Lake, the daughter of one of the most beautiful women of that part of the country. Her name was Mina. She was one of the most beautiful women who ever lived, and she was very kind and gentle. When she was little, she played and sang by the river, and she always had a smile on her face.

During the year 1600, Mina was chosen by the Great Spirit to be a leader of the people. She was a wise and kind leader, and she taught the people how to live in peace with nature. She was a great person, and she is still remembered today.
