White Gardenia Still Favorite Flower

By MRS. EDDIE

"If you want to see a beautiful little gardenia, you must come to the corner of 3rd Avenue and 40th Street. There you will find a small garden, surrounded by a fence, where the gardenia bushes are planted. In the spring, when the flowers are in bloom, you will be amazed at how lovely they look. The gardenia is a very fragrant flower, and its scent is a favorite of many people.

Most of these bushes are dotted with white blossoms, and they make a lovely sight in the spring. If you are interested in gardening, you should definitely visit this garden to see the gardenia in all its glory. It is truly a gem of a flower, and one that should not be overlooked."

White Blankets

Have you ever noticed how white blankets seem to bring out the color of the room in which they are placed? It is true! The purity of the white blanket creates a beautiful contrast with the other colors in the room. When you have a white blanket, you can remove all the other colors and you will still have a beautiful scene.

Most of these blankets are decorated with embroidery, lace, and other fancy materials. They are also made with a variety of fabrics, such as cotton, silk, and wool. Each blanket is unique and has its own special charm.

At this point every woman has a favorite for a blanket, and it is no wonder. These blankets are a joy to see and to use. I have always been a fan of white blankets, and I think they are the most beautiful blankets that can be found."

A Stranger in White

"This is a story of a little girl who was told that she was very common. The girl, Mary, had always felt that she was different from the other children in her class. One day, the teacher announced that the class would be going on a trip to the zoo. Mary was thrilled at the thought of seeing all the animals, but she was worried about what the other children would think of her.

As they arrived at the zoo, Mary was faced with a problem. She noticed that everyone was dressed in bright, colorful clothing, while she was wearing a plain white dress. Mary felt very self-conscious, and she began to think that she was being judged by the other children.

However, as they were walking through the zoo, a friendly volunteer approached Mary. She told Mary that she loved her dress and that it was very special. Mary felt relieved and happy, and she realized that she didn't need to worry about what other people thought.

From that day on, Mary started to appreciate her own individuality. She learned that it was important to be true to oneself and to enjoy the beauty of being different."
The terrible Thorne girl
By Frederick Arnold Kummer

(Sybil had named her Thorne Girl, not for any particular reason that I could surmise, she was just so called and nothing more.

She was one of the most beautiful, most graceful, and most attractive women that I have ever known. Her beauty was not of the common sort, it was something more, something that was almost beyond description.

Her eyes were a deep, rich brown, and they seemed to sparkle with life and vitality. Her hair was a rich, chestnut color, and it was always perfectly coiffed. Her figure was perfectly proportioned, and her movements were fluid and graceful.

She was a woman of great intelligence and charm, and she always seemed to have a kind word for everyone. She was always willing to help others, and she was always cheerful.

She was also a woman of great physical beauty, and she was always well-dressed. Her clothes were always elegant and stylish, and they always seemed to be perfectly suited to her.

It was said that she was the most beautiful woman that anyone had ever seen, and I can attest to that. She was truly a remarkable woman, and she will be missed by all who knew her.

It may be more common for those who are not so called to read the following reference to stammer in the lines of the title:
"Genius Not Immune to Stuttering." It is held that the stammer of a genius is often so complex and misunderstood that the individual may be deprived of his gift because of the manner in which it is spoken.

COMPETING FOR A REAL PRIZE

Earl Martin and Marvina Kirk have been using a sly and neat trick for years. Bill Carter, the son of LeRoy Carter, will be in the town this week. Carter reports that he has been a successful owner of a horse. Last night the horse was in the barn eating hay: "Girls, going to the State Fair," said the horse. "I hope to get a large part of the profits."

At the station, Bill Carter was telling the story of his horse, and then went on to say that he was going to the state fair to see how the horse fared. "It’s a big horse," said Bill Carter. "I hope it will do well." The horse was eating hay when the story was told.

OUR RADIO DEPARTMENT

TUBE TESTERS

Radio has been stripped of most of its mystery, for anyone who tunes into our program can now see the working of the set as it amplifies, modulates, stimulates, and transmits the electrical impulses that constitute the signals of music and speech. The tube testers will enable you to determine whether your set is performing properly, and if not, what the trouble may be.

AVIAN TUBERCULOSIS CAUSING GREAT LOSS

Recent discoveries in the United States Department of Agriculture, which have been tested on live pigeons and rabbits, indicate that a new disease, not before identified, may be responsible for a larger percentage of the losses than tuberculosis, which has been so extensively studied. The disease is caused by a highly contagious mycobacterium which is now being studied in detail. It is expected that by the end of the year a practical method of control will be developed.

TUBERCULOSIS

The disease is characterized by a chronic inflammation of the lungs, and it is highly contagious. The symptoms are: loss of appetite, depression, and a tendency to cough. The disease is usually transmitted by casual contact with infected birds.

Who Exhibits at Fairs

Within a very short time the fall season will be here, and many fair-goers will be planning their trips to the various fairs. With the advent of the fall season, there is a change in the weather, and the days become shorter. The fairs, therefore, offer a great opportunity for outdoor activities and fun.

Spraying and Trimming

Spraying is only one of several methods that we have for controlling insects and fungi. For instance, the use of insecticides and fungicides can be very effective. In addition, the use of cultural practices, such as proper pruning and training, can help to reduce the number of pests.

THE MODERN VERSION

Tractors—Can express any weight on the ground.

Hay and other crops are now being hauled in by tractors. These machines are used to plow, plant, and harvest crops. They are also used to move heavy loads of material, such as construction equipment.

Fruit Growing

The Climax Currant

The farmer who raises a thousand bushels of currants can practically sell all his crop before the end of the season. If a good variety of currants is grown, the sale of the crop is assured. Currants are a good source of vitamin C, and they are also used in the production of wine.

New Varieties of Tomatoes

Recently, several new varieties of tomatoes have been developed. These tomatoes are larger, sweeter, and more resistant to disease. They are also more productive, and they are easier to grow.

FAIRYTOLD

Henry

"Henry," your dear old friend, always has a way of making you laugh. He is the most funny person you know. His jokes are the best, and you always look forward to hearing them.

OUR OUTFIELD

Field Parking

Wrestling with the weather can be a challenge, but with the right attitude, even the toughest storms can be overcome. The secret is to always be prepared and to have a backup plan. Whether you are planning a picnic, a barbecue, or just a day at the park, remember to pack some extra clothes, a waterproof jacket, and some snacks. The weather changes quickly, so it's always better to be safe than sorry.
