Sunday morning Mrs. E. B. Mays entertained eight tables at 900 last Thursday evening. After the play there were a lot of the winemakers and the ladies served sugar. All present enjoyed the greetings and Sisterudes the effects of the heat and bottlenecks. They enjoyed a very enjoyable evening.

Eunice E. Thomas, for many years a member of the optical goods, at Milwaukee and other places, and a woman of professional respectability, will have her office with Dr. Maxwell. Many of our older friends will remember her and we will be glad that he is back in the neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hudson and Mr. and Mrs. VanDyke started in the car last Saturday morning for their hunting trip. When north of Atchison, they did not wish to be delayed, their vehicle was covered in snow and they sometimes had to get up the track. When they arrived at oil, they found that the oil had been blown and equated to an estimated amount of 100 tons. Mrs. Hudson’s who headed up with Bob Douglas and Jack Nolinder, returned home the next day. They were gone for a few days and then went on and went on and had a few days. They took for the home for so. They were then sufficed and we hope that all may meet yet live to get a spot.

Half a dozen chickens for the week-end on our farm. Mrs. Harrell is going to make some chicken potatoes of the kind you see in the kitchen.
Profitable Utilization of Sound Undergrade Fruit

The cream of the price in the apple market this year is going to be realized by the grower, who has cultivated a better variety. Over the past few years, the market has been flooded with a glut of apples, causing prices to drop to rock-bottom levels. This year, however, the market has been comparatively dry, and the supply of apples has been limited, leading to higher prices.

The fruit growers who have devoted the necessary care and attention to their orchards will reap the benefits of their labor. The government has provided a good market for the fruit, and the grower who is willing to invest in the necessary equipment and tools will be rewarded with a bountiful harvest.

Our POULTRY DEPARTMENT

LATE MOLT AND CULLING

The late molt of chickens is a normal and healthy condition that occurs in poultry, where the feathers are shed and replaced with new ones. This process is crucial for the health of the birds, as it helps them to rid themselves of old and damaged feathers, which can lead to infections and other health issues. The molt is usually seen in chickens between the ages of six months and two years, and it can last for several weeks to a few months.

During the molt, the feathers of the chicken are shed and replaced with new ones. This process is crucial for the health of the birds, as it helps them to rid themselves of old and damaged feathers, which can lead to infections and other health issues. The molt is usually seen in chickens between the ages of six months and two years, and it can last for several weeks to a few months.

When the molt occurs, the chicken will lose some of its feathers, which can cause them to become less able to regulate their body temperature. To help combat this, it is important to ensure that the chicken has access to a cool and dry environment, and that it has sufficient food and water to maintain its energy levels.

Cut all the bars that are sick, weak, inactive, lacking in vigor, poor condition, or that are otherwise not up to standard. This procedure will help to ensure the health and well-being of the flock.

M. C. TO EXPERIMENT ON CORKLESS POULTRY RATION

The cisco home is not just in the front line of the poultry industry, but also in the health and well-being of the flock. The cisco home is responsible for providing the necessary nutrition and care to the chicken, ensuring that it is healthy and able to produce eggs and meat.

CHAPTER FOUR

"I beg your pardon," Piggy said, "but I can't... I can't eat any more!"

"You shouldn't, little one," the nurse said. "You need to eat to grow and stay healthy."

"I know," Piggy replied, "but I just can't bite down any more. It hurts too much."

The nurse looked at her mouth. "You're bleeding. I think it's better if you take a break."

"But I want to finish my meal," Piggy said. "I promised my friends I would."

The nurse nodded. "You're right. I'll help you."

Piggy sat down and the nurse began to clean her mouth. "It's not so bad," Piggy said. "I think I can do it."

The nurse smiled. "You're a strong little girl."

"Thanks," Piggy said. "I'm trying to be brave."
