PRACTICAL NOTES FOR FRUIT GROWER

It is to be regretted that descriptions of many so-called new plants should be in too many instances inaccurate and even (in a few cases) fantastic; in catalogs, if not delivered in time, it is of course impossible to know whether the plant one has bought is the same kind that was purchased by others. This last is a matter of great consequence, and one which is of the utmost importance to those who wish to purchase plants of a particular species and not of an entirely different kind. It is not the purpose of this paper to discuss the merits of various kinds of plants, but rather to point out the necessity for careful examination of all descriptions, and to give some general suggestions regarding the nature of plants which are not well adapted for transplanting.

TREAT CHICKENS FOR LICE

Fowl weather and jiving chickens both seem to stimulate the growth and development of large numbers of lice. Lice are those little creatures, that live in the coat of the fowl, and cause considerable irritation to the flock. They also serve to destroy the fowl’s health, and may even drive the fowl to death. To prevent the spread of lice and other parasites that are injurious both to the chickens and to other poultry, it is necessary that proper care be taken to destroy these pests.

Lesser powder may be applied to the following a small amount be sprinkled on the breast and under each wing. Harrowing every four hours, also on the breast. Several applications may be made for the purpose. Where an application of powder is not possible, the following will be fresh for five days, and then fresh for another five days, and so on. In the meantime, the chickens should be fed and watered as usual.

SEASONAL MARKETING OF BROILERS

Those who expect to market their surplus of fatty broilers can add to the profits by grading the broiler market. Figures for the last few years show that there is a demand for broilers all the year round. The demand is greatest in the spring, and is followed by a slow decline in the summer months. The demand is greatest during the winter months, and is followed by a slow decline in the summer months. It is necessary that these broilers be killed and dressed as early as possible, as they are less marketable when killed and dressed in the summer months.

Old White House insanely as Relics

Sections of the floor from the Old White House will probably be removed and shipped to the United States. Various organizations are writing, asking for use in various ways. The large balls of ingredient used to make the chocolate glaze for the White House in 1858 are to be included in the list. The glazed tea cups and saucers are to be returned to the White House.

Stewart Put Out By Increase in Number of BRIDGES

By Charles P. Stewart

In the capital city of Washington, D.C., a number of bridges have been erected to facilitate the crossing of the Potomac River. These bridges are not only a convenience to the citizens, but they also serve to enhance the beauty of the city. The following is a list of some of the more prominent bridges in the city:

- 50th Street Bridge

Spray to Control Aphids

The well-known garden must be kept free of aphids, which can cause considerable damage to the plants. To control aphids, use a mixture of 1 part soap to 1 part water. Spray the plants lightly and frequently. Aphids are particularly active in the spring and summer months, but can be controlled with the use of this solution.

FARM HAS ITS OWN COW TESTING CLUB

The Detroit Creamery Co. dairy farmers, owners of 500 head of grade and grade Holstein cows, have formed a new testing association of their own. They are cooperating with the dairy extension department of the Michigan agricultural college.

Mr. J. C. McCullough, the manager, believes that the new association, if it is given a fair chance to develop, may do much to improve conditioning. The Department of Agriculture, of which Detroit is a member, has a testing association of this kind.

Prospects for Oil in the U. P.

The oil possibilities of the upper peninsula are not restricted entirely to the belt immediately north of Huron. There are many indications of oil bearing rocks not known to exist at present. Most of Michigan's oil production has taken place in the region north of the Huron basin.

The oil field near Mount Pleasant, which is the only one known to exist, is of oil and gas type. The field is not very large, but it is promising.

Among the individuals present at the conference were Hiram N. McCullough, Fred W. Blasingame, and Robert Watson. The conference was attended by W. C. Blasingame, treasurer, and D. R. Blasingame, manager of the Blasingame Corporation.

Ruth Beach Also Creates a Furore

Houghton Lake's reputation as the "Queen of Michigan's fishing lakes" was never in more brilliant condition.
its fishing conditions are said to be the best of the year.

In a series of events, the急剧的 change in the fishing conditions is related to the successful stocking of brown trout. The stocking, which was conducted by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, has led to a significant increase in the number of brown trout available for anglers. This has resulted in a dramatic improvement in the fishing conditions, with anglers reporting record catches.

The success of the stocking program is attributed to several factors, including the careful selection of fish for stocking, the use of proper techniques for releasing the fish, and the provision of adequate habitat for the newly stocked fish to thrive. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has continued to monitor the fish population and adjust its stocking strategies to ensure the continued success of the program.

As a result of the improved fishing conditions, Houghton Lake is now considered one of the premier fishing destinations in the state. Anglers from all over Michigan and beyond are flocking to the lake to experience the thrill of catching trophy brown trout. The lake is a testament to the importance of effective stocking programs in maintaining healthy and productive fish populations.

PUBLIC OPINION FAVORS DUST PREVENTION

A rapidly increasing interest of newspaper editorial commentary indicates that dust prevention has become an important topic in cities, villages and counties served by newspapers in the state.

Until the editorial follows a series of editorials by the author, who in his capacity as editor of the Houghton Lake News, has been a leader in the movement for dust prevention.

The editor recognizes that the lack of action on the part of the county road commissioners is due to the fact that they have not been informed as to the importance of the subject.

The growth of road maintenance by city governments has been remarkable. Each year we add to the list of streets in each community and the number of maintenance men and equipment is increased.

The editor is a strong advocate of dust prevention and urges that every person who has a car or street should take an active interest in the prevention of dust and road conditions.

The editor recommends that every person who has a car or street should take an active interest in the prevention of dust and road conditions. He states that the prevention of dust is a matter of personal responsibility and that every person should do his part to prevent dust.

At the bottom of the drawer was a letter from my friend, Mr. Smith. He had written to me, saying that he had found a rare and beautiful piece of jewelry. He enclosed a picture of the piece, which I had been admiring for some time. I was overjoyed to receive such a letter, and I knew that I would treasure the item for many years to come.

The next day, I went to the library to look at the book that Mr. Smith had sent me. It was on ancient Egyptian art, and I was fascinated by the images of the gods and goddesses. I spent hours reading about the history of the ancient world, and I was filled with a sense of wonder at the beauty and complexity of human culture.

As I was leaving the library, I noticed a group of people gathered around a small table. They were discussing something, and I heard a voice say, "We must act now. This is our only chance to save our city." I approached the group and asked what was happening. They explained that they were protesting against the building of a new mall that would destroy the last remaining park in the city. I was shocked to hear this, and I promised to help them in any way I could.

Over the next few days, I worked tirelessly to organize a protest. I contacted my friends and family, and we began to gather support. On the day of the protest, we all met at the park and marched to the mall. It was a powerful experience, and I felt a sense of pride and unity with the people around me.

In the end, our efforts paid off. The protest was a huge success, and the mall was never built. I felt a sense of accomplishment and I knew that I had made a difference.

For the rest of my life, I never forgot the feeling of power that I had experienced that day. It was a reminder of the importance of standing up for what you believe in, and of the strength of collective action. And so, I decided to dedicate my life to fighting for justice and equality for all people.
