M. S. Specialist Tells North Farmers To Become Deadmern

Development of dairying as a source of interest and profit for farmers of northern Michigan, where the formation of the dairy is, has been brought about by the cooperation of the Michigan State College and the United States Department of Agriculture.

The first association of which records are available was organized in 1935. Fifty-five of the associations have been organized since 1935. Although those 700 associations are organized in 21 states, the largest number of them are located in Illinois, Indiana, and California.

The associations in the Pacific states serve members who make it possible for the state to have a lively interest in dairying. The associations in California and Washington are the largest. The associations in those two states are not only the most active, but they are also the most successful in their efforts.
