Ho! Ho! Seems We Can Get Used to Almost Anything!

The special election at Sturgis that established a commission of nine men instead of five, which carried by 21 votes, has been declared invalid by the city commission. It also refused a petition for a recount on that basis.

The election was held on the same ballot with the proposition for the present administration. Bids were made on the poll, but it is reported that no new commissioners would have been elected. Bids from the county would have been forced to make their vote for the city charter.

The commission issued the following notice of a meeting by City Attorney J. H. Tooke: "The meeting of the city commission will be held at the Sturgis City Hall at 10 o'clock on Wednesday morning, July 31, 1923. All citizens interested are invited to attend."

POTLUCK

HAVE YOU MOVED BROODER HOUSES LATELY?

This is a good time to change your brooder houses in preparation for the winter. The following are some things you should keep in mind:

- Cover the brooder house with insulation to reduce heat loss.
- Keep the brooder house clean and free from moisture.
- Ensure proper ventilation to prevent the build-up of harmful gases.
- Make sure the brooder area is well-lit.

Arthur E. Boggs, an editor of the New York Times, wrote an article about the potential benefits of moving brooder houses. He argued that moving the houses can help reduce stress on the birds and improve their overall health.

Comment on Current Events

The manifestation of good will at the opening of the Peace Bridge in Buffalo may be interpreted as another step toward breaking down sectionalism in the United States and, ultimately, toward creating a world of peace. The peace movement has the support of the majority of the world's peoples. It is not too late to act.

The recent developments in the Middle East have called attention to the need for peaceful resolution of international disputes. The United Nations has a role to play in this effort.

Rabbi Joseph H. Hertz, a prominent rabbi, has spoken against the use of violence in settling disputes. He emphasizes the importance of dialogue and negotiation.

RABBI SEASON EARLIER IN U.P.

While the earlier opening of the rabbi season in some provinces will probably meet with the approval of the rabbis, it may have some negative consequences. The rabbis may not have enough time to prepare for the new year.

White President C. O. Collins appears to have successfully negotiated an agreement with the Vatican to recognize the State of Israel. This agreement is seen as a significant step in the peace process.

Triplet's Born to Ohio Woman

When the fall term of Western State Teacher's College opens at Kalama-zaus Saturday, Sept. 17, with freshman days, an addition will be made to the teaching staff. This addition is entirely different from any advisory system or in effect a practical and a part-time instructor in the teaching staff of the college.

This provision will provide for a faculty member who is more or less an instructor, to whose student will be responsible for his work. The instructor will look over the student's work and will be responsible for the quality of the country the student will be put out to work.

The addition is a practical one, and is fitting for the work of the state college.

The plan has been worked out by Reginald C. Hofer, after an ex- ample of it at the state college in the summer of 1913. The equipment consists of a truck that will be brought to the college, and the instructor will travel the country and supervise the students.

The instructor will be assigned to some inspector, who will travel the country and supervise the students, and the instructor will supervise the inspector, who will supervise the students.

The instructor will travel the regular weekly hours for con- ference.

During the evening the instructor will be at the school for the feast of the students, and will attend lectures and demonstrations there at the college.

Detroit Woman Seeks
Children Gone 12 Years

In quest of her missing son and Mrs. Anne B. Dutton of Detroit recently and has been informed by her that, August 4, 1896, she last saw her son, her name is Robert H. Dutton.

After the death of her husband 12 years ago his son was placed in the St. Vincent de Paul orphanage of Detroit, Mich. The child has been at that place ever since and is now 18 years old. But, as far as Mrs. Dutton can learn, she has never been heard from since that time. She is said to be taller and thinner than when last seen, and has the make-up of a boy.

Mrs. Dutton has heard no more of him, so has given up all hope of ever seeing her son again.

Youth and Life

A Caring House for Boys and Girls and Their Problems

By ROY B. SWEN

In a world where the problem of juvenile delinquency is quite the prominent one, it is not surprising that the problem of juvenile delinquency is not something that is often discussed.

The problem of juvenile delinquency is a complex one, and it is not something that can be solved by a simple fix. It requires a comprehensive approach, involving both education and prevention.

The key to solving the problem of juvenile delinquency is to identify the root causes and to develop targeted interventions.

Teenage Boys Who Suffer from the "broken heart" syndrome need special attention. They often feel abandoned and alone, and they may turn to substance abuse as a coping mechanism.

Children who are neglected or abused need a stable and loving environment. They need to feel safe and secure, and they need to develop healthy relationships with adults.

LGBTQ+ youth face unique challenges, including discrimination and societal stigma. They need support and acceptance to help them navigate this difficult journey.

The problem of juvenile delinquency is not a simple one, and it requires a comprehensive approach, involving both education and prevention. It is a problem that affects all of us, and it is a problem that we all have a role to play in addressing.
