APPLIANCE MATUREs IN DEFINITE LENGTH OF GROWING SEASON

Everyone is more or less familiar with the fact that the varieties of vegetables and fruits which ripen at different seasons make the apple requiring a definite number of days to mature in fruit after the blossoms are shed. Some varieties, like the Rome, should be picked when they are 180 days old, others 150 to 160, and still others in 140 days from blossoming time. Apparently this time interval for the different varieties regardless of other factors such as weather conditions, will remain the same, although it might be increased or decreased through three factors: development of apple varieties in the country, where the apple stands in the middle latitudes, and finally the general climatic conditions. The apple bloom in the Midwest will be very early this year, and the first fruit crop about 180 days old.

Varieties requiring 140 to 160 days by the middle of August are the Stayman, Winesap, Baldwin, and maybe the Wilson, all of which have early bloom. On the other hand, varieties of the Northern Spy, Greening, Stark, or Baldwin may be grown in the apple districts of the north, where there is plenty of soil to force the stand, and less danger of rotting in the winter, being used as winter or storage apples. When the storage season is delayed, these four varieties are full harvest and can be harvested when thoroughly softened and placed at the proper time.

Generally, winter storage varieties of apples are less valuable for the particular reason that the fruit is treeless until cool weather prevails.

State to Aid in Beaver Farming

In an effort to encourage and promote beaver farming, the department of agriculture is preparing a manual of instructions for beaver farmers who wish to engage in beaver farming for pecuniary purposes.

The animals are to be trapped on the state trust lands in sections of the upper peninsula where they have become a serious menace to the damage of trees and the loss of timber. A number of trappers have been engaged by the state to catch the animals and send them to market. A number of trappers have been engaged by the state to catch the animals and send them to market.

The trappers should be warned that the animals should be handled with care and that the beavers should be kept in a cool, dry place.

FISH IN TWO HEARTS ARE NOT GRAYLING

The rumor, reported early this week, that strange fish caught in the state's two rivers were not grayling, has proven to be without foundation.

A specimen of the strange fish was brought down from Lake Superior by F. P. Larson of the state fishery department, in charge of game fishers. Anglers on the Two Hearted River, however, were surprised to discover a strange silver fish, known locally as "Recreation," which he believed might be grayling.

The process of grayling is a matter of notoriety in the state's two rivers, and it was feared that the strange fish might be grayling. The strange fish was released into the Two Hearted River in the city of Marquette, and it is expected to be released into the separate streams near Sturgeon Bay, Michigan.

Grand Haven Ships for East for Peter Pan

A task force of ready, able and willing men, consisting of twenty-two men and twenty horses, followed from Grand Haven to New York, New York, to begin the task of erecting a monument.

The monument, a tall stone obelisk, stands on a small island in the center of the river. It will be 50 feet high, and will be the largest in the state. The stone of the monument is of a unique variety, which will give it a distinctive appearance.

Pampering our dog, puppies are a great source of comfort and joy. They are also a source of worry, especially if you're considering having a puppy for the first time. It can be overwhelming to know where to start, especially when it comes to the right breed or size of puppy. Here are a few tips to help you get started: Consider your lifestyle. Puppies require a lot of time, energy, and money. They also need a lot of attention and exercise, so think about your schedule before bringing a puppy home. Be realistic about your budget. Puppies can be expensive, so make sure you have the money to buy the right food, supplies, and veterinary care. Choose the right breed. There are so many different breeds of dogs, each with their own unique characteristics and temperaments. Consider what type of dog would be the best fit for your lifestyle and personality. Establish boundaries. Puppies can be mischievous, so it's important to establish boundaries from day one. This will help your puppy learn what is and isn't allowed, and it will also help you avoid any future problems. Be patient. Training a puppy takes time and dedication. Be patient with your puppy and don't expect them to learn everything overnight. Remember, puppies are learning, and they need your patience and support.

You need never change your oil if you own a Buick.

Tests by Buick at General Motors Proving Ground and at Buick owners' conveyors in every section of the world—under every climatic condition—have proved that you never change your oil if you own a Buick. Replenishments and inspections of the Buick oil-atler only, are required. This is still another Buick contribution to the economy and efficiency of motor car operation...another indication of Buick's greater value.

Youth and Life
A Clearing House for Boys and Girls and Their Problems
By BOYD W. THOMSON

The Cast Before the Horse
We need to use the superlatives, "the best before the horse." In this case of horseflesh criticism it is probably being used out of date. One hardly knows what to say. Perhaps we could say: "You're pasting yourself for your bettor." Or, "You've got your tail in front." One of my friends required his son Fred out early and when he stepped to the rear of the public to get in out of the garage. The lamp hung large for the object of getting back under the light. Perhaps, "You're gone - behind the scenes." One of the situations in life in which things can be said of ourselves is when we are the center of attention. If the Bible is full of stories of people who were the center of attention, the Bible is full of stories of what we should be the center of attention. Therefore, the first statement can be made of ourselves: "The best before the horse." And when we see that, we see that the best is always before the horse.

CHAPTER TWO.

"On the second day," said John, "We had arrived at the small town of Java. It is a very quiet town, with only a few houses and a small church. But it was very warm and we decided to stay there for the night."

"That's a good idea," said Jack. "We need to rest our feet."
