VOL XXXVIII

GOBLES, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, JANUARY 19, 1927

NO. 18

LOCAL BREVITIES

Marjorie Graham was home from St. Joe for the week end.

W. C. Kahl of Bloomingdale called at the News office Saturday and renewed.

The Sunny Day Club will meet with Mrs. Homer Connery next Thursday.

Lill Mack was calling on friends here Monday. He reports that Mrs. Will Neeson is not so well.

Will Pullin bought a buffalo's head that he is having mounted at the meat market that is attracting much attention.

S. R. Hayden renews his subscription for the 23rd time under the present management. Hope he will do the same for 23 more.

Mrs. Watts and daughter went to Ann Arbor for an operation and treatment for the latter. It is hoped she will be permanently improved.

Herman Schowe, Anton Klachek, Arthur Albright and Fred Brandt drove to Chicago Tuesday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Albert Bartolaine.

Lon Post has completed his new home at 534 Eleanor st. Kalamazoo and has moved to same. Mrs. Chan Post has gone there to spend the balance of the winter.

Guests at the home of S. J. Taylor Monday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coulson, Mrs. Myrtle Coulson and Wreatha. Ice cream and cake were served.

The new Ford is here to stay. Mr. Gamboe received his first one Monday night, and believe me, he is pretty proud of it. Ask him to show you and see him smile.

Several local subscribers paid their subscriptions this week before they received a notice proving that some had money left even after paying good big taxes.

Guy Graham was home last week. He has been assigned territory in southeastern Ohio and started on the new job Monday. We wish him the greatest success possible.

A goodly number enjoyed the hospitality of the local Odd Fellows and Rebekahs at the open county meeting last Thursday evening and again at the card party Friday evening.

Of the 300 notices sent to us last week Frank Sackett of Mattawan was the first to renew. Another proof of promptness on the part of banks and bankers in attending to important business.

Carleton Markillie has accepted a position in the real estate and accounting department of the Kalamazoo First National Bank. This position came to him unsolicited, which is most gratifying.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Mahieu announce the birth of a son, Donald Marvin, on January 13, 1928; 8 pounds. Grandpa Mike walks a little more stately and thinks Friday the 13th was not such a bad day after all.

At the annual meeting of the Gobles Telephone Co. Saturday the officers were reelected except that George Neale replaced Andy Sackett as director for 2 years. The company is giving excellent service at lowest possible cost.

At the Bank meeting last Thursday the directors were re-elected and the officers continued. This institution holds high rank with the state banking commission and is giving more free service than any other bank with which we are acquainted and paying 4 per cent on deposits.

The Present World Situation will be discussed by Dr. E. R. Fulkerson, former United States Vice Consul to Japan, at the Methodist church here, next Tuesday evening at 7:30. Dr. Fulkerson has spent 20 years in foreign lands and has a message you will enjoy. No admission charge but a free will offering will be received to defray expenses. You are urged to hear him.

Basket ball Friday night.

Snow gone and fine spring weather prevails.

See ad of big double header basket ball on last page.

Gobles All Stars won from Decatur Tuesday night, score 11 to 14.

Hudson & Son have installed some new display tables, adding to the appearance of their store.

Mrs. Styles Sunday school class will start soon to collect supplies for the Mather Industrial school.

R. M. Curtiss has improved the interior of his store by removing the enclosure from the display window.

Hart Messinger and family were over from Chicago for the week end. Mrs. Ed Messinger returned with them for a visit.

George Sage was in Chicago the first of the week sold two lots and contracted for 4 more new summer homes. So the resort season starts with a bang.

At the meeting Monday the Milling Company reelected all directors and officers. This concern is putting forth every effort to serve the people well in their respective lines and increased business is a good reward for these efforts.

Last Saturday Mrs. Otis Lohrberg and Mrs. Howard Eldridge entertained 25 little folks at the home of the former in honor of the birthdays of Jean Eldridge and Bruce Lohrberg. Needless to say the kiddies were well entertained and had a big time—Toy balloons and rings were the favors.

Mrs. Harrelson entertained eight tables of the ladies at 500 at her home Tuesday afternoon. After a friendly contest which all enjoyed a choice luncheon was served and honors distributed. The pleasures of the afternoon were ample rewards for the curt receptions at home from the hungry husbands.

Dog Quarantine Van Buren County

The fact has been established that dogs affected with an infectious and communicable disease known as "rabies" have recently been at large in the vicinity of Paw Paw and Bangor and are known to have bitten persons and animals and may have come in contact with dogs as yet unknown.

Notice is hereby given that all dogs owned or kept in Van Buren County, State of Michigan, unless properly vaccinated against rabies within one year by a qualified veterinarian and tagged for ready identification, shall be securely chained or otherwise properly confined on the premises of their owner or keeper, or if allowed to run at large shall be securely muzzled to prevent the aforesaid dogs from biting any other animals or persons. All owners or keepers of dogs are hereby prohibited from removing any dog whatsoever from said townships during the period of this quarantine, unless the dog has been properly vaccinated against rabies by a qualified veterinarian within one year of date of removal.

The attention of all owners or keepers of dogs in the above named territory is hereby called to the following sections of the Michigan State Laws relating to the Bureau of Animal Industry which provide a penalty for violations of this quarantine order.

This quarantine order shall be in full force and effect from and during the period between January 13, 1928 and April 12, 1928 inclusive.

Dated January 13, 1928.

School Notes

By Joe Waber

A student council has been formed for the purpose of controlling and bettering all school activities. In this council the seniors are represented by Faith Winters, Maybert Camfield and Arthur MacGregor, of which one must be chosen president; the juniors by Maxine Winters and Karl Kloock; the Sophomores by Joe Waber; the Freshmen by Guinivere Thompson and the Junior highs by William Clement. The student body elected Faith Winters, president. The other officers were chosen from within the council. Maxine Winters was elected vice president; Maybert Camfield, secretary and Joe Waber, treasurer. This promises to be a good organization and should have the support of the school in full.

The Gobles debating team won a unanimous decision of the judges in its debate with Watervliet. This is good work and the team and their coach, Mr. Stratton should be congratulated.

The basket ball teams did fine work in their struggle against Covert and every player on the Gobles team fought to the last minute. The Gobles second team defeated Covert 6 to 5. The first team lost 17 to 20. Everyone come out tomorrow night for the Lawrence game. Both girls and boys play.

HOG CHOLERA IS MENACE IF NEGLECTED

It is positively known that the infection of hog cholera may be carried from contaminated sources to clean premises, from the sick herd to the healthy one. Though some of the means of conveying the disease are still obscure there are several well known channels of infection. Against these the swine owners may readily guard in protecting their herds.

The most dangerous factor in the spread of this disease, claim specialists, according to H. S. Osler, Washenaw county agricultural agent, is the contact of hogs sick with cholera with susceptible hogs, that is, hogs that have not been immunized. Sick hogs should be kept apart from the remainder of the herd and should be well fenced in, thus eliminating the danger of their escaping and mingling with healthy though susceptible hogs. On the other hand, farmers should keep all hogs protected against roaming hogs by having hog-tight fences.

The introduction into the herd of new stock hogs coming from either small local stockyards or from local sales has carried cholera to entire herds in many instances. These small assembling and loading yards become contaminated with cholera and the disease, as a rule, goes with the hogs purchased there. There is the same danger in buying hogs at public sale, as well as borrowing for breeding purposes and in returning hogs from fairs or other exhibitions. Unless the home herd carries immunity against cholera new stock hogs brought to the farm should be kept by themselves well removed from the others for at least 21 days. The lending and borrowing of breeding stock should be done with great precaution to avoid the spread of cholera.

The failure of swine owners to burn or bury the hogs that die on their premises has resulted in many an outbreak of hog cholera. This is the factor that enables the dog and the buzzard to carry cholera infection to other farms. All diseased animals that die on the farm should be properly disposed of by either burning or burying deeply.

The feeding of table scraps and garbage to non-immune hogs is a dangerous practice from the standpoint of cholera infection. Such feed may contain trimmings, rind and bones originating from cholera infected pork, and the virus of the disease may thus be conveyed to the herd.

The stock-food peddler and the hog buyer going from farm to farm, and from one hog lot or pen to another, are still regarded as potential factors in the carrying of cholera infection. These men go to many places in the course of the day and may tramp through infected premises. There is always a possibility that the virus of cholera may be carried in the mud or manure on shoes, hoofs of horses, and wheels of wagons.

Small streams, brooks, and canals, in which cholera-sick hogs wallow become contaminated and the infection carried by the current may attack susceptible hogs having access to these waters. Hogs not immunized should be kept away from such streams.

While other possible means of transmission may be enumerated, those mentioned are considered the chief ones. If these factors are guarded against much will be done to prevent the spread of cholera and to reduce losses. However, since it is a difficult matter to safeguard against all these dangers, the safe and positive method to follow in sections producing many hogs is that of immunization of the herd. This done as yearly procedure will remove all anxiety as to the safety of the animals.

Seed Body Leads in Finance Gain

The Michigan Certified Seed Potato Growers' Association is believed to have increased its net worth more during the past year than any other co-operative organization in the state.

At the close of the fiscal year it had a net worth of $851, compared with $46 in 1926. The organization's commissions during the past year totaled $8,163. More than 71,000 bushels of seed potatoes were handled.

Expenses for the year approximated $5,739, leaving a balance of $2,423. Half of the balance was turned over to the Michigan Potato Growers' Exchange, its sales agent, to be retained as a working fund to finance the seed association. The remainder was placed in the surplus account.

Farm Loan Associations Unable to Pay Dividends

Farm Loan associations throughout the Seventh district, which includes Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and North Dakota, will receive no dividends this year for the first time since 1920. This is due to delinquencies on interest payments and other tardy payments. The Federal Land Bank of St. Paul has taken over 39 Michigan farms and a total of 183 throughout the Seventh district.

Declares Hunters' Deer Toll Grows; Supply in Danger

"It's all very well to use the interest—that is, the annual increase—of the Michigan deer herd, but when we come to draw on the principal as well each hunting season, that's a different matter."

This was the declaration of Edward A. Hyer, of Kent Scientific museum, to members of Dwight Lydell chapter of the Izaak Walton league at the noonday luncheon meeting Friday, in connection with the number of deer killed in the north woods of the state each autumn.

Pointing about 9,000 deer have been reported killed in the upper peninsula alone in the past few hunting seasons, Mr. Hyer declared this amounted to more than the natural increase in an area no larger than that section of Michigan above the straits.

The practice of exhausting the breeding stock, or, as he termed it, the principal, soon would have a serious effect upon the deer population if continued, he declared.

In his talk Mr. Hyer also described the collecting of birds and animals for museum exhibits. He has done considerable collecting for the Kent institution, including the taking of the black bears for the museum's well known group of those animals, and his talk, which was illustrated with lantern slides, proved most interesting.

Commonwealth Says Men at Best at 60

Renowned men of the present live from 20 to 30 years longer than did the celebrities of the past and reach the peak of their achievement ten years later in life, according to Dr. W. A. Newman Dorland, a Chicago surgeon.

"Fifty was the average age at which 400 of the famous men of history did their best work and world leaders now living reach the height of their ability at from 60 to 70," he states.

Old time chemists and physicists reached their production peak at the age of 41, Dr. Dorland estimates; dramatists, poets and inventors, at 44; novelists, at 46; explorers and soldiers at 47; musical composers and actors at 48; artists and preachers, at 50; essayists and reformers, at 51; physicians, surgeons and statesmen, at 52; philosophers, at 54; astronomers, mathematicians and humorists, at 56; historians, at 57, and naturalists and judges at 58.

"If these men were moderns they would live twenty years longer and continue to do great things," the surgeon asserts. "The practice of corporations and universities of retiring their men at 60 years is a waste of their best brains. Roughly, I would say that 85 per cent of the big things done today were the work of men past 50."—The Commonwealth.

Urges Farmers to Buy Land

"The best informed men in the agricultural field are convinced that the next five to fifteen years will see farming advance into a period of remarkable prosperity," said Mr. R. W. Dunlap, assistant secretary, United States Department of Agriculture, at a recent meeting of agriculturists in Providence, R. I.

In his talk he said further, "The farmers of the future will most certainly have more reason to be thankful than the farmers of the past." There is plenty of evidence to bear out that view. He believes that now, because of the low prices at which good land can be secured, is the most opportune time we have had in several years for the procurement of a farm.

This sentiment seems to be that of many of the thinking leaders in the agricultural world today and certainly we do not know of a period in the history of the Nation when good lands sold so cheaply in comparison with other commodities. We have been told, and rightly so, that real estate is the foundation of all wealth and certainly farm lands have been very desirable real estate and in the regular cycle of events it will again approach the peak at a comparatively early date.

We do not believe, however, that a man desiring to purchase farm lands should go blindly and buy any piece of dirt he should be offered, but common sense should be used, quality considered and certainly location is a paramount consideration when the unearned increment comes into play.

Judiciously purchased farm lands now look like the best bet and we firmly believe now is the time to buy land.

Third Cow Testing Assn. Formed in Montcalm

A third Montcalm county cow testing association has recently been organized with the following officers: Carl C. Johnson, president; Harold Taylor, vice president; Andrew L. Peterson, secretary and treasurer. All are from Trufant.

The membership is composed largely of men from Trufant, Greenville, Sheridan and Stanton. A year ago there was but one testing association in the county. Since that time one has been organized at Carson City.

POULTRY

FEEDING GRAIN IN BOXES FOUND PRACTICAL

Illinois investigators recently completed a poultry feeding experiment in an effort to determine the value of feeding the scratch grain or grain ration to chickens in the straw litter. Since straw litter is often soiled and contaminated, it was felt that feeding from clean boxes would be much more advisable from the standpoint of sanitation. Whether or not the exercise that the hens receive from being required to scratch for their feed is of enough value in increased egg production to offset the risk of disease that is involved was the query that these feeding tests were designed to answer.

Three flocks of Rhode Island Reds and three flocks of White Leghorns were placed on feed in these tests. One flock of each breed received dry mash fed in hoppers and a scratch grain in the straw litter, night and morning. Another flock of each breed received dry mash in hoppers and the grain mixture in shallow boxes or troughs, night and morning. Still another flock of each breed received the grain mixture ground and mixed with the mash ration, fed from the mash hoppers. The mash ration fed in these tests was composed of 17 pounds ground corn, 17 pounds ground oats, 17 pounds wheat bran, 17 pounds flour middlings, 25 pounds dried buttermilk, five pounds bone meal and two pounds salt. The grain mixture fed in all cases was composed of 70 pounds shelled corn and 30 pounds oats.

The results did not show any particular advantage for either litter or box feeding of scratch grain, although these two methods did seem to have some advantage over grinding the grain mixture and feeding it with the mash. In the case of the Rhode Island Reds, the flock receiving the grain in the straw litter produced an average of 117 eggs per hen for the 44 weeks that the feeding was conducted. Those receiving the grain in boxes produced an average of 129 eggs per hen while those that were fed ground grain with the mash produced 105 eggs per hen.

White Leghorns showed slightly different results, however. Those that received grain in the litter produced 126 eggs per hen; those that received grain in boxes, 124 eggs per hen; and those that received their grain in ground form, 116 eggs per hen. These results do not indicate that one method of feeding is advisable for Rhode Island Reds while another is best for White Leghorns. They indicate, rather, that one method of feeding is as good as the other, where the grain is fed whole and not ground, and that any variations between these two methods is, no doubt, due to variations between the flocks on test.

A number of experiment stations have found recently that all mash feeding is as good or better than mash and grain feeding, but the results of these Illinois investigations can easily be interpreted as indicating that grinding the grain ration and feeding with the mash is not always the best procedure. In both breeds on test in Illinois, the egg production was reduced slightly, and since the grinding would increase the cost somewhat, it is a practice that cannot be recommended at this time for every flock or under all circumstances.

PLANS MADE FOR 1928 EGG WEEK

At the recent National Poultry Congress, held in Chicago, November 28th and 29th, Harry R. Lewis, managing director of the National Poultry Council, reported that the "National Egg Week" campaign conducted last year brought an amount of publicity to the egg industry, as shown by clippings from papers over the United States, that would have cost the industry $100,000, had the space been obtainable.

In the light of the success of last year's campaign along lines designed to popularize the egg, and in view of the fact that the per capita consumption of eggs is only about half as meeting following the adjournment of the congress, voted to conduct "National Egg Week" during 1928, from May 1st to May 7th, inclusive. It was also voted by the council that if funds were available, a "National Poultry Week" would be held during the week commencing October 10th.

FINDS FARMS UNPROFITABLE.

Additional evidence that Michigan farmers are at least as bad off as they claim was presented this week in a report of an investigation of the income from 25 Ingham county farms pursued by E. B. Hill, assistant dean of agriculture at Michigan State college, East Lansing.

Professor Hill's survey showed that the average income from 25 farms, all of them considered to be more efficiently operated than the average Michigan farm, was $642. The highest income revealed was $2,700 and the best eight averaged $1,678. Average losses of $336 were shown, however, by the eight least profitable places.

Talk of overproduction of poultry is current because egg production has increased about 25 per cent in the United States since the war, though the country's population has increased only 8 per cent. However, it should be remembered that the poultry industry is one of the easiest to get in or out of and the possibility of overproduction for any length of time is less than in most other farm enterprises.

EAGLE HARBOR COAST GUARD PRAISED BY CONGRESS

Members of the house of representatives paused in their discussion of the tax bill to listen to a tribute by Representative Carss of Minnesota to the work of the United States coast guard in rescuing storm victims on the Great Lakes. Applause swept the floor as he finished.

"I have asked for this time," Representative Carss said, after the house had halted its debate by unanimous consent, "to call the attention of the house to the gallant rescue of human life on the Great Lakes by the coast guard recently. In addition to saving 48 lives on the Carolina coast, the coast guard station at Marquette, Mich., on Dec. 10, rescued 24 men and one woman from the stranded steamer E. W. Oglebay, which went ashore 12 miles east of that station. This rescue was effected under dangerous conditions.

"The Eagle Harbor coast guard station in Michigan, after a two days' endeavor to break through the ice, succeeded on Saturday, Dec. 10, in rescuing 21 persons from the Canadian steamer Altodoc, ashore at Keweenaw Point, Mich. The rescued men were put aboard the coast guard cutter Crawford and landed.

"I wish to say a word about this coast guard cutter Crawford. This boat left Two Harbors, Minn., in the teeth of a 50-mile gale, with the thermometer hovering around 30 degrees below zero, crossed Lake Superior, the largest body of fresh water in the world, and appeared on the scene in time to assist in this rescue. I call attention to this fact because it has added greater laurels and glory to the coast guard.

"These remarks refer to the activities of only four or five units of the coast guard, which have reported to date. Not until the full story of the great storm is told will we be able to appraise the service it rendered, but the saving of 96 lives in one week surely is a very creditable record in itself. While we are appropriating millions of dollars for the army and navy, let us not fail to provide funds for this arm of the service—these men who are battling the storms day and night in the greatest of all causes, the cause of humanity."

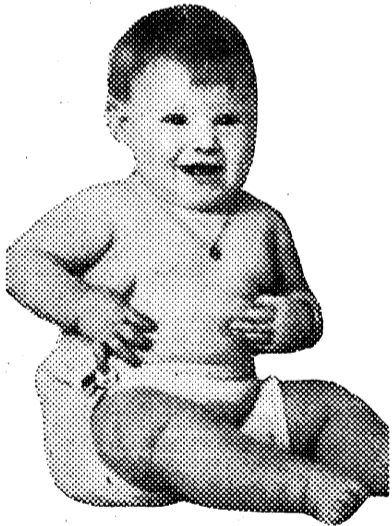

During the war the officers frequently had difficulty in getting the proper salutes from the Negro recruits.

One bright morning a Negro private met the colonel of his regiment and greeted him with "Howdy, Boss."

There followed a long tirade from the officer on the correct way to salute. The other listened in silence, scratching his head in perplexity. Finally he interrupted long enough to say:

"Land's sakes, boss, if Ah'd thought you was going to feel so bad about it, Ah wouldn't have spoke to you a-tall."

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

NEWAYGO WALTONS PLAN BENEFIT FOR 5 COUNTY CHAPTERS

The Newaygo county associated chapters of the Izaak Walton league are making preparations for a banquet for the members of the five county chapters, to be held early in March. The committee which will arrange the program and select the town in which the banquet is to be held consists of the presidents of the five chapters: Ralph H. Grilley, Grant; Ralph W. Corey, Fremont; Ed Peterson, Newaygo; Clyde E. Cooper, White Cloud, and Charles E. Greening, Bity. An effort is being made to secure James T. McGillivray of Oscoda for an illustrated address on wild life.

A delegation from the county organization will go to Lansing to confer with the conservation commission regarding the removal of steelhead trout and wall-eyed pike from the Muskegon below the Newaygo dam for the purpose of planting them in the ponds above the Croton dam.

Each of the five local chapters is investigating sites suitable for bass ponds and these will be inspected by Henry Schull of Grand Rapids, who will recommend the places best suited to the raising of bass fry to fingerling size for lake planting.

As game wardens report a scarcity of pheasants in Newaygo county, the associated chapters will make application to the state conservation department for a shipment of male pheasants for spring delivery.

The dues for the Izaak Walton league have been fixed by the county organization at $3, this amount going to the state and national organization. The work of the local chapters will be financed by assessment.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Defunct Bank at Grand Ledge Pays

Depositors in the defunct Farmers' and Merchants' bank at Grand Ledge were made happy when they received checks mailed out by the American State Savings bank at Lansing, receiver for the Grand Ledge bank, making full 100 per cent restitution. This was made possible by a 250 per cent assessment on stockholders. Because the bank was a private affair, the stockholders associated as in an old-fashioned partnership, were fully responsible.

M43 to Be Paved in Barry County

Barry county, according to advice received from Lansing, is to get more paved highway outside of Hastings in 1928.

The administrative board has voted to pave M43 from the south Rutland township line through this city to Barbers Corners on the Hastings-Carlton township line.

A gravel road will be built eastward from Barbers Corners through Coats Grove to a point three miles south of Woodland, thence north into that village. The administrative board also has authorized the construction of about two miles of gravel road to connect M79 near the old Mudge farm on the Hastings-Nashville road to M79 from Nashville to Battle Creek at the McKelvey schoolhouse in Maple Grove.

State Campers Increasing

An increase of 45.6 per cent in the attendance in state parks this year over that for 1926 is reported by P. J. Hofmaster, superintendent of state parks. The attendance in parks this year was 5,107,000 as against 3,509,000 a year ago and 2,500,000 in 1925. The Grand Haven State park led all others with an attendance of 1,467,000; while Island Lake park, near Brighton, was second with 767,000. Every state in the Union and Canada were represented by the 123,000 campers in the various parks.

Seek Marine City Plant

Three firms are said to be endeavoring to purchase the defunct Independent Sugar Company's plant at Marine City for manufacturing purposes. The plant is in the hands of the government for unpaid taxes since 1919, county and state claim unpaid taxes of $97,000. The three proposed purchasers are the Rapid Transit Corporation of America which would use the plant as a warehouse and cement plant; John Kantzler & Sons Lumber Company, of St. Clair, Marysville, Bay City and Florida, which would use it as a new lumber yard and wood working plant, and an unnamed company represented by J. M. Gould, of Hastings. The latter interests are said to be considering its use for a paper plant. The property has 1,000 feet of St. Clair river frontage and contains 30 acres.

DENY ROSET OIL WELL DRILLING ABANDONED

That pumping of the oil well on the Mary Roset farm near New Baltimore has not been completely given up by the St. Clair Oil and Gas Company with the dismantling of the pumping equipment was stated by Louis Wolf, president of the company. Another pumping outfit will be installed next spring, according to Mr. Wolf, and another attempt made to pump oil from the 2,600-foot hole.

"The drillers who were employed to drive the well and pump it, pumped but six hours after the final 'shot' of 300 pounds of nitro-glycerine," said Mr. Wolf, "and naturally all they brought up was water and oil. Then their equipment went wrong. We claim that it will take probably 30 hours of pumping to clear the well of water before we can tell the actual value of the oil production. The company hasn't lost faith in the well after but six hours' effort."

As the F. C. Moran Company of Port Huron, which had the drilling contract, is dismantling all of its equipment it will be necessary to install a new outfit for pumping in the spring. Mr. Wolf said the officials of the company are enthusiastic over finding the oil and are anxious to determine just how much oil there is in the well.

The second drilling attempt by the company is to start soon on the Otto Coulon farm on the Romeo Plank road, about a mile north of the famous Dead Man's Curve. No derrick is being erected for this well as the work will be done with one of the new portable outfits.

According to estimates made by D. W. Brown, geologist for the St. Clair Company, oil should be found on the Coulon farm at a depth of 1,000 feet. The company has secured options on a large amount of surrounding country for oil development and it is said to have oil leases on 60,000 acres around the first two wells.

Plans are also being made to drill for gas near Marine City in the near future by the company.

1,000 Airports in 1928

Airplant construction last year was estimated at $20,000,000, an increase of 60 per cent over 1925, according to Clarence M. Young, director of aeronautics of the department of commerce, in his annual report.

By next year the nation will have 1,000 airports, he estimated. Already one oil company has painted names of cities on 4,000 stations and soon air taxi lines will be at the beck and call of business men, he said, ready to fly over well marked and illuminated highways. On June 30 of this year, Mr. Young said, there were 4,121 miles of lighted airway in the nation, including 2,041 of transcontinental airway.

"Yes, we have our troubles," complained a park policeman the other day. "For instance, there's Mrs. who has donated a marble bird bath. Only yesterday she called me over and told me it was for sparrows and not to allow any other birds to bathe in it."—N. Y. Sun.

New Year to Mark Change in Currency

The year 1928 will mark the first change in size of paper money since 1861.

For months the bureau of engraving and printing, the greatest printing shop in the world, will be busy making new and smaller $1 bills so that upon some fixed day next fall they may be issued simultaneously throughout the country and the old ones retired at one swoop, to be redeemed, of course, upon demand. Notes of other denominations will be printed and put in circulation probably in 1929.

The new notes will be 6 5/16 by 2 11/16 inches whereas the notes now in circulation are 7 7/16 by 3 1/8 inches. By the change the government expects to save $2,000,000 annually. The reduction in size of the bills is expected to increase the capacity of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing by 50 per cent because twelve of the smaller notes can be printed at one impression upon the same press which now prints but eight.

Through the change in size the bills will be made more convenient to handle and will also be more durable. The new notes will slip into a bill-fold or pocket, it is claimed, without creasing or folding, and for this reason are expected to have a much longer life than those now in use. The life of the average bill now is not more than six or seven months, treasury officials say. Folding is one of the chief items cutting short the life of paper money.

Designs on the bills are also to be standardized. Many designs now appear on the different denominations and the various kinds of notes. Washington's portrait, for example, appears both on the $1 and some $20 bills.

Treasury officials point out that through standardizing the designs the new notes cannot be so easily "raised" to higher denominations by the crooked gentry who make this their business. In addition to standardized designs on the new paper money there will be a relation between the portrait in the face and the engraving on the back, except in the cases of the $1 bill and those above the $100.

On the face of the new $1 bill will be the portrait of Washington and on the back will be the word "ONE" in large letters. On the $2 bill will be a portrait of Jefferson with an engraving of Monticello, his home, on the back.

Lincoln's portrait will be on the face of the $5 bill with the Lincoln Memorial for the back. Hamilton's portrait will appear on the face of the $10 bill and the treasury building on the back. For the face of the $20 bill Grover Cleveland's portrait has been chosen, with the White House for the back.

Grant's portrait will be on the face of the $50 bill, Benjamin Franklin's on the $100, McKinley's on the $500, Jackson's on the $1,000, Madison's on the $5,000, and Chase's on the $10,000.

All these designs have been approved, although some may be changed later.

No retirement of money-making machinery will be necessitated by the change, it is said.

Adds $1,000,000 Business

An increase of nearly one million dollars in the Michigan business of the Northwestern National Life Insurance Company, of Minneapolis, has been reflected by the expansion of the Detroit office to twice its former capacity and opening of a new office suite in the Michigan Trust building in Grand Rapids, it is learned from Truman H. Cummings, state agent for the company at Detroit.

The total business done by the company in Michigan in 1926 amounted to approximately $2,400,000, as against $3,100,000 in 1927, it was stated. The 1927 quotation does not include group insurance which was written for the first time by this company in 1927. Detroit, Grand Rapids and what is known as a "rural agency" at Ionia were outstanding contributors to the increased total.

FAKE EYE DOCTORS MAY BE RETURNED FOR MICH. TRIALS

Michigan may yet have an opportunity to try one of the "eye specialists" who have been working confidence games in this state over a period of nearly two years, as a result of arrest at Wheaton, Ill., of two men who have been identified by Charles Reeder, Dabny township, as Harry Cline and Otto Schwartz, who bilked him out of $312 last spring.

The men are said to have worked in much the same manner as Fred Asner, alias Dr. Anderson, who was refused to Michigan officers recently, when they attempted to extradite him from Waterloo, Ill., to face charges in Eaton county.

Cline and Schwartz were arrested for practicing medicine without a license. Ionia was notified and Deputy Sheriff McKendry was sent to try to bring them back. Reeder went with the officer and identified the men as those who defrauded him on a fake eye operation scheme.

In July, Cline is claimed to have attempted to obtain $600 from Miss Enola Reeder, sister of their earlier victim, on a similar swindle. He posed at that time as "Dr. Williams."

Illinois officers claim all of those under arrest there on the fake doctor charges are part of a national or international gang whose headquarters are in Kansas City, Mo.

Asner will be tried by the Illinois authorities in Monroe county, but it is possible Cline and Schwartz will be returned to Ionia or Eaton county, as it is thought the cases against the men there are more certain to result in convictions than the Illinois charges.

PENSIONS LOST TO TEACHERS OF MICHIGAN

More than 650 pensioned school teachers will lose their pensions from the state for at least the next two years, it appeared when it was revealed the last legislature had inadvertently repealed the retirement fund act.

Miss Cora Riggs, chairman of the retirement fund board, and Webster H. Pearce, superintendent of public instruction, sought in vain for a way to continue the monthly payments. A special board meeting will be held to consider the problem.

The fund now has a balance of $750,000, sufficient to continue the fund about three years if there are no more receipts, but the state treasurer, said he has no authority to release this money since the pension law is no longer in force. The annual payments to teachers who have served 30 years or longer amount to $255,000.

Detroit teachers are not affected, as the law covers all of the state except Detroit. That city has a special retirement fund of its own.

The repeal of the pension law resulted from an effort on the part of education leaders to include this statute in the codification of the school laws passed by the last legislature. A new retirement fund was set up in this act and the bill repealed the old. The measure did not reach the lawmakers until near the close of the session and when opposition resulted the retirement fund clause was stricken out.

The repealing clause remained intact and it was not until Thursday that the authorities awoke to the fact that teachers' pensions are now illegal.

Not only are the teachers now receiving pensions affected, but the 25,000 out-state teachers contributing to the fund will find more money in their pay envelopes hereafter. The fund was kept up by taking small amounts from each teacher's salary.

Pearce, who is ex-officio member of the retirement fund board, said he will recommend at the special meeting that the board request an opinion on the situation from Attorney-General W. W. Potter, pointing out that a similar oversight by the New Jersey legislature was held unconstitutional. Little hope, however, is held that the school code will be held invalid.

Members of Class of 1886 Still Send Out Annual Letter

Mrs. E. J. Blekkink of Holland is one of a class of nine who have kept in touch with each other since they were graduated from Bowne college in Wisconsin in 1886. For 41 years each member of the class, with one exception, has written a letter each year and these have been mailed from one to the other in alphabetical order until the chain was completed.

The members reside in England; Nebraska, Indiana, Michigan, South Dakota, California and Florida. One member has died since graduation. Two teachers of their college days still are living.

Miss Alyda Pieters, sister of Rev. Albertus Pieters of Western Theological seminary, now is dean of the institution, which since has been changed to Bowne Milwaukee college.

Much Water, Little Food, Rule in Colds Says W. S. T. C. Nurse

Maintaining that many of the remedies sold for colds have too high an alcoholic content, Miss Ellis Walker, nurse at Western State Teachers' college, today warned the students of the college against them.

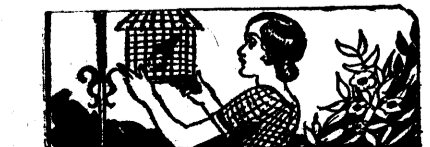

Miss Walker urged the value of fresh air, rest, plenty of water and a light diet as a remedy against colds, which may be altogether prevented, she said, with proper precautions.

Songs of a Housewife

MISTRESS AND HOUSE
A gracious mistress for this gracious place,
She moves in harmony with flowers and birds;
Her voice is gentle, filled with gentle words
And there is sunlight on her quiet face.

The rooms are sunny, and the light streams here
From morn to night. Outside the windows, trees
Murmur the year 'round in the soft sweet breeze.
How much is mistress? How much atmosphere?

Here is a combination choice and good:
This lovely home behind its welcoming gate
Has found in her its mistress and its mate;
She crowns its beauty with her womanhood.

Soutache Battenberg Revived

After years of oblivion, Battenberg is to be revived, according to fashion prognosticators. The lace and crepe frock (left) is entirely developed in jade green with the close fitting little chapeau in jade and apple tones. The other model (right) is an Americanized version of the peasant frock. The conventionally designed soutache braid trimming on the blouse tucks the voluminous sleeves into a deep cuff. The large black and white stain hat indicates spring millinery tendencies. Billie Dove is the model.

THAT STOLEN HORSE

Civilization locks the barn after the horse has been stolen. Are you going to do the same? The test of your ability is this: Can you learn to lock the barn before the horse is stolen?

Some time ago I had an auto tire stolen. Since then I have kept a padlock on my spare. Probably not again in my lifetime will there be any real need for it. But I did not seriously feel that a lock was necessary until too late. I wasn't wise enough to foresee the danger and prevent the loss.

A few months ago the greatest flood in the history of the Mississippi rolled down the valley of the Father of Waters. Now we shall get busy and invent some adequate flood control. There may be another flood like it, and there may not. But anyhow, the damage of this great catastrophe is already done. The horse is stolen!

Each new generation works out a solution to its problems and passes laws to carry the solution into effect. But by the time it has the answer ready, the stage has shifted and entirely new problems are in the foreground. The horse is already stolen.

Parents try this method and that to train their children in the way they should go, and finally learn how it should and can be successfully done (maybe); but often by the time they have got the knack of it, the children are past the training age.

Boys and girls flounder about in their school work, because they do not know how to study; they cannot concentrate, they cannot think; they cannot even read and comprehend what the book says even in ordinary arithmetic problems, history, science texts. At length, if they are fortunate, in the last year or so of their course, they begin to discover a real ability to profit by school work; but school days are already about over. Too late!

Nine-tenths of the value of wisdom is in being wise in time. Did you ever see or hear of a terrible accident, where a hundred people did not flock around and explain how easily it could have been prevented? But that is after the accident, not before it. The horse is stolen.

Now in a majority of cases, IT IS possible to be wise in time, to prevent that accident, to foresee the danger and to lock the barn. Can you do it? That is one of the supreme tests of your character.

If you would like suggestions on how you may succeed in it, write to me, stating your own particular problem, enclosing a stamped envelope. Address Creston Station, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Renew Marriage Vows on Fiftieth Anniversary

A renewal of their marriage vows, first taken 50 years ago, was the feature of the golden anniversary observance of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bailey of Cadillac on New Year's day. It was a double anniversary as it was also Mrs. Bailey's sixty-ninth birthday. Mr. Bailey is 75. A wedding dinner was served to 16 relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey have lived in Cadillac for seven years, coming here from Marion. The anniversary party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wagner, the latter a daughter of the couple.

Better Home Courses

To revise and improve home economics courses to include mothercraft, child training, hygiene, household management and parental education is the subject of the Home Economics Teaching Division of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, of which Mrs. Joseph C. Gawler, of Yakima, Wash., is chairman.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

This menu for the entire day includes a jam that may be made in winter and will be fine for the children as well as the grown-ups. The cookies, too, will be good for the little folks—much better than most candy. In fact they may take the place of candy. The tuna fish pie will probably be new to most of you.

The Recipes

Prune-Apricot Jam—Wash and soak one pound apricots and one pound prunes over night. Cook until very tender, stone prunes, measure fruit, add equal amount sugar and simmer until thick. Put in jelly glass and cover with paraffin.

Tuna Fish Pie—One can tuna fish, one cup celery, diced, one cup cooked peas, one cup cooked diced carrots, one small can pimento, ground. Add all to two cups white sauce and put in a casserole. Make small baking powder biscuits and place on top of creamed mixture. Bake 15 minutes in a hot oven.

Mock Plum Pudding—Three tablespoons butter, half cup molasses, half cup milk, one and seven-eighths cups flour, one-half teaspoon soda, one-fourth teaspoon each salt, cloves, allspice and nutmeg, one-half pound dates, stoned and cut in pieces, one-half cup seeded raisins. Mix in order given and steam two and one-half hours. This pudding keeps indefinitely and makes enough for two desserts.

New Administration Bldg. Ready by Spring

The new $750,000 administration building of Central State Teachers college will be ready for occupation at the beginning of the spring term in April, college officials believe.

Two years ago this month the old administration building was destroyed by fire. The flames were seen for 25 miles. Nothing was saved except some general office records that were in fireproof cabinets. The loss was estimated at about $700,000, including losses sustained by instructors, whose libraries and other personal property were burned. The 30,000 volumes of the college library also were lost.

Construction of the new administration building was started on Homecoming day in October, 1926. The exterior of the building was finished before cold weather set in. Stairways and floors now are finished except for wooden top railings and cork centers for the corridors. Tile floors were laid some time ago in the lobby and other entrances.

The upper walls of the library are receiving a new surface of plaster that will not carry sound. The library has steel shelves that will accommodate 100,000 volumes.

Nearly all of the plumbing fixtures have been installed, most of the woodwork is completed, including the hanging of doors and electric fixtures are being put into place. Shipments of $60,000 worth of equipment are to be received yet.

Dedication of the building will take place in June.

Women Can Dress on $200 a Year

The American husband will view with a good deal of scepticism the statement that any woman can dress well on from $200 to $250 a year which Justine Mansfield makes in the December issue of "The New Age Illustrated."

Probably the men who pay and pay will not be inclined to ridicule her next statement that "of all the causes for family quarrels, I verily believe that of how much a woman or a girl should spend for her clothes is the most frequent and persistent." They will all subscribe to that opinion and also to her finding that women in this country as contrasted to women in England spend 17 per cent more for clothes than men.

"Milady," she says, "invests an average of $8.52 for hats, whereas men spend but 5.35 for hats and caps. Men wear out $3.32 nightshirts per year as compared to two nightgowns for women." Miss Mansfield feels this additional expenditure is justified. She says, "Considering man's temperament and his admitted desire that woman be the decoration of life, I am inclined to plead that this additional expenditure for my sex is life's subtle margin of happiness, the abolition of which would be resented by man as much as by women. The women with a closet full of clothes who 'never has anything to wear' is as proverbial as the lilies of the field. Mere man is naturally quite bewildered at this. He wears a hat slouched and misshapen until one day he begins to resemble a hobo, and realizes he had better get another. His clothes change so slightly in style, that he can wear the dress-suit he purchased for his wedding, ten years thereafter, and nobody would be any the wiser (providing, of course, his shape has not changed materially). But can you for one instant visualize any woman wearing her wedding dress as an evening dress ten years after?"

Baked ham is another ideal kind of meat for dinner. This could even be baked on Saturday. Creamed potatoes are delicious with baked ham. How many of you have tried baking ham with grated pineapple? It is one of the most tasty ways you can cook ham. Spread the grated pineapple over the ham with the brown sugar the same as you do for ordinary baked ham.

Holland Now Has 17 Orthopedic Pupils

Seventeen pupils now are enrolled in the orthopedic department of Holland's public schools. These are given special treatments, academic training, occupational therapy, rest, warm lunches and are provided with free transportation to and from school.

The ages of the pupils are from 5 to 18 years, including the kindergarten and the first six grades.

Holland now is listed among six Michigan cities to care for physically handicapped children. Well equipped quarters are provided in the new Washington school, completed this year.

Saves Boy's Life

Emmett Routson, 20, owes his life to the bravery of Dr. Don Numbers, of McCall, Ida., who traveled 100 miles over mountainous country in a dog-sled to a cabin near Weiser, Ida., where Routson was stricken. Photo shows Dr. Numbers in the uniform he wore during the World war.

Suggestions for Sunday Dinners

Yes, Sunday should be a day of rest, but we must eat, and of all three meals of the day, Sunday dinner is the most important.

The Sunday dinner must be a little more elaborate, it should consist of foods and dishes not seen on the every-day dinner table.

Even though we want something different, the entire Sunday morning must not be spent preparing the dinner. Much of this work should be done on Saturday. All planning, marketing and the baking should be done.

When preparing dinner food, do not forget to keep your Sunday night suppers or lunch in mind. Cook just a little more meat in order to have sandwiches, or a few leftover vegetables can easily be combined into a delicious and appetizing salad or a hot scalloped dish to be served with your sandwiches. They are good combined with a gelatine mixture for a salad.

In order to be able to attend church, a roast is the easiest kind of meat to prepare, your potatoes may be cooked around the meat and with a green vegetable, salad and a dessert you have a complete dinner.

Baked ham is another ideal kind of meat for dinner. This could even be baked on Saturday. Creamed potatoes are delicious with baked ham. How many of you have tried baking ham with grated pineapple? It is one of the most tasty ways you can cook ham. Spread the grated pineapple over the ham with the brown sugar the same as you do for ordinary baked ham.

A dessert such as ice-box cake, date pudding and cakes of all kinds, should be prepared the day before.

It has been said that the welfare of the family, both physical and spiritual, may depend upon the one who provides the three meals a day.—By Mary Jane Parker, Home Economics Department, Calumet Baking Powder Company.

Star Gazing

Hot news from the movie battle front:

"Passionate Adventure," is to be the last picture in which Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky are co-starred—Joachim Rehorst, one of Germany's great war aces, has joined the movies over here—Ha! Ha! Ha! Chester Conklin is slated to have the star role of a forthcoming newspaper picture—Allene Ray will be seen in a new serial called "The Yellow Cameo." Norville and Norman Newham are the youngest movie actors. The twins are just six months old. Broadway rumors that John Barrymore may appear in person on the stage of one of the big film shops along the Gay White Way.

Richard Barthelmess has been selected for the star role of "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," Billie Dove soon will be seen in "The Heart of a Follies Girl." Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackaill are co-starring in a pic with the wild title: "Ladies' Night in a Turkish Bath."

Estelle Taylor's "The Whip Woman," will be released early this year. Richard Dix is said to be hunting a screen story suitable for him. A song has been written about the theme of Harold Lloyd's next comedy. Neil Hamilton has been selected as leading man for Esther Ralston.

Emil Jannings has added Lewis Stone to his company. Monty Blue is in the South Seas making a picture. Director Herbert Brenon, "discoverer" of Betty Bronson, is now giving Loretta Young, society girl, a chance to prove her screen worth.

LIVING AND LOVING

By Mrs. Virginia Lee

WHAT SHALL WE TALK ABOUT?

All of us have been embarrassed at some time in our lives by not being able to think of things to say. At such times there seems nothing left in the universe to talk about. With young people it is particularly hard, as they are easily "fussed," and apt to think they are ruined socially if they can't chatter like magpies.

One girl thinks her lack of easy talk is the cause of the cessation of a young man's attentions, and asks my advice.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I went with a boy for five or six months only on Sunday nights. He also took me to shows every now and then during the week. All at once he quit coming, then he called me up and started coming regularly Sunday nights, and then quit coming at all. I work in the same office and talk to him every day.

"Please, Mrs. Lee, try to tell me what to do to make him come back. When we are together he hasn't much to say and I haven't either.

ANXIOUS."

It is just possible that he feels he is not entertaining you because you do not seem to have much to say. Does he like to read or has he any hobby that you could be interested in? Or have you a particular interest yourself that might prove a source of conversation? You have your work at the office to talk over, and there are always happenings of current interest that you could discuss. If you are interested in a number of things yourself you can usually talk about them.

In answer to "Honorable Brown Eyes," I would say that the boy who has stopped writing to you and is writing to the other girl has chosen her, so there is nothing more to say about it. I agree with your father and mother that a boy who drinks and swears is not a very desirable friend for a little girl of 13. And don't you think you would feel better satisfied with yourself if you forgot about the boys for awhile and tried to study and read and grow up so that you would make the finest kind of a girl pal for a really fine boy in a few years? Think it over.

A Word about Olives

Our finest green olives are imported from southern Spain. They are sent over to our wholesale grocers in casks which contain one hundred and sixty-five gallons.

There are three different materials used for stuffing olives now—pimento, almond meats and celery.

The pimento and almond fillings are made before the olives are shipped, but the ones with celery are stored before they are shipped, but filled here.

Perhaps you have heard friends or grocers say that certain olives were "70-80s." This means that there are from 70 to 80 olives to a kilogram or to two and one-half pounds olives in one quart.—By Mary Jane Parker, Home Economics Department, Calumet Baking Powder Company.

U. of M. Professor to Head Expedition into Archaeological Bagdad

An archaeological expedition to Bagdad to search for relics of ancient Babylonian and Assyrian civilization will be launched in January by the Toledo Museum of Art.

Leroy Waterman, professor of semitics at the U. of M., will be in charge. Relics discovered will be divided between the university and the museum. Prof. Waterman is spending his sabbatical year's leave of absence in Bagdad making preparations.

Week of January 22
 General Weather Conditions—In some respects the weather of this week will run similar to that of last week—many variations, especially in temperature. There will be one difference, however, and that is that we are expecting a little more precipitation; in fact, some parts of the state will record considerable rain or snow. These conditions will run over into next week as well.

Detailed Weather Forecast—Unsettled, windy weather coupled with some rather severe storms are to be expected close to the opening days of this week. While the temperatures are expected to be seasonably warm at this time, we look for a more or less sudden fall by the middle days following the rain or snow storms.

Shortly after the middle part of this week the temperatures will take a marked jump upward resulting in melting now, slushy conditions as well as mud. Some road conditions will be bad. On top of the rise in temperature to very warm readings, we are expecting considerable rain which will greatly enhance the wet conditions and increase the tendency toward local floods or at least high waters. There is even a possibility of local thunderstorms near the end of this week. Wind will also be high during the closing days in most courts.

LADY CALLED FATE

BY JOSEPHINE K. LITTLE-JOHN

CHAPTER FORTY

Beechy, at the wheel, from time to time flung pews of the road over his shoulder. But he did not look around; nor did Juan who sat beside him.

"This first six miles out of Arivaca is the worst piece of the road. After this we can make time."

"Fine!" called John Moore from the back seat.

From time to time Beechy caught the tones of their voices. "He's a dead sport!" he thought admiringly. "Going right along in spite of the way she treated him this morning." And then he fell to wondering anxiously again about Stew. Juan had brought his message back from Amado. He was getting along without any trouble so far; but with a crew like that aboard you never could tell. He himself should have gone with him! Joe could take care of Ruth all right.

"This is the Nogales-Tucson road," he called, after a while.

"Oh, yes!" John called back.

Beechy stepped on the throttle and the car raced forward. "This is the Twin Buttes camp," he announced presently.

The car sped on. "You can see the Mission—San Xavier—ahead there now."

"Oh, yes," called John.

On and on, faster and faster.

"Here's the Sababe road, where you must have turned that night."

"By Jove! Is it? Let's have a look at it, will you? Slow down a little."

But when Beechy obligingly had done as he was requested, John didn't even look at the road. He leaned forward and touched Beechy on the shoulder.

"Listen," he said. "Do you know a good minister?"

The car almost stopped. "A minister?" exclaimed Beechy. "I don't often use them. Good for what?"

"Well," said John Moore, "for marrying people."

"Marrying! Juan, hand on this wheel a second." Beechy turned squarely around and faced the two in the totemau.

John Moore sat leisurely back again on the seat and his left hand closed over Ruth Henshaw's for all the world to see.

"You poor idiot," he commented commiseratingly. "What's the matter with you? Haven't you ever heard of people marrying?"

Beechy looked at Ruth, but she only looked at John Moore.

"My Lord!" exploded Beechy. "Are you going to marry a girl who was so darned ornery to you, only this morning, that I've been weeping for you ever since? Are you?"

"I are," said John Moore promptly.

"Oh," said Ruth, "I wasn't really."

Beechy gazed at them. "That beats me! When are you thinking of getting married?"

"Well," said John, "we are leaving on that one o'clock train for New York tonight."

"Oh!" Beechy's high, clear yodel sank to a sigh. "Gosh!" he lamented. "Stew was right! Joe had all the luck! All right, old dears! There must be a minister hiding out some place. I'll find him. I'll get you married all right. I'll make the punch myself! Give me the wheel!"

It was a little after five o'clock when the car drew up at the Santa Rita. John Moore sprang down.

"Listen, Beechy," he said. "We've doped it out. If you'll get the parson and rooms and flowers, we'll go after the license and things. But we'll need your car."

"Secrets from brides, Ruth," said Beechy and drew John Moore a little aside. "What about those fellows who are after you, man?" he asked.

John Moore clapped him on the shoulder and laughed like a boy.

"Aw," he said, "forget them. This is my day, Beechy, my day!"

Beechy surveyed him. "It is!" he said in awestruck tones. "Good Lord, what a pity! You could wreck the bank at Monte Carlo!"

"Oh, that!" cried John Moore. "Why, man alive, I'm going to marry my girl today!"

"Beat it!" said Beechy. "Wait! Whom do you want at your wedding?"

"Ruth decided that. Just you and Townner for witnesses. It's a shame that Stew isn't here. But it will be better to get her away."

"Right you are. I'll fix things. Hurry or the courthouse will be closed."

"Where's a jeweler's shop?"

"At the corner, there. Wait, have you plenty of money?"

"Traveler's checks. But thanks, old man!"

At the corner John Moore dashed into the jeweler's and briefly out again. "He'll wait for us," he said.

"Now, Juan, the courthouse, please."

Down Congress street, while the daylight fled to the mountain peaks at the foot of it and the street lamps gleamed a pathway through the dusk. The two in the rear seat of the car held each other's hand tightly clasped and spoke not at all.

Ruth Henshaw could hear the mad beating of her heart as if it were racing against that stronger, deeper pulse of excitement that throbbed within her.

Down the narrow, twisting side street, lined with low, flat-roofed adobes, to the courthouse and the old plaza that had been the heart of the Old Pueblo. In the twilight the shadows came stealing.

"This is an old town," said Ruth dreamily. "Spanish governors lived on that corner two hundred years ago."

John Moore made her pause just then, half way up the courthouse walk.

"Did they?" he murmured. "See, the first stars are coming out; I watched three nights ago alone, and now we are going in to get a marriage license, you and I."

"Back in the throng of cars, moving eastward up Congress street. It was darker now and John Moore moved nearer. "They are going home, all those hurrying people. And so are we, my darling."

His tenderness was a part of that throbbing excitement. She answered him slowly. "Where is your home?"

"I haven't had one since I was nine until tonight! It's wherever I am going with you! Just at this particular moment it's that department store you spoke of—to outfit our two babies-in-the-woods selves!"

"I don't need many things," said Ruth more quickly.

"You don't want them? I hoped you'd want lots of things. You see I haven't had an interesting career or anything. I'm not the kind of a mining engineer they write books about. I've just stuck in an office most of the time. The only thing I seemed to do decently was to make a little money. I've been hoping you might like it. That I could buy things for you; that you'd like to spend it; I don't know just what I hoped."

But Ruth knew, and at his need the throbbing excitement died away for a moment. "Oh," she cried, "it was only that it didn't matter if you had no money at all! And you haven't really! It's all mine! Because, don't you see? all these years you've been making it for me!"

"You darling!" said John unsteadily. "What are we stopping here for, in the light?"

"It's the shop."

They drifted up the aisle of the brilliantly lighted shop and paused before a counter from which an elaborately beehooded and beribboned doll stared at them disdainfully. She felt in every silken founce of her make-up that these people were not seeking a telephone doll.

And she was entirely correct.

John's hand tightened on Ruth's arm as he gazed down at her with an expression sufficiently denoting that.

"What color do I like for girls' clothes?" he was saying. "I don't believe that I ever noticed girls' clothes until two days ago. But since Tubutama I like eyes and skies and things to match. Let's make 'em blue."

The telephone doll was moved to one side. A dark-eyed, bright-eyed, slender little lady stood behind the counter surveying the man and the girl. She had seen all kinds.

"Is there something for you?" she asked.

"Fine!" said John. "We want a lot of things."

"This is the fancy goods," said the little lady doubtfully. She already knew what they wanted.

"Exactly," said John Moore. "We want fancy ones."

"Oh, no," expostulated Ruth. "She means yarns and things like that. We," she appealed to the little bright-eyed lady, "we want clothes."

"Blue ones," put in John. "Oh, and we ought to get one white one, shouldn't we?"

Ruth looked helplessly at the little bright-eyed lady. The throbbing excitement would not let her think clearly. "There are so many things," she said vaguely.

"A white one—with some of that floaty stuff," John went on.

"They come boxed now—veils," said the little lady, but she was watching the girl. "Tell me, in a general way—"

"Everything for tonight, and until we reach New York, in a week."

"Make it twice," said John. "We haven't even a toothbrush."

The little lady glanced his way. "If you'll go down to that end of the store, sir, you'll find everything for yourself; and I'll go with the young lady."

"But I'm going with her, too!"

"But you can't!" said Ruth, helplessly.

"Why not? Who says so? I'm going."

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

Can a girl be completely outfitted with clothes in a dream?

Ruth Henshaw was that afternoon. She floated through clouds of delicate silk undergarments on the mezzanine floor down to the frocks. "All blue, and a white one, sir." She knew it was the bright-eyed little lady speaking. There were other clerks hurrying up with armfuls of gowns, coats and hats, but Ruth was only vaguely conscious of them.

"But she mustn't try this one on, sir. Bad luck. It will fit. I'll tell you. Suppose I take all the things in a taxi over to the Santa Rita and be there to help her dress?"

"You're a brick," said John Moore. "I have girls of my own. She's awfully tired, sir. It's the excitement."

"I'm all right," said Ruth slowly. Surely she was dreaming.

In a dream she found herself looking down at rings, a whole trayful of them, in the jeweler's shop; John Moore close beside her.

"I don't seem to think clearly," said Ruth. "You choose."

The jeweler turned away.

"Let's get this gold one, for the stars," said John Moore. "And this one with the three diamonds for our three days!"

In a dream she stood before a long cheval glass gazing at her own reflection. She stood just as the little bright-eyed lady had left her. She had been very kind, the little lady, but she had gone. The hotel room was empty, except for that girl in the glass.

Slowly she turned and looked about the square, bare room done in golden oak and a tight green rug. No illusions in this room. She knew that; but for her, reality had fled.

There came a knock at the door.

"Ruth, are you ready? The parson's on tap," called Beechy from the hall.

The voice was real enough but, like the room, it was not real to her. "Girl, come on!" pleaded John Moore.

At that she moved forward and opened the door.

"I'll tell the world!" exclaimed Beechy fervently. He brought his heels together and bowed in that foreign way of his. "I salaam, senorita! No wonder the bridegroom tagged along with me to get you."

But the girl did not seem to heed him. It was to John, standing so straight and still beyond Beechy, to whom her troubled gaze had flown. She drew nearer to him, her white veil floating about her, and clung with both hands to his arm. "I'm afraid," she whispered beseechingly. "I can't get hold of myself."

John Moore covered her hands with his free one and smiled down at her reassuringly. "I know," he said "But it will be all right."

Beechy spoke with sudden sharp distinctness. "You don't have to do this, Ruth."

John, with his eyes on Ruth's, answered quietly. "It is all right, Beechy," as if he were soothing him, too.

"I'm afraid," the girl pleaded. "I can't think. I can't do anything more now. I don't want to see them. It's all so strange. I want to go away, now. Why not?"

"Hush, girl. This will soon be over. We have to go through with it."

"By George, she doesn't if she doesn't want to!" exclaimed Beechy. "Of course she's scared. It's natural. She's only known you three days. Ruth, you can do exactly as you like. If you're afraid—"

"She isn't afraid of me, Beechy," interrupted John.

"Of course she is! Who else could she be afraid of?"

"It's of you and the minister, I think."

"Of me! Why—"

"It is because she is tired out with all the excitement. You mustn't mind. Everyone seems strange to her."

"Except you, I suppose," commented Beechy with all the sarcasm the tones would carry.

"Of course," said John Moore, who hadn't heard the sarcasm at all.

"Oh, my Lord," said Beechy. "You two beat anything I ever saw! Come on! I'll marry you!"

Her hand clinging to John's arm, she walked down the corridor. They entered a room. More unreality. Massed flowers everywhere. A man she did not know—a man in a frock coat. They stood before him. He spoke. But his words, though vaguely familiar, had no meaning. Her only tie to reality was the hand holding fast her own.

Once John's voice, clear and strong, interrupted the even flow of the minister's. "I will," said John Moore.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person.

Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

Mother!

Child Gets Sick, Cross, Feverish if Constipated

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Fig Syrup" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious, "fruity laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing." Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by "The California Fig Syrup Company."

When Dairymen

keep coming in and telling us that is the best dairy feed they ever fed it should mean something definite to you.

We are having records kept of just what this feed is doing for dairymen around here and expect to publish them very shortly.

When men like Root Bros. of Kendall come in and unsolicited tell us that its the best dairy feed they ever fed and is giving them the best results it should cause you to look into this dairy feed.

This feed is not put up to fit a price but to give better results, not just for a day but for over a period of time.

Use Purina Chow Chow and you'll be coming in with glowing reports also.

THE WORLD DO MOVE

So Does Hexite!

Farmers are realizing that here is a feed that is ALL FEED—NO SCREENINGS! Two solid carloads this week—one at Bloomingdale and one at Mentha and we had less than a ton left when they rolled in. The Kellogg people at Battle Creek report they are absolutely swamped by the rush of business

Try a sack and be convinced. Good for Dairy Cows, Sheep, Sows and Pigs

And Milkmaker--How it Sells

The best 24% Dairy Feed on the market. A 25-ton car just unloaded. Records show the results of feeding this old reliable Farm Bureau Feed. We are farmers and are simply distributing what we ourselves use and which we think are the best feeds.
