POULTRY

GAPES OF CHICKENS

Chickens are often affected with a disease known as Montana disease or gapes. It is characterized by a sudden collapse of the birds, leading to death. This condition is caused by a virus that affects the respiratory system, leading to an inflammation of the trachea. The disease can be spread through contaminated feed or water, and it is highly contagious among poultry. Prevention includes proper sanitation and vaccination. If caught early, treatment can be effective, but once the birds show symptoms, it is usually too late.

BORER CONTROL IS PROFITABLE
Shredding, chipping or gridding is effective good farming and necessary to kill the borer larvae. Each farm should utilize all parts of the corn stalk for feed. Although the borer is said to be more than ninety per cent of the case, it can appear in any part of the field. The shredder and engender cutting were both effective weapons in controlling the pest in the last year's area of the State and best laid.

A WIND'S-UP STORY

CHAPTER II

Bob Terry's room was a pity. The walls were lined with the most rotund and rotundest edibles, and the floor was covered with a half-dozen yellow cats, who appeared to be the property of the house. They were so fat and soft that they seemed to be almost weightless, and they could be seen almost anywhere. The room was very dirty, and the air was filled with a sickly smell of vinegar.

"Terry, if you'll excuse me, I have a request to make," said Bob Terry, as he entered the room.

"Yes, Mr. Terry," replied Bob Terry, as he sat down at his desk.

"I have been thinking about our situation, and I think it would be best if we parted ways," said Bob Terry.

"Parted ways?" asked Bob Terry, in surprise.

"Yes," replied Bob Terry. "I think it would be best for both of us."

By M. M. LINSHE

Lynsey still continues to enjoy herself. She said "I don't know why I keep doing this work. It's so much fun."

The House of Representatives, in session today, passed an amendment to the "Equal Pay Act" which provides that women shall receive equal pay for equal work. The amendment was introduced by Representative M. M. LINSHE and was adopted by a vote of 215 to 195.

The amendment reads as follows:

"Equal Pay Act, Amendment: In any establishment in which two or more employees perform similar work under similar working conditions, the employer shall pay each of such employees equally for each hour, shift, or day worked."

The amendment was introduced to correct a situation where women were being paid less than men for doing the same work. The amendment passed with the following roll call:

In favor: M. M. LINSHE (Democrat), 115; John Doe (Republican), 90; Jan Smith (Independent), 60.

In opposition: John Smith (Democrat), 110; Jack Doe (Republican), 85; Jim Smith (Independent), 50.

The amendment will now go to the President for his signature. If the President signs the amendment, it will become law.
