Dairy Cow Is a Real Hard Worker

The high-producing dairy cow is one of the hardest working animals on the farm.

In the spring and summer months she must mow the grass to provide farmers to control work throughout the quantity of feed which she transforms into milk. In the early spring the grasses contain so much water that it is almost impossible for heavy milkers to gather enough grass for the required amount of dry material that is the equivalent of winter feeding. Later in the spring and early summer it is more nearly possible if pastures are luxuriant.

But as a general rule it pays to feed grain to the dairy cow on pasture. Cows on pasture producing more than 20 pounds of milk daily should have 1 pound of grain to each vided as follows: Stegman creek, four to six pounds of milk produced. 10,000; Rum creek, 8,000; Shaw Cows producing more than 35 pounds creek, 8,000; Cedar creek, 10,000; a day should also have added to the

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often Than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness-and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were cases. It is mild and gentle in its ond of the working day someone strain. Boat Houses Lowered In Northern Michigan Now Must Be Raised

With soundings showing a depth of 16½ feet in channels connecting Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix, water levels are the highest here since the low stage of the summer of 1926. Thousands of dollars were expended in the local harbor in that year for dredging operations, and many owners were compelled to lower their boat houses or build additions onto allow their boats to enter. In some instances, since the higher levels, boat house doors are two feet below the surface of the water and must be

Paw Paw Officers Kill Score of Dogs

Sheriff Glen Weaver and his deputies killed 20 Paw Paw dogs after a dog quarantine, lifted recently, was replaced by the state to remain effective until July 13.

One of the dogs, belonging to Frank Stoughton, was said to be in an adranced stage of rabies. Several Van Buren persons have been bitten by dogs in the past week and Sheriff Weaver was bitten when he went to warn owners to muzzle a dog that had attacked others. The animal's head, with two others, was sent to Ann

Smelt Run Is Boon

That the business occasioned by the smelt run at Beulah spreads to the surrounding towns is indicated by the fact that about 400 long distance telephone calls went through the county block office at Thompsonville. The calls were to all parts of the country and averaged about $1 each, making a noticeable increase in the company's

Peppermint Prices Take Big Drop

Southwestern Michigan peppermint growers have suffered heavy losses on their 1927 production of oil due to a sharp decline in prices. The market was around $8 a pound last fall, but after the first demand was satisfied the price broke sharply. For weeks there was no demand for the oil at $2 a pound. Recent strength in the market has lifted the price back to from $3 to $4 a pound. Two years ago peppermint oil sold for $20 a pound.

WINTER INDUSTRY LULL IS NORMAL

That industrial activities in Michigan during January and February reflect a quietness that is more or less normal for this period of the year has been determined by a survey conducted by the State Department of Labor and Industry. While nearly all sections of the state report a decline in the activities of various industries, the resulting condition of unemployment is one that causes no great alarm, the survey states.

Of 42 communities in Michigan, 33 report of small surplus of labor existing, a large number of these unemployed persons being men who engage in industries of a seasonal na-

"Seasonal operations, such as quarry, construction work, sugar manufacturing, etc., are passing through a regular period of inactivity, while the operations of various branches of the automotive industry, including foundries, are but slightly less than normal. It is significant that the men numbered among the unemployed are almost entirely listed as common laborers," the report says.

It seems fairly certain that with a general resumption of lake traffic construction work, quarrying and other seasonal activities, the surplus reported will be totally absorbed.

"A four-million dollar building program in Ann Arbor is creating a demand for construction workers that will undoubtedly absorb the slight labor surplus. In Detroit, construction projects valued in the neighborhood of seven million dollars is expected to offer some relief to the unemployment situation. It is noted, however, that building operations in Detroit during February, 1928, represent about half the amount involved during the same period of 1927.

'Detroit's employment curve is considerably higher for the beginning of 1928 than for January and February of this year, indicating a general tendency toward an increase in produc-This condition seems to prevail also in automotive industries elsewhere."

Skunk Holds Up Car Owner for Eight Hours

Jim Langdon of Hastings was kept waiting eight hours for his automobile one day recently when he decided discretion was the better part of valor. He had opened his garage door and saw a skunk in his car, showing no inclination to depart.

Calling the sheriff's office, Langdom was told not to kill the animal nor to try to get it out of the automobile by force. "Just leave the gaage door open and wait."

So Langdon waited and eight hours later the "pretty kitty" deserted its comfortable bed and went elsewhere.

It neutralizes acid fermentacions in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." 5,000 STUDENT MUSICIANS WILL GATHER AT U. OF M

Nearly five thousand boys and girls, members of high school orchestras, glee clubs, mixed choruses, string, wood, wind and brass ensemble groups in the high schools of Michigan will assemble in Ann Arbor on May 10 and 11, upon invitations of the University School of Music, the University of Michigan, and the Chamber of Commerce, for a general state-wide contest in which these various groups will compete for first place in their respective classifications. About one hundred twenty-five schools will be represented.

The contest will begin on the morning of May 10, and will continue until the latter part of the afternoon when all of the young folks will assemble in Yost field house, Michigan's great athletic building, for a mass performance. The massed choruses will be led by Earl V. Moore, musical director of the University School of Music and director of the Ann Arbor May Festivals, while the instrumental groups will be conducted by Joseph E. Maddy, head of the Public School Music department of the University School of Music, Ann Arbor and nationally known as the organizer and conductor of the national high school orchestra which has won such distinction during the past three years, since its initial appearance in Detroit before the national supervisors convention and its following appearance it Dallas, Texas, before the same organization and before the National Educational Association convention. It is also to appear in Chicago later in the spring before the music supervisors convention.

After the mass concert Fielding H. Yost will address the boys and girls in behalf of the University of Michigan In the evening a banquet will be provided for the winning group, numbering perhaps five hundred boys and

On the following day, the winning groups who will remain in Ann Arbor over night will rehearse in the morning for a final concert to be given that afternoon which will be broadcast. This concert will take place in Hill auditorium and will be open to the general public. It is anticipated that the five thousand seats there will be occupied. The whole event is under the general headship of a committee headed by Ada Bicking, state superintendent of Public School Music and about twenty-five distinguished supervisors and musical authorities, known as the Michigan High School Music council by the state board of education.

Poems That Live

THE TREE I love thee when thy swelling buds appear, And one by one their tender leaves

unfold, As if they knew that warmer suns

were near, Nor longer sought to hide from winter's cold;

And when with darker growth thy leaves are seen

To veil from view the early robin's

I love to lie beneath thy waving screen,

With limbs by summer's heat and toil oppressed;

And when the autumn winds have stripped thee bare, And round thee lies the smooth, untrodden snow. When naught is thine that made thee

once so fair, I love to watch thy shadowy form

And through thy leafless arms to look

On stars that brighter beam when most we need their love. -Jones Very (1813-1880)

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, opera and concert singer, has announced the gift of her estate, Grossmont, near San Diego, Cal., to disabled veterans of the World War. The singer has given the $250,000 estate, she explains, to show her love for the "boys" who played taps for her two sons who lost their lives in the war, one fighting for the U. SONGS OF CHILDREN ARE OLDEST

There are some well-grounded belief that the song "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" is the oldest tune in the world, some investigators of the subject claiming that it was brought back to Europe by the crusaders when they returned from the east. Some contend that it was sung in Babylon. Some in the world are those sung by children at play. Even the most ancient civilized peoples heard on their streets airs very similar to "London Bridge Is Falling Down" and "Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush."

LIVING AND LOVING By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

MARRIAGE WITHOUT LOVE

Two letters coming at the same time ask my advice on a similar problem. Both are from women and both involve loveless marriages and love affiairs with other men.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 21 and have been married five years. I married for a home instead of love. You married for a home and got it didn't you, S. M.? In other words, you made a bargain, got what you bought, and now you are dissatisfied. How about your husband? Is he dissatisfied with his part of the transaction? The only fair way, it seems to me, is to tell him frankly how you feel and ask him to let you get a divorce, if possible. Or, if he will not do that and feels you should stick to your word, make the best of things for a time at least. I am assuming that you to the promise you made when you have no children.

Is there any reason why you cannot go to your husband and tell him that you cannot love him, although you have tried, and you want an annulment of your marriage? The rains will be beneficial to grains. meadows and pastures generally, while the fair weather will be very timely for accomplishing much farm work. Oats, barley and potato planting will be well under way. Vegeta-tion generally will be developing rather rapidly.

Weather for the Week-Sunday and Monday of the week of May 6th are expected to be mostly pleasant and warm. By late Monday or Tuesday the weather conditions will become unsettled and rainy. During the middle days of the week most parts of Michigan will experience stormy

He had a resonant voice which he used frequently and largely. Al Gregory was a champion speaker; he orated on any and all occasions; he had at his tongue's tip every banal truism known

But withal, Al Gregory was not a fool. Physically he was of average height and better than average physique. He had wavy yellow hair which he kept a trifle too long and his most effective platform gesture was a running of his right hand through the silken, curly locks. Bob Terry went to work under Al Gregory. He was much impressed by the man's expansive affability. Gregory did a great deal of talking to Terry—as usual, saying little. He sensed that Carmody was keenly in-terested in Terry, and he himself felt that the young man furnished an invaluable contact between the circles in which he moved and the social plane on which the Bordens and the Merriwethers belonged.

Work was made easy for the newcomer. In the first few weeks he was given time to become accustomed to the office and its routine, and grad-ually Al Gregory taught him the rudi-ments of criminal law, with particular attention to certain little quirks in the to work interviewing clients—wealthy criminals who could afford to pay large fees for defense. The net was closing-closing about The net was closing—closing about Peter Borden and about Bob Terry. Carmody cold and bloodless, was patient. He was keen and alert—and willing to wait. Sooner or later he knew his opportunity would come, and when it did he meant to deal with. Terry even more forcefully than he did with Borden. Through Whispering Willie Weaver he kept in daily and intimate touch with the financial difficulties being experienced by the Berkeley Steel Company, of which Peter Borden was part owner and op-erating vice president. And he missed no detail of the development of the relationship of Terry and Kathleen Shannon.
There Carmody's perception was almost uncanny, for it was he who detected a new eelment in their rela-Bob Terry entered John Carmody's employ. The thin face of the little attorney was inscrutable as he made Bob warmly welcome and gave him over to the custody of Al Gregory.

Alfred Tierney Gregory was Carmody's official yes-man. He was young, egotistical and ambitious particularly toward Lois Borden.

Lois Borden worried when Bob went to work for John Carmody. indicated to her that he had definitely cast his lot with the less desirable element in the city's social structure. But within a fortnight she saw that work - even with Carmody - was changing him.

He was kept busy, and that in itself precluded the possibility of the long, agonizing days of brooding. There was daily work to be done and less time for contemplation of his own bitterness. His position—modest enough in a way—yet carried a certain au-thoritativeness which made itself felt. He walked more like a free man now, and less with the rhythmic beat of the convict. He had learned to speak occasionally and to meet the eyes of other people squarely.

Bob himself was unconscious of the changes being effected in himself. And Kathleen was too blindly in love to analyze. That he was better, she knew—but she did not probe. She was content with the glorious results, and her daily contact with Terry brought to her a new beauty, a new vivacity and a new delight. The development which was occurring in the lad was the thing for which Lois Borden had prayed. From the first he had aroused in her the ultimate spark of her enormous, latent maternal instinct. Now he was developing a masculine positiveness which appealed to the feminine in her. In her eyes he was no longer merely someone to be sorry for, but a man to who was battling against an adverse fate; fighting desperately to re-establish himself in a world which had scourged him cruelly. She saw the pathos which was there, and the drama—but she added even more drama to it. And because of that she permitted herself to love him.

She did not admit this to herself.

But she knew it, and Bruce Richardson knew it, and was hurt—and wor-

"I suppose this bitterness smoldered

"Of course. He's a different per-

"Yes. Ever since he went to work for John Carmody. But that is sinister, too. I don't want to be melodramatic, but you know, Bruce—and so do I, that Carmody hates father. He'll never forgive that disbarment thing—and I get the idea—can't rid myself of it—that there is something more to his employment of Bob than an altruistic interest."

"Bob should prove quite valuable

"Because he understands the criminal element and their psychology?"

"Yes. I understand that's what he's doing down there. Hasn't he told you?" Bruce was surprised.

"No. I don't see much of him,

He's out a great deal—especially since his friend Shannon was released from the penitentiary." Her eyes clouded and she paused for a moment. "Have you heard anything else about Boh Terry?"

"That girl—Shannon's niece?"
Bruce Richardson's thin, sensitive face flushed. "I dont' like to guess about things like that, Lois."
"Things like what?"
"A man's interest in a woman."

"A man's interest in a woman."

"Then there is an interest?"

"They're together a great deal. Of course, it might merely be because she is Shannon's niece."

"But you don't think so?"

A traveller recently said of the new Detroit-Leland hotel: 'It inherits the mantle of the Old Pontchartrain."

With the passing of the old Pontchartrain, something went out of the life of Detroit—and something from the welcome of travellers to this city.

The new Detroit-Leland went boldly back to the spirit that built the Pontchartrain. The invitation which the architect has blended in these broad avenues of marble, these rich, deep promenades, these graceful stairs and approaches convening on the lobby, is well met by the inner spirit of hospitality and experienced skill in your service.

And then-delightfully larger rooms-homelike, quiet and beautifully furnished-and larger, lighter, all outside sample rooms for showing goods under natural light.

So it is fitting that Wm. J. Chittenden, Jr., extend to you, here, the same old time hospitality over which he presided as manager of the beloved Pontchartrain.
