HUMBLE TOAD IS ONE OF MAN'S BEST FRIENDS, LIKE BIRDS

Many farmers recognize birds as valuable allies in the war against pests. A few, however, may have been surprised to find an even more important ally—the toad.

Toads have long been known for their ability to consume large numbers of insects, particularly nocturnal species. Scientists have estimated that a single toad can eat as many as 3,000 insects in a single night.

The toad's diet is diverse, ranging from beetles and grasshoppers to snails and slugs. It is this diet that makes toads such an important part of the ecosystem. By controlling pests, toads help maintain a balance in the environment, which is crucial for the survival of other species.

When choosing toads for your garden, be sure to select a healthy specimen. Toads are known for their ability to use their skin to absorb moisture from the air, so they require a moist, humid environment. They also need a variety of insects, such as crickets and mealworms, to maintain their health.

In summary, toads are a valuable addition to any garden. They are easy to care for and require minimal maintenance. They are a natural pest control solution that can help maintain a healthy ecosystem.

Million Acres of Land Revert to State For Delinquent Taxes

Twenty-five per cent of the 2.5 million acres in Maine, on the delinquent tax list in 1925 and 1926, are to revert to the state under the provisions of the Maine law for the purchase of delinquent, compulsion reverts to the state by the trustee of the land, Fuller, just completed. Total delinquent property in 1925 was $20,540.

The report was in favor of the Delinquent property of the state, total farm property comprising 13,876 acres, as well as property for rural property over $25,000, amounting to 9,146 acres, was assessed at 30 per cent and rural delinquent was $9,064.

When the report was paid on Aug. 21, 1925, the amount was $20,540 and the amount was $21,845, compared with $24,372,991, an increase of $3,844,749.

The increase in delinquent property has been due to the decrease in the value of real estate, and the state has now purchased over $15,000,000 worth of land this year. All of this property, which has been delinquent for many years, is now being purchased by the state in an effort to maintain the balance of the land market.

New Duke of Kent

When Mrs. Millchester Bawar Bawar, New York, armed, was permitted to cast an absentee ballot in Maine, it became known that she was the former queen. Her application for a passport is based on the ground that a relative now living in England would not be able to vote for her.

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 11

Moderate temperatures for the area are expected on the opening days of the week beginning November 18 in most parts of Michigan. The result could be a low pressure area crossing the Great Lakes later in the week.

As a result of this storm center, there will be minor showers or drizzle in most areas of the state, but no general and heavy rain storms. In some countries, however, a few showers or drizzle, including some melting snow, will be possible, especially in the northern sections.

During the weekend, it is expected to remain cool, with temperatures in the low 40s to upper 50s. However, temperatures are expected to rise slightly during the week, with highs in the mid to upper 60s.

Head Colds

A gentle breeze is blowing through the room, and the window is open. The air is fresh and cool, but not too cold. The sun is shining through the window, casting a pleasant light on everything in the room. It's a perfect day for a walk, or even a picnic. The birds are singing, and the leaves rustle in the wind. It's a beautiful day, and I'm grateful to be able to enjoy it.

It May Be Unusual

When your Children Cry for It

With the chill in the air and the leaves falling, it's easy to feel blue. But it's important to remember that your children are still growing and developing. They may be crying for a variety of reasons, and it's important to listen to them and respond in a way that is loving and nurturing.

The Arizona station was a scene of chaos last week. A large crowd surrounded the building, many of them screaming and agitating. The police were called, and they were quick to arrive on the scene. The crowd was calm and peaceful, and the police were able to maintain order.

The police were able to quickly disperse the crowd, and the station was able to continue its operations without further incident.

The police were also able to identify and arrest several individuals who were involved in the disturbance. The individuals were charged with disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace.
