Sunbank Dress Is a Fixture

By Lillian Campbell

Whether you like it or not, the sunbank dress is here to stay. This is the statement of Mrs. Edith Tait Little, president of business and clubwoman of St. Peterburg, Fla., who takes the charge of the first sun-bank frocks (sic) winter which were given by girls of the Delta nu-chi club in the fashion show in city. Why should it stay?

When I designed the sunbank dress I kept in mind the fact that the healing rays of the sun have more restorative power than any other single agent. More than that, it is recommended to healthy people as a preventive of many ailments of mental and nervous system.

"With this in mind I call a low V or neck of the sunbank dress, and the sunbank appeared."[1]
