Andy Sackett's auction today. Turn clocks back Sunday night. Fay White is working for R. M. Curtiss & Co. Paul Wilcox has returned to his school work in Albion College. The Methodist Aid will meet with Mrs. Pugsley next Wednesday. A. M. Wilcox, Abbie and Donnetta visited his uncle in Hastings Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Grant Brown and Nina May visited Clarence Huff and family at Mendon Sunday. Week end guests of Frances Huff were Norma Beuerle, Merrill Ash and Wayne Berlemer, all of Adrian. Roberta Dorgan and Anita Stimpson left for Ann Arbor Monday, where they will take a course in nursing. Bert VanAlstyne has returned to his college work at St. Louis, Mo., after spending the summer at his home here. The Community Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. Lotta Walker, Wednesday, Oct. 2 for pot luck dinner. Dinner at 12:30. Clara Wooster has secured a very desirable position in Chicago and is at home with Mr. and Mrs. Wooster at Apartment 103 at 6236 Harper ave. As Sunday is the one nearest to October 1, the president advises that we will return to Standard Time in the village at midnight on Sunday. Don't forget. Frances Huff is taking a post graduate course at the U of M. Lloyd Van Voorhees and Carl Kloock are at Western State and Harold Dorgan at Parsons Business College. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kohl and former's father of Ravenna, Ohio, were Sunday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shearer. Mrs. Kohl was formerly Ethel Sorensen of Beechwood. Guinevere Thompson entertained Friday evening and Cleve Woodhouse Saturday evening in honor of Anita Stimpson and Roberta Dorgan who left Monday for Ann Arbor. Two jolly times are reported. Crowds at the VanBuren county fair at Hartford from October 1 to 5 will be kept constantly informed of the race result and other features of the fair through a loud speaking system that will convey the announcements to all parts of the grounds. Frances Huff left Wednesday for Ann Arbor where she will work on her Master's Degree in Mathematics. Her mother, Mrs. M. W. Clement accompanied her to Ann Arbor and will go from there to Detroit for a short visit with her sister. The midway at the Van Buren county fair at Hartford, from October 1 to 5, has been designed with a view to affording opportunity for clean, wholesome amusement along with the educational features of the fair. All new shows and rides have been engaged, along with amusement features that are new to the Hartford fair. We are pleased to announce the marriage of our friend, Rolla Lamphere to Cora Gibson of Plainwell, on September 19, 1929. On Tuesday the happy pair left for Pasadena, California where they will spend the winter. We hope they will be back next summer. Fire that destroyed the big poultry building at the fair grounds at Hartford on Friday, September 13, will not halt the big poultry show scheduled for the Van Buren county fair to be held October 1 to 5. New equipment will be secured and ample provisions made for sheltering the poultry exhibit. None of the other fair buildings were damaged by the flames, and the loss of the poultry building the smallest of the show buildings on the grounds will not affect the scheduled fair.

Catherine Sage is sick at the home of Vern Hudson. Mrs. Mary Beals is recovering from her recent operation. Mable Churchill is home from the hospital and gaining steadily. Mrs. Tyehsen and Marian are home from Detroit where the latter had her tonsils removed. The Woman's Fortnightly Club will hold their first meeting with Mrs. Harrelson next Thursday. Mrs. Addie Herman of Jackson, Ross Herman and wife, Lauson and Clare Herman of Chicago and Wayne Herman of Milwaukee were called here by the death of Mrs. Adele Post. Base Line closed the base ball season Sunday in a blaze of glory by defeating the fast Jackson team by the score of 7 to 2. These teams have played four games this season, the visitors taking the first by an eyelash and but for their errors Sunday would have lost the last three by about the same margin. These errors were excusable but costly, for after allowing them 2 runs in the first the locals were air tight in every department. With nearly the same lineups both teams showed much improvement as the season advanced and Sunday's showing by the locals would have been good even against Battle Creek or the Long Hairs. In closing we believe no community has been privileged to see a better series in general than Base Line has given us and the veteran, Bobby Curtiss, in his palmiest days, was never better than he was Sunday against these hard hitting, hard fighting Jackson boys.

Obituary

Martha Adele Hale was born at Amity, N. Y. June 14, 1846 and died at Gobles Sept. 15, 1929. She was married to Chauncey Post May 11, 1865; their long married life of 54 years being spent in this vicinity. Mr. Post departed this life March 20, 1920. She lived for her home and the community and, despite her years, she was able to maintain the former and was active for the latter. Just prior to her last illness, she attended a meeting of the Ladies Aid and read a paper. During her years on the farm she was an efficient correspondent to the Gobles News and other papers and after moving to town we were indebted to her for many items of interest that might otherwise have been overlooked. The funeral was held from the Community church of which she was a member, and the attendance and profusion of beautiful flowers were a fitting tribute from the community which she loved. The leaves to mourn her loss one son, A. B. Post and one daughter, Mrs. Addie Herman of Jackson, eight grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their help and kindness during the illness and death of our dear mother; also Rev Penoyer for his comforting words and Mrs. Gilchrist and Mrs. McDonald for the song service. A. B. Post and Family, Mrs. Addie Herman and Family.

Bids Wanted

Change of Time Notice

The clocks in Gobles will be set back one hour at midnight Sunday, Sept. 29 in accordance with petition of last year. R. E. Allen, Village Clerk.

WAVERLY

Nellie Buckland of Washington, D. C. is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Buckland. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sage visited at Claude Reynolds of near Mattawan last Thursday. R. B. Taylor, who is teaching at Riverside had a vacation this week. Some of the children were picking grapes. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hyames of Baltimore, Md. and sister, Mrs. Effie Wood of Comstock were calling on relatives in this neighborhood last Wednesday. A. C. Blakeman and family spent Sunday with Vernon Root and family of Kalamazoo. Bernard Kemple and family of Kalamazoo spent the week end with A. B. Frisbie and family. Leon Laws and family and Mr. and Mrs. Kray of Grand Rapids visited at Mr. and Mrs. John Russell's Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Markillie of Kalamazoo visited at Ed Markillie's Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. White, Philip and Kenneth spent Sunday at Ed Ungers of Bloomingdale. Ada Mae Frisbie entered the 8th grade of Paw Paw high school which began last Monday and Harold Irwin entered the ninth grade.

School Notes

In the third and fourth grades all the review spelling lessons are spelled orally. The one having the most head marks at the end of each month will receive a prize, which will be something to use in school work. The High School orchestra is progressing very nicely; it will be the best we have had in some years. The beginners class is likewise doing creditable work. The instruction is as good as any in the state. Another reason why you should investigate Gobles before sending your children elsewhere. School assembly was well attended last Friday. A very fine program was given. Watch for our carnival. An Indian project has been the thing of chief interest for the Primary Department this fall. Miss Belton introduced the project by telling the story of Hiawatha in a very simple way. This resulted in a lively discussion of Indians; their color and habits, their mode of living and ways and means of warfare. Next day found the school room crowded with Indian relics; bows, arrows, arrow heads, feathers, canoes, stones and even a doll papoose. The children were unconsciously learning many valuable facts as the project had been correlated with spelling, language, reading, writing and arithmetic. Later on the children decided to make an Indian village in the sand table. The result was astonishingly beautiful. Little paper wigwams, highly decorated stood among dark trees (of pine twigs) near the banks of a shining blue lake (the tin bottom of the sand table). Canoes of various colors were pulled up on the shore or were leaning against the wigwams. Little bows and arrows were neatly placed by the doors of the tents and our papoose hung contentedly on a tree nearby. In the distance was the cornfield which was securely guarded by a fence made of pine branches. There was even an Indian mound to add to the atmosphere of the scene. There is a real benefit in a project of this kind. We should like to arouse the interest of parents as well as the children. Come and see us!

Jury Selected in Gastonia Strikers' Trial

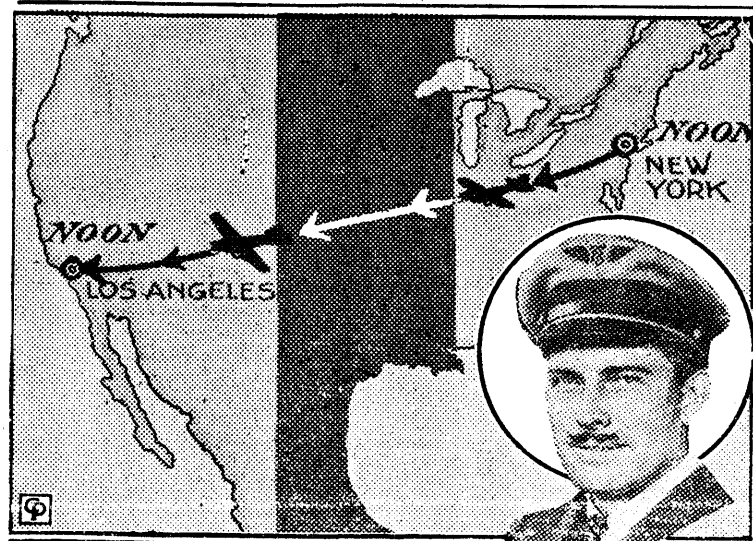

This is the jury obtained after more than a week's effort in the trial at Charlotte, N. C., of 16 union leaders and strikers charged with the murder of Police Chief O. F. Aderholt of Gastonia, N. C. Left to right: C. W. Martin, E. M. Stillwell, J. O. McCoy, John Phillips, J. C. Campbell, A. F. Parker, J. W. Hicks, G. L. Benson, S. L. Caldwell, Zeb Morris, C. G. Torrence and G. L. Shuford.

Proposes Union for Europe

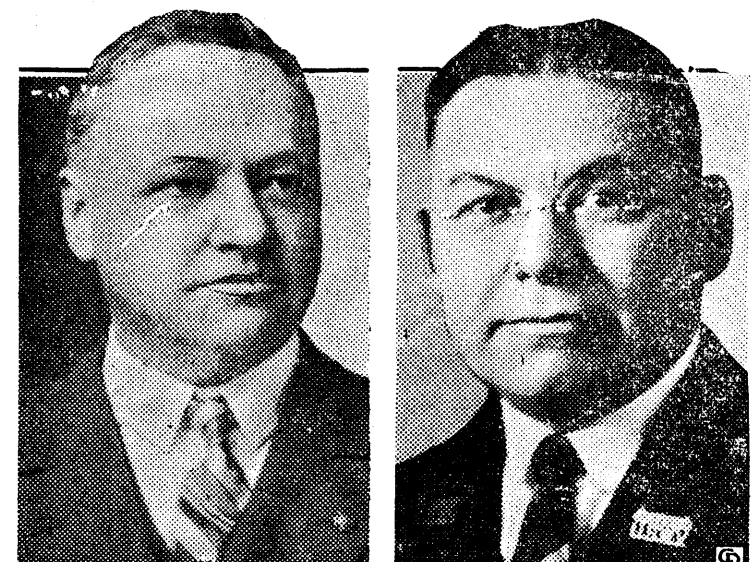

Foreign ministers attending the tenth assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva will soon receive a detailed explanation of Aristide Briand's plan for an "economic United States of Europe." The French premier has insisted that his project is not directed against the United States. Besides Briand, right, photo shows ministers of leading countries which would comprise such a confederation, Gustav Stresemann, Germany, upper left; Arthur Henderson, Great Britain, center, and Paul Hymans, lower left, Belgium.

Proposes Cross Country Air Express

An aerial "pony express" crossing the continent each day is being planned by Captain Roscoe Turner, who recently flew twice across the continent, with three passengers, in 37 hours, 19 minutes and 30 seconds flying time. He believes regular dependable service could be given with not more than 20 hours elapse time between departure and arrival. Above, Captain Turner and the route which he proposes to follow, which is 100 miles shorter than any yet flown between the two seaboard.

PARTRIDGE TO BE TARGET FOR HUNTER 5 DAYS

Hunters will have a chance to try their skill on Partridge and prairie chickens in the lower peninsula this fall for a period of five days, extending from October 16th to 20th, inclusive as a result of the recent action of the conservation commission.

Recent reports of the scarcity of the partridge have come largely from the upper peninsula and the southern part of the lower peninsula while reports of abundance have come mostly from the extensive partridge cover areas in the northern half of the lower peninsula, and indicate that the birds have "come back" in many places, according to reports received during the past year by the game division.

Prairie chickens are found in 55 counties of the state, but they occur in considerable numbers only in the larger marsh and brush areas such as are located just west of Saginaw bay. It is generally believed that the five-day shooting period will not prove to be a serious handicap to these birds because of the comparative difficulty in bagging them during a late season. The bag limit regulations provide that not more than five partridge or prairie chickens shall be taken in any one day, and no more than ten of either shall be possessed at one time, or taken during the entire season.

Corn Silage Best Pasture Substitute

The extremely dry summer has made it very hard to keep up normal production of dairy herds. Pastures have not been able to furnish food enough for body maintenance and milk production, and this has resulted in a decided drop in milk flow, where no supplementary feeds are available. High prices on concentrates hand grain do not allow the dairymen to purchase too heavily of those feeds if he wants to keep his milk business on a profitable basis. Some dairymen have fed hay for sometime, but even considering the large hay crop this year, it takes a lot to hold out during the feeding season, running from July to the middle of May, the next year. Probably the most satisfactory supplement to poor pastures is good corn silage and the dairymen who has plenty of this to feed, not only in the winter but also during the dry summer months, is going to be ahead in the production of milk. Many livestock men try to get along without silos, due to the big investment in purchasing one. D. G. Miller of Eaton Rapids, one of the largest breeders of Holstein cattle in this county, solved the problem of high priced silos by building a home made one. This 16 by 30-foot silo cost Mr. Miller exactly $267.99. The expense being divided into the following items. Labor on blocks $52.90, 110 hours; mason 63 cents per hour, $71.50, 150 hours; helper 30 cents per hour, $45; 23 barrels cement $2.20 each, $52.05; 10 sacks lime $5.00; iron rod for ladder, $2.00; door frame, $3.04; cable hoops, $6.00; wire and nails, $3.00; 5 loads of sand at $1.50 each $7.50; 10 loads of gravel at $1.50 each, $15.00; blacksmithing on ladder and frames $5.00.

Bees Now Accused of Life Of Crime By State College

Bees, which have always been literature's shining example of industry and thrift, are now accused by specialists in agriculture at Michigan State College of robbery.

As a further mark of criminal traits, the specialist points out that the bees rob the weak and defenseless members of their species. Colonies which have too few members to defend their honey stores fall victims to insect highwaymen if the apiarist is not careful in handling his bees.

Owners of bees are advised to contract the entrances of hives occupied by weak colonies. This enables the few defenders within the hive to bar their door to predatory strangers. If the hives of weak colonies must be opened, the work should be done as rapidly as possible.

Two Heifers, Value $350, Return Farm $20,000 in 11 Years

Eleven years ago Julius Schaeffer, a local farmer, startled his family by suddenly declaring he intended to sell every cow on the place and restock the farm with pure bred. Despite the remonstrations of his wife, who insisted it was a foolish thing to do, inasmuch as she believed their profit would be no greater than from grade cows, Schaeffer paid $350 for two pure bred heifers but made no change in his breeding or housing methods.

Today Schaeffer calculates the investment has returned him $20,000 in the 11 years. From the two heifers and their offspring he has marketed dairy products to the value of $15,000. Sale of offspring netted around $5,000. The two original heifers are still in the herd and are more than paying their board bills.

Four Cows in Herd Of Ex-Cong. Fordney Rate High in Tests

Four of the high-producing Jersey cows in the herd of Joseph W. Fordney of Saginaw, Michigan, former congressman, have recently completed official production tests with the creditable average production of 641.39 lbs. of butterfat in 365 days.

Bell B. A. of Gentleslope, the cow making the highest yield, produced 663.93 lbs. of butterfat and 12,792 lbs. of milk in 365 days, starting on test at the age of 6 years and 1 month. Bell has made three previous 365-day test records, winning an American Jersey Cattle Club Silver medal award with a yield of 614.99 lbs. of butterfat when a senior 3-year-old. C's R's Fairy, another of these recently tested cows, produced 654.97 lbs. of butterfat and 15,410 lbs. of milk in 365 days. She was started on this, her first test, at the age of 8 years and 6 months.

Sophie's Marthy H., the oldest of the four cows, was started on her recent test at the age of 10 years and 2 months. During this test she yielded a total of 630.69 lbs. of butterfat and 12,177 lbs. of milk. In her four previous tests this exceptional aged cow made outstanding records winning two American Jersey Cattle Club Gold medals and a Silver Medal, and making one record of 854.83 lbs. of butterfat in 365 days. Major's Rosine, youngest of the quartet, made a record of 615.97 lbs. of butterfat and 9,639 lbs. of milk in 365 days. She started her test at the age of 5 years and 10 months. In a previous test started when a senior 4-year-old, Rosine yielded 553.28 lbs. of butterfat in 365 days.

State Potato Shippers In $800,000 Combine

Plans have been completed for the consolidation of the business and properties of Albert Miller & Company of Chicago, Albert Miller & Company (Michigan) of Grand Rapids, and the A. M. Penney Company of Waupaca, Wis., with assets aggregating $800,000. The three firms are among the pioneers in the purchase, warehousing and distribution of potatoes throughout the middle west.

More than 350 warehouses will be owned and operated in Michigan Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Nebraska, Wyoming and Idaho with a volume of over 15,000 carloads of potatoes annually. The firms also finance and market the output of numerous farmers' companies at country points. The company intends to expand its volume further in the near future. Albert Miller & Company have for a long period been the largest exclusive handlers of potatoes in the United States.

E. Percy Miller, who served under President Hoover in the food administration, will be president of the consolidated concern which will operate under the name of Albert Miller & Company with general offices in Chicago. John F. Jardine, president and general manager of the Penney Company, will be a vice-president of the Miller Company. Other officers will be Fred H. Hallock, vice-president and general sales manager, and Perrin C. Miller, secretary-treasurer and loading station.

Agriculture Hints

Choose seed potatoes in the field, not the bin. Tubers from diseased plants always produce infected plants the following season. Select the tubers from a field as free from diseased plants as possible. Apparently healthy plants in the same field with diseased plants may also be infected if plant lice, or aphids, are present. These insects carry such diseases as the mosaic, leaf-roll, spindle-tuber, and curly dwarf from one plant to another.

Various experiments on the use of alfalfa meal for livestock show that the grinding of alfalfa hay into meal has little effect on the feeding value, the chief advantages of the meal being that it can be fed with less waste than hay, is in more convenient form, and can be shipped at less expense.

Small or Medium Cabbage Is Best

Small or medium-weight cabbage is the most desirable market size. Heads of pointed cabbage weighing from 2 to 4 pounds and heads of Danish and domestic cabbage weighing from 3 to 6 pounds are preferred. Cabbage for immediate shipment should be trimmed to 2 to 4 close fitting leaves. The green outer leaves protect the head and may be removed at the destination, if necessary, to give the cabbage a fresh appearance. Leaves showing appreciable damage from insects, disease, or other cause should be removed.

Chestnut Trees at Hart Die of Blight

H. H. Wedgeworth, Michigan State college plant pathologist and County Agricultural Agent Carl Hemstreet have inspected chestnut trees in the cemetery at Hart. The trees have been dying for some time. It was found the trees were badly infected with chestnut blight. Removal of infected trees was recommended.

Friend—Is it true, doctor, that the appendix is absolutely useless?
Dr. Quack—Useless? Why, it's a veritable gold mine for us surgeons.

Poultry

"PREVENT" INSTEAD OF "CURE" POULTRY DISEASES

A "cured" fowl is a menace to the poultry owner because, as a rule, the bird goes back into the laying flock and loses its identity. It continues to produce eggs or is mated to hens that are laying eggs to be hatched. The chicks from these eggs will inherit the constitutional weakness that made the ancestor or ancestors susceptible to the disease.

For this reason, if no other, prevention is far better than cure. Birds which do not have the opportunity to become sick will produce greater returns than those that are kept under insanitary conditions and under improper methods of feeding and management. A clean house, well disinfected, and properly lighted and ventilated is one of the biggest factors in keeping down disease in the flock and is one way of insuring maximum production through the winter months when egg prices are at their peak.

Common coal tar dips sprayed into every corner and on to every part of the laying house, after a thorough cleaning, will do away with most of the parasites that infest the flock. All droppings should be cleaned up and burned or placed on a field at the far corner of the farm, where neither your own nor your neighbor's chickens will get to them. Runs should be cleaned and if possible plowed. If convenient, it is a good policy to change the location of the runs occasionally, plowing the old runs while the birds are on the new location and then repeating the performance when the flock is put back on the old runs. In many cases it is not convenient to maintain two poultry yards, either because of lack of fencing equipment or lack of room, and in this case, raking and burning refuse at regular intervals will help materially in keeping down disease in the flock.

When diseased birds do appear in the flock they should be isolated and treatment given in case the trouble is not serious. If the disease is well advanced the bird should, in most cases, be destroyed, because individual treatment is too costly to administer to fowls unless they are particularly valuable as show or breeding birds.

RAISING HEALTHY PULETS

Practically the entire efforts in poultry raising during the spring and summer are for the purpose of having good, healthy pullets to put in the laying houses when fall comes. We believe that five rules will prove helpful to our readers. They are:

Chicks must be hatched sufficiently early that they will develop into mature pullets that are ready to come into production during October to become good winter layers.

Fresh ground has been found to be the most dependable method of disease control. Movable brooder houses that can be easily cleaned and large enough to provide sufficient space for chicks to grow and not become overcrowded help. After chicks are partly grown they thrive best on the edge of a cornfield away from the laying flock. Avoid coccidiosis by raising your chicks on clean ground.

Experimental results indicate that feeds must be so proportioned that the protein, vitamin and mineral balance is maintained. Milk fed in clean vessels is essential for proper chick growth. Additional animal protein in the form of meat scrap or meat and bonemeal is absolutely essential; tankage is not easily enough digested by baby chicks whose digestive apparatus has not become fully developed. Green food, milk and sunlight furnish much of the desired vitamin content in a chick ration. For chicks raised indoors it is often advisable to use some cod-liver oil to furnish vitamin "D" which is usually furnished by direct sunlight. The minerals which must be added to grains to make a properly balanced chick ration are calcium and phosphorus together with a very small percentage of salt. Chick size oyster shell should be kept before the chicks at all times. Bonemeal, unless one uses meat and bone scrap, must be added to the average chick ration to properly balanced chick feeds.

It does not pay to attempt to economize by raising a second brood in the same house, under the same hover along with the older chicks. Quarter or half-grown chicks trample the younger ones unmercifully. The younger chicks should be placed under a hover where the temperature is 95 degrees, six inches off the floor at the edge of the hover. This temperature is gradually decreased as the chicks grow older. Successful chick raisers have a complete brooding unit for each brood of chicks.

Avoid overcrowding, trampling and commotion by growing the cockerels by themselves as soon as sex can be determined. Market the surplus cockerels or keep them separate from the pullets for most satisfactory growth.

The crow is best known by its depredations on corn and other crops, on poultry, and on wild birds, but it is unfair to condemn it entirely, since it makes warfare on insect pests, according to the biological survey of the U. S. department of agriculture. Insects supply about one-fifth of the crow's menu, which includes some of the worst pests with which the farmer has to contend, such as grasshoppers, caterpillars, White grubs, and May beetles. Though crows should be destroyed where they are doing damage, indiscriminate killing of them is unwarranted, in the opinion of the biological survey.

Stork Closes Show

Because Helen Hayes, above, is going to have a baby, ten New York actors are now out of work. Helen thinks impending motherhood is much more important than her contract as the star of "Coquette," as does her playwright husband, Charlie MacArthur. As a result the producer declared he couldn't replace his star, and members of the cast who had been signed for the coming season have found themselves out in the cold.

Bobby Joined Her

Probably more shocked at the early defeat of Bobby Jones during the national amateur championship at Pebble Beach, Cal., than any one else, including the Atlanta wonder himself, was Mrs. Robert Tyre Jones, his wife. Snapped here at Pebble Beach, she had her famous hubby's company as just a spectator following his elimination.

STATE TAX SET AT $29,500,000

The state administrative board has set the Michigan property tax at $29,500,000, the highest level set in the history of the state, the department of public instruction announced the distribution of the primary school fund will shortly be made on a per capita basis of $15.70.

In boosting the property level $9,000,000 over the tax of 1928, the administration followed a conservative course in estimating revenues from special sources.

The malt tax revenue which has begun pouring into state coffers, was placed at $1,500,000, a drop of about $500,000 under previous estimates for the levy.

The malt tax estimate was below that computed by the department of state following a preliminary survey of sales in this state prior to the effective date of the act. The Lansing office of the department of state has sold $45,000 worth of stamps and the Detroit office $21,000 since the law became effective, indicating the levy is not deterring consumption.

Revenue from special sources outside general taxation was estimated at $13,182,490.31. The board, in reaching this figure, deducted about $1,000,000 to meet deficiencies.

Legislative appropriations have been made for $42,682,490.31, of which about $6,000,000 is for the hospitalization program, $2,000,000 for relief to the poorer school districts, $4,920,000 for the University of Michigan tax and $1,640,000 for Michigan State college.

The highest previous property tax was $25,500,000 in 1927.

In computing the per capita school distribution, the department of public instruction announced a census of 1,274,443, an increase of more than 26,000 over the 1928 census. The per capita apportionment is an increase of 50 cents.

Although the auditor general has $20,074,266.99 in the primary school fund about $27,000 is deducted for deficiencies in certain districts. About $45,000 remains as a working margin for payments.

The primary fund is aside from $2,000,000 which will be distributed under the Turner act. Instead of a flat rate basis, however, distribution of the latter will take into consideration the financial condition of various school districts.

CLARE COUNTY TROUT PONDS ARE FAVORED FOR U. S. HATCHERY

An offer by the Clare board of supervisors to turn the county trout rearing ponds over to the federal government for a hatchery was investigated by G. C. Leach of Washington, head of the fish culture department of the United States bureau of fisheries, W. W. Thayer, superintendent of the federal hatchery at Northville, and Cong. Roy O. Woodruff of Bay City.

Following the inspection Mr. Leach said he would recommend the site for a government hatchery if congress would make the necessary appropriation. Cong. Woodruff pledged his support in gaining needed funds.

Sees State Parks Hang Up Record

Five million or more persons will have visited state parks this season, with virtually every state in the Union represented, if the consistent increase in attendance since 1925 can be depended upon, in the opinion of P. J. Hoffmaster, superintendent of parks.

In 1925, four years after the state parks were placed under control of the conservation department, there were 52 parks covering a total of 7,655 acres. That year 2,500,000 persons from 46 states visited the parks. Those visitors spread the news and next year there were 3,500,000 visitors.

A remarkable increase came in 1927 when the attendance suddenly jumped 45.5 per cent over the previous year, which means that 5,107,487 persons were counted.

Since the spurt of 1927 the increase has continued, but has become more gradual. However, there is little doubt that this year will surpass last year with its 5,346,411 visitors.

The parks have drawn their largest attendance from Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin. Canada last year contributed 256 automobiles and 986 persons. Wyoming sent one car and two visitors. The record for long distance goes to the Czechoslovakian car registered in one of the parks.

Aged Farmer Wins Battle to Bar Road

Sinkler C. Bean, aged Spring Arbor township farmer, near Jackson, and former supervisor, gained reinforcements in his fight to prevent construction of a road across his property, when Mr. and Mrs. Howard Arntz asked the circuit court for an injunction to restrain the state from continuing the work.

Arntz declared the state had taken no steps to have three commissioners appointed to determine compensation for land required for the right of way and that no effort had been made to accord him a proper settlement. Arntz declares that he was notified that $1 had been placed to his credit by the state highway department which would be paid when Arntz sent in a release on the property.

Bean declared that he had learned the names of persons who stole a rifle with which he halted the road work recently and that he would ask a warrant for their arrest. The road workers have kept off Bean's property since his ultimatum that he would shoot to kill if they encroached.

French Paper Hits Fords

A French newspaper has accused Henry Ford of attempting to destroy the French automobile industry by paying workers in his new French plant the unheard of sum of 27 cents per hour. Speaking of this wage scale to unskilled labor, the French publication says: "Mr. Ford is powerful enough to stand such sacrifices for a time, but if he makes them, it is evidently with the aim of provoking a general increase in the cost of production of French automobiles, which would permit him to compete successfully."

MICHIGAN MAY INCREASE OIL LEASE PRICES

News of the success of a second oil well on state-owned property in Midland county led the conservation commission to consider boosting its rate for oil leases. No definite decision was reached.

The second well was brought in by the Pure Oil Company, which has leased 1,200 acres of state land in that section. It was producing 500 barrels a day during the first 12 hours. The first well began production several weeks ago and has an output of 300 barrels a day.

Under the lease the state is receiving one-eighth of this production, which means a revenue of $170 a day. The money is deposited in the general fund. The commissioners agreed that the state should receive more than an eighth for large producing wells. A tentative sliding scale will be considered.

State Geologist R. A. Smith predicted that several wells will be successful on the state-owned land in that vicinity, inasmuch as the two now producing are nearly a mile apart. He said this signifies there is oil under a large part, if not all of the territory.

The commission issued an order allowing anchored floating blinds for duck shooting anywhere in Houghton, Manistiquette, St. Clair and Round lakes, in Kalkaska and Antrim counties, and in Saginaw bay. Anchored blinds must be within 100 yards of the rush beds or shore line in all other waters.

It was decided to experiment with several small game refuges to augment the large tract in Ogemaw county. The game refuge there is not large enough to suitably protect deer because of increasing gun pressure.

190 New Laws Go Into Effect

One hundred ninety public acts passed by the last legislature took their places among the state laws August 28, when the prescribed 90 days following adjournment made them effective. One hundred thirty-six statutes were given immediate effect.

Laws, ranging from the most stringent prohibition enforcement statute of any state in America to the gracious permission granted automobile owners to carry their gasoline supply in a black colored tank, will clutter the legal libraries. Every possible phase of state and local government is touched by some act passed by the 1929 session. The recent tendency by legislators to codify numerous statutes is manifested in these laws.

Michigan, which nestles close to the wet Canada border, served notice upon liquor offenders in this state that prohibition offenders will meet the stiffest penalties in the history of the nation. The Cuthbertson bootlegger act not only prescribes a maximum sentence of four years for commercial liquor traffickers, but also provides a maximum term of two years for the minor liquor offender. Only the passage of time will tell how the courts will interpret the legislative intent of this statute, which aims at the habitual rather than the occasional liquor violator.

Reaching out to other phases of crime, the legislature passed an act making the sterilization of mental defectives mandatory, to place Michigan among the leading eugenics program. Parents cannot kidnap their own children if adopted by others under a court order.

High Court Ends David Cult Fight

The long drawn House of David litigation apparently was ended when the supreme court denied the application of H. T. Dewhurst, would-be leader of the cult, for a rehearing of the colony's appeal.

Dewhurst based his petition on a contention that the amended decree, although favorable to the colony, contained derogatory statements which were not substantiated by the evidence. He asked the rehearing so that these statements could be removed. His petition was opposed by William J. Barnard, attorney for "Queen" Mary Purnell, who is Dewhurst's opponent for the empty throne, and by the attorney general.

The state's suit against the House of David was started several years ago, but was held up due to the disappearance of the late "King" Benjamin. When Purnell was located by the Free Press within the colony, court action was resumed and Justice Louis F. Fead, then a circuit judge, threw the colony into receivership, expelled the king and queen and issued an injunction prohibiting immoral practices. The supreme court reversed all of the provisions of the decree, except the injunction.

Father—Young lady, do you mean to tell me you've been carrying that money around in your stocking?

Dora—Why, daddy, you told me to put it where it would draw interest.

POPULATION IN STATE 6 MILLION

Michigan will have a population under the 1930 census of approximately 6,000,000 inhabitants, if the school census for the present year may be taken as an indication. And according to the census figures released by the department of public instruction, the out-state has kept step with the growth of Detroit in proportion.

The school census showed 1,375,443 persons of school age in the state. On the basis of four and one-half persons for each person of school age, the population of the state would be 5,734,993 at present, as compared with the official census figure of the state for 1929 of 3,668,412.

While the school census figures by counties will not be available until later, figures show that Wayne county has 440,920 children of school age, giving it a population of 1,893,740 for the present as against 1,117,645 in the official census of 1920.

The figures show that in the past nine years the out-state has grown 1,200,983 in population, while the increase in Wayne county has totaled 886,095.

The school census figures available show the increase has been general in the industrial counties, and that most of the farming communities are holding their own, with the decrease coming in the out-cutter areas.

The figures also show that while all counties will be paying about 48 per cent more state tax than they did a year ago, to make up the total of $29,500,000 voted by the administrative board, an increase of $9,000,000 over that of a year ago, they also will be receiving in return in primary money $20,000,000 in round numbers, or $15.70 per child of school age, an increase of 50 per cent per child over that paid last year, which will mean that at least half of the counties will receive back more money for school purposes for the coming year in September than they will pay in state taxes in January.

The distribution of the $20,000,000 under the Turner bill to the school districts is supposed to be made before January 1 from the general fund, which is to be reimbursed from tax collections, but because this fund now is on the wrong side of the balance sheet and only the expected $7,000,000 in corporation taxes coming in this month, the fund will be on the wrong side of the balance sheet for the rest of the calendar year and the school districts will have to wait until after January 1 for their share of the $20,000,000 Turner bill money.

Detroit Stores Active

Detroit is the center of retail store business activity this year, according to figures on department sales announced recently by the Federal Reserve Board. Figures from more than 50 of the principal cities of the United States show Detroit department stores leading all others in the percentage of increase in sales over the same period in 1928. Detroit's percentage of increase was 11.8 per cent, followed by Toronto with 10.2 per cent.

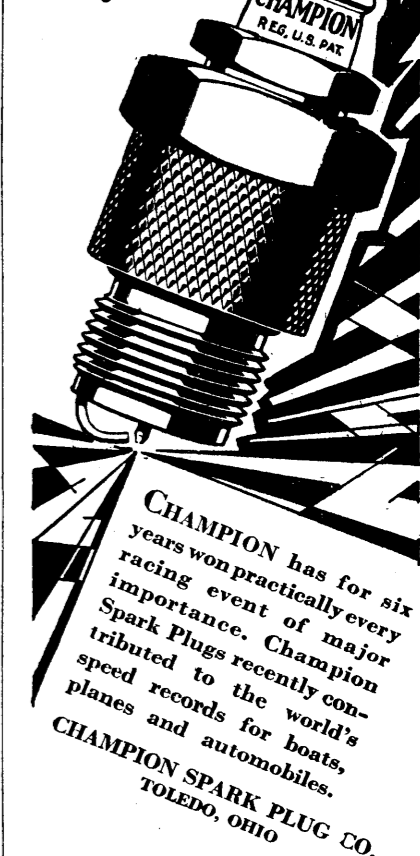

Take Oil Leases Upon 2,332 Newaygo Acres

Oil leases on 2,332 acres of land in Lilley and Home townships were filed in the register of deeds office recently. Melrose & Reid leased 1,280 acres in one lease in Lilley township and F. J. Watson leased 932 acres in three leases in both Lilley and Home townships.

The Ridderman well in Sherman township is to be abandoned, it is understood. Drilling was stopped at a depth of 3,110 feet. The drill was still in Traverse sands. Shell interests were operating this project.

Gold Mine of Ideas for Farmers

Here's "the most remarkable book ever published for farmers," says one authority. It is remarkable in the extreme practical nature of its contents, in the wide range of farm subjects covered, in the wealth of illustrations it contains, and in the extremely low price.

861 Discoveries

One discovery sometimes makes a fortune. Here are 861 of them, any one of which may be as many dollars worth to you. These discoveries may be classified as follows:

125 for the farm alone	15 on greenhouses
11 on fencing	10 on farm waste
11 on field crops	10 on poultry
10 on farm buildings	10 on household budget
10 on farm machinery	10 on farm work
10 on farm power	10 on farm products
10 on farm tools	10 on farm labor
10 on farm accidents	10 on farm insurance
10 on farm diseases	10 on farm pests
10 on farm insects	10 on farm diseases
10 on farm diseases	10 on farm diseases

—and every plan has been tested and found to be a money-maker. Most of the articles are illustrated with photographs or drawings. The device does not cost any money because of these pictures and clear descriptions.

Suppose you could live your life 417 times How you could forge ahead of other farmers in a way that would insure you liberty and steady profits! This book enables you to do the next best thing—you may have the experience of 417 lives—experiences of successful farmers as told by themselves—briefly, clearly, simply. And many of these experiences are illustrated with accurate drawings! Imagine 861 pages packed full of ideas—861 crystal clear illustrations. Just think of the value to you!

Mr. Farmer--- SEE THE LEHIGH SOIL SUGAR Exhibit at the Hartford Fair

See this famous limestone that makes $2 grow where $1 grew before. Notice its whiteness--its texture, how it is ground just right for best results. Find out why it applies so easily--why rain doesn't cake it. Ask for the booklet that tells the whole story of Limestone and the results it gets. Lehigh Soil Sugar--put it on, don't put it off!

Somewhere in This Township-- there's a farmer about 30 years old, married, honest as the day is long and with a host of friends who are anxious to see him succeed. In winter and in spring, he finds he has a little time on his hands that could very easily be turned into cash.

We're looking for just that man. We want to talk over with him the possibilities of his becoming our representative in his township for Lehigh Soil Sugar, the agricultural limestone you'll see exhibited at the Fair next week. Our proposition is a most attractive one; we offer him an opportunity to get into business for himself--a business that will pay him well!

If you know of a man who you think fills our requirements, suggest to him that he visit the Lehigh Soil Sugar exhibit in the big Floral Hall at the Hartford Fair next week and talk things over with our Michigan sales manager, Mr. Sanborn, who will be on the job day and night.

Laws of New England

Harsh on Malefactors

The children of the early days in New England did not learn the letters of the alphabet in such simple fashion as "A stands for Ape, and B stands for Ball." But letters sometimes were used to mark the transgressor.

Lack of chastity was indicated in the scarlet A which Hester Prynne wore. The drunkard could be and was disfranchised, and must "wear about his neck and so as to hang above his outer garment a D made of red cloth and set upon white, and to continue it a year and not to leave it off when he comes among company."

The letter B did not escape being a mark of ignominy. "Any person who commits burglary by breaking up any dwelling house, or shall robb any person in the field or highways, such a person so offending shall for the first offence be branded on the forehead with the letter B; a second time a second B, and for a third time be put to death. If the offence is committed on the Lord's Day, for the first offence he shall have one ear cut off; the second ear for the second offence, and be put to death for the third offence."

Smoking Among Women Alarmed Men in 1868

In 1868 the growing practices of smoking and dipping snuff by refined women in both North and South, writes Arthur Train in the Saturday Evening Post, were stigmatized by Schuyler Brightley in the April number of "The Galaxy" as shockingly on the increase.

In the South particularly, owing to the influence of their negro mammies, "young and tenderly nurtured girls, belonging to the richest and proudest families in the neighborhood, smoked to an extent that would be regarded as dangerously excessive even among men, and not cigarettes or cigars or yet elegant little chibouks or nargiles, fashioned to suit their delicate lips, but short, black dudsens from the North, and pipes of native invention made of a reed stuck into a bowl of red earth or a corncob."

War Prisoners Made Slaves

All armies sent out from Rome were accompanied by speculators in the slave trade, who bought the captives as they were put up to auction after a battle and then undertook the transport to Rome of all who were suited for employment in Italy or were not brought up in the province which was the seat of war. Fowler says: "After the campaign of Pydna and the overthrow of the Macedonian kingdom, Aemilius Paullus, one of the most humane of the Romans, sold into slavery, under orders from the senate, 150,000 free inhabitants of communities in Epirus which had sided with Perseus in the war. Caesar, like Aemilius Paullus, one of the most humane of Romans, tells us himself that on a single occasion, the capture of the Adriatic, he sold 53,000 prisoners on the spot."

"Faint Heart Never--"

They were talking of a fellow club member.
"When I come to think about it," said one man, "I don't think I've seen old Harry for nearly a week."
"I'll bet you haven't," agreed another man, entering at the moment. "He's been dead three days."
"Dead? How did that happen?"
"Well, you know his wife had a little habit of making him carry everything she bought. Last week she bought a grand piano."
"But he didn't have to carry that, surely?"
"No; he took one look at it, though, and passed away without so much as a sound."

Unusual Mirage

To the tired and thirsty traveler in the desert there sometimes appears the tantalizing vision of an oasis, green with trees and sweet with running water. The camels wearily pad toward the promised spot, and, alas, the mirage slowly fades, leaving only the hot, cruel, desert sands! Dwellers on the shores of Lake Constance were enchanted the other day by a clear and vivid picture of that part of the town of Immenstadt with the Herzberg palace appearing in the heavens and remaining visible for some time. This is the first time a mirage has ever been recorded on Lake Constance.

Dikes Long Employed

The dikes which protect the Netherlands and the German coasts of the North sea go back to the old Roman times. Apparently even before the Romans appeared the Batavians at the mouth of the Rhine protected themselves by dikes. Dursus, after the conquest of Holland, 10 B. C., built an elaborate system of artificial canals and dikes. Pliny the Elder gives an interesting description of the artificial hills which were erected as places of refuge during the floods.

Yes, Please

The little boy had been sent to the drug store to get some liniment and a special kind of china cement.
"Do you want the two things in separate parcels?" asked the druggist, as soon as he had attended to the boy's demands.
"Yes, please," answered the little fellow. "I think it would be as well. The cement is for mother; she wants to mend the teapot. The liniment is for father. Mother broke the teapot over his head."

Mortgage Sale

Whereas default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a mortgage dated July 22, 1927, executed by Philip Di Gaetano and Carmella Di Gaetano, husband and wife, of Gary, Lake County, Indiana, to Harrigan Prihoda Realty Company, Inc., Trustee, whose corporate name has been duly changed to Prihoda Realty Co., John Tetak, successor in trust, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Van Buren County, on July 28, 1927, in Liber 134 of Mortgages at page 258.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of certain installments due July 22, 1928 in the sum of $735.00 and due July 22, 1929 in the sum of $600.00, and interest upon the whole amount, and the mortgagee has elected to declare the whole debt secured thereby, to be now due and payable, because of said default.

Whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the day of this notice, is the sum of $3040.55 as principal and interest, plus an attorney fee, as is provided by statute, and such other sum or sums as the mortgagee may be obliged to pay for costs of this proceeding and taxes, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining, secured by said mortgages and notes running therewith or any part thereof whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgages will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, at public auction to the highest bidder, at the north front door of the Court House in the Village of Paw Paw in said County of Van Buren, that being the place for holding the Circuit Court therein, on Saturday the 21st day of December, A. D. 1929, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, of that day, which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit:

DEDICATE FERRIS INSTITUTE MEMORIAL HALL OCTOBER 19

Ferris Institute Memorial building is now occupied. Dedication of the new building will take place on Homecoming day, Oct. 19.

It is anticipated Ferris will meet Notre Dame B on the gridiron that day, but the program for the dedication has not been completed.

The pharmacy course at the institute has been lengthened to three years, E. J. Parr, head of the department, announces.

The enrollment for the course is larger than ever before, and the number of girls is greater than in any previous year. H. J. Fuller, Des Moines, Ia., and Charles Larwood, Tulsa, Okla., have been added to the teaching course. Larwood will take W. D. Cramer's classes, the latter having been given a year's leave of absence.

Miss Janette B. Higgins, a University of Michigan graduate, is the new principal of the normal department. Miss Charlotte Ross Peoples, Columbia university, has been added to the staff of English instructors.

How Speech By Humans First Came Into Being

Sir Richard Paget described, in a lecture at the Royal Institution of Great Britain, how insects and animals convey their emotions to each other, and how human speech first came into being. He said that the emotional state is very commonly expressed in sound, as, for example, in the love songs of the crickets, birds, and the howls, purring, grunts, and growls, the joyful barks and whinnies with which we are all familiar in the animal world.

Sir Richard, dealing with the origin of human speech, said, "Primitive man's rudimentary ideas and intentions were expressed by simple pantomime, mostly by his hands, with the co-operation of his body. But all this time man was also developing his arts and crafts. His hands became more and more occupied, and he found it increasingly difficult to talk with his hands full."

"Quite unconsciously he began to use his tongue and lips instead of his hands. In Europe the more southern races, leading easier lives with more hand-leisure, have retained many of their hand-gestures. The northern races, living under more rigorous conditions, have had their hands too full. "The northerners, therefore, were led to gesticulate almost entirely with their tongues and lips."

Federal Government Cuts National Costs

At the end of the last fiscal year the Federal government had a surplus of $185,000,000 in the treasury, five times the estimated surplus. During the year the national debt was reduced $673,000,000 and is now less than $17,000,000,000.

The policy of retrenchment in Federal expenditures, established a few years ago, has resulted in the conversion of savings into tax reduction for the people. Within eight years nearly two million people have been relieved entirely of Federal taxation.

President Hoover has announced that a careful study is being made to determine the possibilities for reducing Federal taxes in the future. This will probably be done, but it will be of little direct benefit to the public if the orgy of spending by local units of government, that has multiplied their cost time and again in recent years, is continued.

Mt. Pleasant Offers Extension Courses

Correspondence courses at Central State Teachers college are now an important link in school life, enrollment this year promising to exceed 1,000.

The department is used mainly by teachers who partially have completed life or degree courses at Central and who carry the correspondence work along with their teaching work in country schools. Full college credit is given these extension courses, and thus many teachers carry on their degree or life certificate work even though unable to attend school in person.

Poems That Live

FRATERNITY

I know not but in every leaf
That sprang to life along with me,
Were written all the joy and grief
Thenceforth my fate to be.

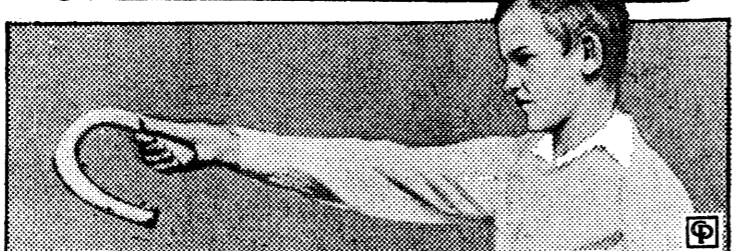

The wind that whispered to the earth,
The bird that sang its earliest lay,
The flower that blossomed at my birth—
My kinsmen all were they.

Ay, but for fellowship with these
I had not been—nay, might not be;
Nor they but vagrant melodies
Till harmonized by me.

—John Banister Tabb (1845-1909)

These Boys Champs in Their Early 'Teens

Though they are just youngsters these three lads have made a name for themselves in sports. Top, Bradford Miles, 14, of Chicago, hits 299 out of 300 targets in junior matches of national rifle meet for record. Center, Billy Goslin, left, defeats Tom Anderson for junior title in world's championship log-rolling tourney at Washburn, Wis., and Wakefield, Minn. Bottom, Robert Jacobsen, 13, by beating men three times his age, wins Wisconsin horseshoe pitching championship at Milwaukee.

Reformed Sects Have 56 Churches In Holland Area

That the Reformed Church in America and the Christian Reformed Church in America are firmly entrenched in Holland and vicinity is evidenced from recent statistics which credit the two denominations with a total of 56 churches, representing a constituency of 6,765 families and 16,093 communicant members.

The 29 churches in the Christian Reformed Church in America are affiliated with the classes of Holland and Zeeland, and the 27 churches in the Reformed Church in America are grouped in the Holland classes. The 56 churches in the two denominations are located within a radius of 75 miles.

Holland heads the group with 14 churches, with 45 located in Ottawa county. The first few pioneer churches were organized in 1847 and cover historical periods of 82 years. With few exceptions all the churches are supplied with regular pastors.

Bids for Re-modeling Soldiers' Home Opened

Bids have been opened by State Budget Director George Thompson for remodeling the main four-story building of the Michigan Soldiers' Home. The low bid was $386,783 or $86,783 above the legislative appropriation for the year for this purpose. The bids will be reported to the state administrative board.

Prize School Lunch Box Contained a Real Dinner

The first prize school lunch exhibited at a county fair this fall was an outstanding example of what a lunch should be. It contained all the essential foods required for a growing child, good wholesome materials were used, a suitable container held the neatly wrapped and packed food, and the lunch had an added merit of being different and interesting.

To the mother who packs lunches 20 odd days a month for nine months, the word "interesting" seems misplaced but the appealing feature of the prize lunch was that it contained a surprise. A small oblong package, neatly wrapped, tied and labeled "Surprise Package," was found to contain a small candy bar. Naturally a surprise would be kept until the end of the meal, a logical place for a treat of that sort.

The rest of the lunch expressed the mother's knowledge of what her growing child needed as accurately as the surprise package expressed her ingenuity. There were two kinds of sandwiches: two of whole wheat bread with chopped hard-cooked egg filling and lettuce, and one of white bread with a sweet filling. A half-pint bottle of milk, two small oatmeal cookies and an orange, together with the other things named made a well rounded lunch.

All lunches on display at this particular county fair were examples of "what the well dressed lunch should wear." The containers could be easily washed and aired, many of the boxes were lined with a white paper napkin and sandwiches were carefully wrapped in waxed paper.

Some food features of the other lunches were whole wheat bread, date- and nut sandwiches cut in unusual shapes as a special treat, filled sugar cookies, a few crisp celery stalks, a ripe tomato accompanied by a small shaker of salt, a thermos bottle of cocoa, a straw for the bottle of milk or a spoon to be used in eating the orange. Not a single leaky wedge of pie which might dampen other good food and the spirits of the eater, no black chocolate cake with soft, messy frosting, no thick slices of bread with dry fillings was marked against these lunches. Milk, fruit and carefully made sandwiches were in every lunch. Needless to say, the judge had a real task in selecting the prize winner.

First prize lunches are not difficult to copy. An endless variety in sandwich fillings and fruit are possible. A roll of waxed paper kept expressly for wrapping sandwiches is a great aid to attractiveness and sanitation. A surprise package may contain wholesome candy, a few nuts, raisins, dates or figs, gum, a special cookie or tart, animal crackers or some other favorite article of food. The use of some such feature as this may be a means to induce the underweight child to eat all of his lunch, the understanding to be that the surprise is a reward for a cleaned lunch box.

Stuffed Peppers Baked Potatoes
Quick Oven Scones Salad
Peach Cake Black Coffee

Peppers are plentiful in the market now, and they make a delicious main dish stuffed with a mixture of cooked rice, leftover meat, tomatoes and onion, or with breadcrumbs taking the place of rice, and then baked. I have always felt a little guilty that I never scald my peppers before stuffing and baking, but I did not consider it necessary. Recently I read an article by a household expert who admitted that she did not scald her peppers either.

Today's Recipes

Quick Oven Scones—Two cakes yeast, two cups milk, scalded and cooled; one tablespoon butter, one cup sugar, one-third cup shortening, one egg, one cup raisins, one-half cup citron, six and one-half cups sifted flour, one teaspoon salt. Dissolve yeast and one tablespoon sugar in luke warm milk, add three cups flour and beat well. Cover and let rise in warm place, free from draught, until light—about one hour. Then add butter and sugar creamed, the egg well beaten, fruit well floured, balance of flour, or enough to make a moderately soft dough, and the salt. Turn on board, knead lightly. Form into twelve round cakes. Cover and allow them to rise fifteen minutes. Then roll one-fourth inch thick, cut across each way nearly through, making an impression of four cakes. Place in well-greased pans. Let rise about one hour, or until double in size. Then brush with egg diluted with water. Bake 15 minutes in moderately hot oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Peach Cake—Split sponge cake—either home made or baker's—put together with sliced peaches and cover with whipped cream.

SUGGESTIONS

Cheese Sandwich Filling
Three-quarters pound snappy cheese (New York), butter size of walnut, one-half teaspoon dry mustard (scant), one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon pepper (scant), dash paprika, one-half cup milk (very scant), one egg. Grate the cheese, melt in a double boiler and add the butter. Beat egg and add milk. Mix dry ingredients and add to the beaten egg and milk. Add all to the milk and cheese, stirring constantly. Cool. Spread one side of the bread with this filling and the other side with butter. Press together and toast. Serve hot.

This filling will keep several days in a closed jar in the ice box. However, it will need creaming before it can be spread on bread.

Steeplechase

Put cooked lamb through the food chopper. Season it with minced onion, chopped parsley, salt and pepper, and moisten it with a little white sauce, just enough to hold the meat together.

Form into croquettes, cone-shaped, and set away in ice box for half an hour to cool. Roll in egg mixture, then in bread crumbs, and fry in deep hot fat until browned.

At last minute, drop bacon curls into the hot fat to brown, and serve the croquettes with a bacon curl atop each, fastened on with a toothpick, end of which is concealed with a tiny bit of parsley.

The World and All

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

ALL ABOUT LONDON

One of the charms of London is the atmosphere of history that is to be found everywhere.

Of course I ate many times at the Cheshire Cheese, where all Americans eat. I heard nothing but American conversation there, except from the waiters. But, unlike many of our writing tourists, it doesn't make me feel bad to hear Americans talk. I think they talk very well.

I ate where Dickens and Dr. Johnson ate, and rather admired those fine old boys for having chosen so good a place to eat. I visited the Old Curiosity Shop, and mourned a little that it has not been possible to keep it from becoming a souvenir mart.

Westminster Abbey disappointed me at first. The two towers are not quite up to the rest of the structure. They are inadequate. I was glad to learn that they were built long after the rest of the building had been completed, and were not designed by the original architects. But forget the towers, and the old Abbey is a magnificent piece of architecture—from the outside.

Inside, the grand old Abbey has been rather roughly handled. Practically all the modern construction work has an incongruous look. As long as your eye clings to the old work, you are charmed.

But the statuary! Taken in the mass, it is simply frightful. Taken a piece at a time, it is almost without exception in bad taste. There are a few exceptions. There are a few tombs and monuments that would be beautiful if they had elbow room. But the whole effect of the hundreds of marble angels, stone flowers, ridiculous imitations of oak trees and climbing vines, is a nightmare.

I was encouraged when several Englishmen of good standing and respectable intelligence told me that they shared my impressions of the interior of the Abbey, and that there is a very definite movement afoot among English lovers of the beautiful to have the whole chamber of horrors cleared and to have the graves all marked by simple tablets.

London has some fine old buildings, and a few good monuments. St. Paul's of course. The Houses of Parliament and the Law Courts. Several churches.

The business buildings are generally and almost uniformly drab and uninteresting. Bush House, built by the American, Irving T. Bush, is much the best-looking modern building in London. New York, Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland are infinitely more presentable as business centers than London.

But London has abundance of parks, parklets and parkways. Not all grouped in one area, as happens with so many of our American cities, but so well distributed that one is hardly ever out of sight of a spot of green or a glimpse of water.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"OH DEAR" OR "DARN," IF USED EMPHATICALLY, REALLY SWEAR WORDS

By Virginia Lee

Girls who cause their parents worry are generally users of swear words, it has been found by the ever ready statisticians.

No statistics are available on the amount of cussing among girls generally, and how many girls who do not worry their parents are addicted to the habit.

In my day girls did not swear. You simply did not belong to the best people if you said anything stronger than darn, and even that was considered pretty rough.

Cussing is a habit, just like saying please or thanks. You can put just as much feeling into saying "Oh dear" as you can into saying damn, so that effeminate expression is really swearing, if you want to use it that way.

Swearing is merely giving vent to the emotions of shock or anger. So that the statistics merely show that girls who are behavior problems to their parents are unrestrainedly emotional, lacking in self-control.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a boy of 16 and in love with a girl of 14. We used to go together a good bit, but she acts as though she has lost interest in me. How can I get her back? When I am with her I am shy and don't know what to talk about. What should a boy talk about to a girl?"

"B-VILLE."

Find out what she is interested in, clothes, books, music, school, friends, etc., and talk about them. Give her a good time when you are with her and she will be interested in you.

"Dear Virginia Lee: We are two wondering girls coming to you to find out whether this case is jealousy or advice. We were talking to a boy friend the other night and he told us not to go with two certain boys in our neighborhood.

"Should we pay attention to him? This boy has a steady. Do you think a boy who has a 'steady' and goes with about a dozen other girls when not with her, cares for her? One could have no better friend than this boy."

"BLUE EYES AND BROWN EYES."

As the boy has a girl friend of his own I should think the advice he gave you is likely to be disinterested and that you had better heed it, girls. If the boy's "steady" does not object to his going with others, it is all right.

He might love her, but have an agreement that both could go out with others.

LONSOE AND BLUE: No, I don't think the fact that the boys' father calls you flappers has anything to do with their failure to take you riding again. They probably are not as strongly attracted to you girls as you are to them. Don't act or talk like flappers and you won't be classed with them, except as men are quite apt to playfully call all pretty young girls by that name. You can't do anything about the matter except to wave in a friendly way when they pass and hope they'll ask to ride again soon.

BLONDE AND BRUNETTE: If your parents don't disapprove, you are old enough to have schoolboy friends. Don't wave at strange men. Complexion does not make or mar friendships. If a blonde girl and a brunette boy like the same things and have a good time together they will be good friends, otherwise not. Your parents should decide the matter of car riding with boy friends and don't kiss too often or too hard.

SPIDER: As you were in the wrong, at least in part, in your quarrel, don't let pride stand in your way. Call the boy friend up and say you're sorry. He tried to make up afterwards, according to your letter, and you wouldn't, so it's up to you to make the next move.

"My Dear Virginia Lee: I am in love with a young man three years my senior. I am 20. I finished school two years ago and have been going with this young man ever since. He confessed to love me one night and the next morning went away with another girl two years his senior.

"He returned two days later without the young lady and immediately after returning asked me for a date that night. I refused and said that I had another engagement. He left town next day and has not been heard of since. This is two months ago. Did I wrong him? Should I have given him a date after he treated me the way he did?"

Worried."

I think you treated him just as he deserved, Worried. His declaration of love evidently didn't mean a thing or he wouldn't have left with another girl. Try to put him out of your life, as he evidently is not worth of your affection.

With the Women of Today

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

Appointment as assistant director of education for the Indian bureau has been made of Miss Mary Stewart of Denver, Colo., and Washington, D. C. Her job will be to help fit the young Indians for their place in the world by practical education and by directing them into useful employment.

Miss Stewart has been a university teacher and dean of women, also an employment specialist. She was associated from 1921 to 1927 with the employment service of the department of labor.

She has also been active among business women, and is the author of the Business Women's Creed, which is used extensively among members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women.

WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 29

Temperatures will regain some of their losses of last week during the opening days of the week beginning September 29. With this increased warmth will come some cloudy weather, some wind and scattered rains.

These unsettled and stormy conditions will last over the first half of the week with some clearing about the middle part.

The last half of the week will probably be most fair, at least to the extent that no severe low pressure areas are expected. There may be some light scattered showers about Friday or Saturday, but will be unimportant in action or results.

Temperatures will be on the increase during the latter part of this week, although the chances are that the night temperatures will show a marked variation from the day-time readings.

October Outlook

This is the month the Indians called "The Moon of the Falling Leaf." It is at this time that on trees a thin corky layer is developed between the leaf stem and the twig and when this is perfected, the leaf drops from its own weight.

We are venturing the prediction that this fall will see the leaves unusually brilliant in coloring. This is not done by the frost, but by the tree itself when it undertakes to withdraw a valuable substance from the leaves into the trunk. The green coloring matter breaks up, displaying the yellow, and according to the acid or alkaline condition produces the vivid fall coloring of red, orange and purple.

The month as a whole in Michigan will be moderately warm and ideal for country trips between rains. We say this latter because it is probable there will be more than the usual amount of rainfall in the state during October. This month will not be particularly favorable for harvesting or plowing for any length of time.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. CHATTY GODDESS OF GAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1929, CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. INC., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

"Well, no, we don't, to tell the truth," she answered. "I don't know why we don't, for we have good hats and we don't overcharge. . . . But somehow we just don't seem to make expenses. . . . We're selling out. You probably saw the sign in the window."

"Yes, I did. And that's why—" began the woman. "But Chatty drowned her out. 'I tell Mrs. Mayberry that we're too near the big fashionable shops downtown,'" she went on, rummaging in the bottom of a drawer. "Most all the women in this neighborhood go downtown to shop. . . . Why, you're the very first person who's come in for a hat today!"

As usual, Chatty was letting her tongue run away with her—telling all of her own business, and all of poor Mrs. Mayberry's, too.

She turned around from the chest of drawers to find that the customer was backing away towards the street door. She had not even taken off her hat.

"Why, what's wrong? Don't you want a hat?" Chatty stared at her in amazement. The woman shook her head, and pushed the door open.

"No. . . . I tried to tell you I came in because of the sign in the window," she explained. "I've been looking around for a little hat shop I could afford to buy. I used to have one—I just happened to be passing, and saw that this one was for sale. But if you haven't any business—why, naturally—I wouldn't want it—would I?"

Jerkily, she finished what she had to say. The street door closed after her. She was gone.

"Well!" Chatty said aloud. "Well, of all things—" "I SHOULD SAY SO—" The sound of Mrs. Mayberry's voice close behind her made her jump. She swung around.

Mrs. Mayberry's eyes seemed to shoot sparks, and her soapy hands were on her lips. "Well, you're a fine kind of a girl!" she cried, and her fury was in her voice. "That woman probably would have bought me out if it hadn't been for you! Here she walks in two minutes after we put that card in the window, all pepped up to buy the store! Thinks it's the very thing she wants—and then you tell her that we aren't making any money—O-oh, I could shake you 'til your teeth rattled!"

Chatty opened her lips, but said nothing. "Yes, sir-ee! I could have sold her this store if it hadn't been for you, and that yard-long tongue of yours!" Mrs. Mayberry was all but crying now.

Suddenly she wheeled and dashed back into the workroom behind the shop. When she came flying out again she had Chatty's hat and her shabby little winter coat in her wet hands.

She threw them down upon the floor. "Put 'em on, and get out!" she stormed. "Get out of my sight. Go on! Get out!"

Too surprised to speak, or even think clearly, Chatty picked them up without a word, and did as she was told.

It was not until she was almost home that she realized that she had left her handbag behind her in the shop, and that Mrs. Mayberry had not paid her for her week's work. . . . And how noisy and hysterical Mrs. Mayberry had been! Not like her quiet self at all.

"And what did I do to make her so you're not very wet, are you? You came over in your car, of course—but take a look at poor ME! I had to walk home all the way from West River street, and there isn't a DRY thread on me! I'm a walking fountain, no less."

Chattering like a squirrel, she led the way down the short, narrow hall to the "Front Room."

Mrs. Chatterton had left her sewing machine and was standing in the middle of the room with a blue taffeta silk dress across her arms.

"It's all ready for you to try on, Kate," she said to Mrs. Van Nuys. "I think it's prettier now than when it was new."

They had been friends, these two women, for twenty years. Long before Chatty's father had died, and long before Mrs. Van Nuys' husband had made his money, they had been neighbors. And they never had lost track of each other, somehow, and wild?" Chatty asked herself, going up the stairs of the apartment where the Chatterton, who sewed for a living, tell that woman the simple truth about the store—and why should I keep the truth bottled up inside of me?"

"It's a habit that'll grow on you, Chatty—the talking habit," she warned her.

She felt as though Mrs. Mayberry had done her a great wrong.

Mrs. Chatterton was sewing in the room that the family called the Front Room.

The Front Room was used for many things. It was a sitting room, and sometimes a dining room. In it Mrs. Chatterton, who sewed for a living, greeted her customers, cut out and stitched their dresses together, and tried them on.

"Well, what's happened to my girl?" she asked, looking up in a startled way when Chatty came walking into the flat that wet Saturday noon.

Without stopping to take off her sodden clothes, Chatty dropped down on a chair beside her and told her the whole story.

"She said I talked too much all the time—she said my tongue was a yard long," she wound up her tale of woe. "And then she pushed me out into the rain—and never paid me a penny of my salary for this week!"

Mrs. Chatterton frowned. "Hmm," she said quietly. "She'll have to pay you, of course. And she needn't have been so rough with you. But I suppose she was upset and didn't know just what she was doing. And then, you do talk too much, Chatty. You always have—all your life."

Chatty's chin went up, and her jaw set in a hard little line. "Yes, you have!" her mother repeated, looking at her solemnly. "A year ago the people in the flat on the first floor moved out because you let them know that they paid $10 a month more rent than we do—and you knew you shouldn't have told it. It's a bad habit—and it's a habit that will grow on you unless you watch it, Chatty. The talking habit."

Chatty glared at her. "That's not true!" she declared hotly. "No one can tell me I talk too much! I don't! I'm not deaf and dumb, I admit—" "There's the door bell," her mother broke in quietly. "Do hush up and go and see who it is."

CHAPTER II

Still in her dripping clothes, Chatty flew to open the door of the little flat. Her mother's one and only fashionable customer stood just outside, filling the tiny hallway with the fresh, sweet, woody smell of the violets she wore pinned on her coat.

"It's Mrs. Van Nuys, mother!" Chatty called over her shoulder as she swung the door wide open for the visitor. "Come right in, Mrs. Van Nuys!" she went on in her quick, bright way. Chatty always talked as if she were short of breath and full of excitement.

"Weren't you the brave lady to come out on a dreadful day like this?" she ran on. "Isn't it the worst weather you ever saw in all your LIFE? But were still "Kate" and "Harriet" to each other.

Sometimes now Mrs. Chatterton made over or mended Mrs. Van Nuys' beautiful and expensive dresses. But most of the work she did was plain sewing for the people in the neighborhood of the Lipton street flat, and it brought her in very little money.

"You'd better peel off those wet clothes and hop into a hot bath before you catch your death of cold," she said anxiously to her daughter, while she waited for Mrs. Van Nuys to take off her violets and her coat and the French hand-made dress she wore under her coat.

As Chatty went out of the room she heard her telling her friend about the quarrel in Mrs. Mayberry's shop that morning.

"And would you believe it, Kate, that Mrs. Mayberry just pushed Chatty out of the store!" she heard her say, indignantly. "And the poor child walked all the way home in the rain—and that woman didn't even give her her salary for the week!"

"But I'll get it, never worry!" said Chatty, silently, shutting herself into the bedroom that she shared with her mother, and began to take off her wet, uncomfortable clothes.

She was sorry now that she had not given Mrs. Mayberry a good piece of her mind before she left. She was just as sorry as she could be that she had not given her the "bawling out" of her life. Above all, she was sorry that she had left without her eighteen dollars.

"But I'll go back and get it just as soon as I can get into some dry clothes," she promised herself, running steaming water into the bathtub and unwrapping a large new cake of soap from the shelf above it.

For, while eighteen dollars is no more than the price of a new hat or an entrancing pair of high-heeled slippers to some girls, it was the very staff of life to Chatty—and to her family.

They never could have kept going without it.

It paid the rent for the little flat. It paid the heating bills and the electric light. It paid for the telephone.

And it was the only sum of money that the Chattertons could always bank on. Sometimes Mrs. Chatterton made almost that much in a week, but there were other weeks when people did not pay their bills, and so she did not make so much.

Young Pud, who was 15, went to high school and worked afternoons in the West River Drug Store, where he was a "soda shooter." The six dollars a week that Ben Tomlinson, the owner, paid him for this work was just enough to buy young Pud the loud "collegiate" clothes that he loved to wear, and the cigarettes that his mother did not know he smoked.

Young Pud was quite the shiek! But Chatty knew nothing about clothes. Besides that, she knew none of the cunning little tricks that can turn a simply pretty girl into a real beauty. . . . She was as golden blond as a but-tercup, but she wore her shining hair long, and twisted it into a hard knot at the back of her little head.

She never had used face cream or face powder. Sometimes if her straight, sudden little nose was shiny, she would rub it with a tiny bit of talcum powder—but that was all. She never had polished her nails or tinted them a faint coral pink to make them look like little jewels. She had one pair of silk stockings at a time, wore them only to church on Sunday mornings. All the rest of the week she was perfectly contented with cotton ones.

No man ever yet had turned his head to take a second look at Chatty as she passed him by. For she was as small and demure-looking as a little Jenny Wren among all the silk stockinged, short skirted, painted beauties that fill the streets. . . . she did not hit the eye.

Dyeing this way makes faded Dresses NEW

DIAMOND DYES are the finest dyes you can buy. They are made to give you real service. They contain the very highest quality anilines that can be produced.

It's the quality of the anilines in Diamond Dyes that give such soft, bright, new-looking colors; that make them go on so evenly—without spotting or streaking; that enable them to keep their depth and brilliance through wear and washings.

Next time you have dyeing to do, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy and simple it is to use them. Then compare results. You will surely agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the highest quality dye, prepared for general use. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk and wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work.

When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

PUT ON YOUR LIME THIS FALL

It is too late to sow alfalfa and many have failed to get their seed in the ground. Sow your lime NOW and work it in and let the winter rain and snow mix it with the soil. Then you are ready to plant the alfalfa seed in June. TWO CARS JUST RECEIVED.

The late Jason Woodman of Paw Paw, than whom there was no better alfalfa grower, recommended that all alfalfa be planted in June as he said that if the ground was ready and clean, there was always at least one rain in June when planting could be done.

Why not try it?
