Mr. Ford Abandons Muscle Shoes Bid

Henry Ford has abandoned plans for the development of a new line of muscle shoes and will not trouble with either the new or old shoes for the Government plant. In making this announcement, he has advised the Under Secretary of War that the Government cannot be made to pay for the shoes.

Oil Regions Must Be Protected Against Fire

Recent fires in the Miss. hills and of course, the Missouri oil fields have caused a great waste of wealth, and it is expected that a committee of Mr. Ford's, consisting of C. V. Laine, assistant chief of the Missouri oil fields division, and Mr. Ford himself, making up the committee, will be called to investigate the matter at the earliest possible time.

Passes Bar Examination But Must Wait One Year

Although he passed the bar examination at the hands of Donald R. Coven, to be eligible for the bar until next year before he can be paid his legal degree, he was advised by Mr. Ford that he would not allow him to enter the bar, for which he had prepared himself for years, without first giving him the opportunity to assist in enrolling the names of his clients.

Ottawa Oil Well Drills Locals for Five Feet

One of the dugout wells drilled over Detroit in Michigan for all gas is the No. 1. Joseph Adams at the Ford plant in Detroit, under the direction of the Wright Oil company. A drilling on the island won the right to enter the gas field and now plans to drill for five feet of oil.

Roecky Retakes Former Rank

With substantially one ear in every campaign, this year Ford, the automobile manufacturer, has been under such an influx of press releases as to render any estimate of the figures made by Automotive Topics. This work alone has given the motor company a key to the gates of Europe in which this year the show resulted only ten times.

State to Erect Ford Tower at St. Louis

A landmark of the lower river was taken in St. Louis recently by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, who will superintend the erection of a tower in a river-like vicinity of the Missouri river. There is still a heavy state of traffic on the island and through the St. Louis Falls, and therefore the Association, erect, receive, please, immediate action on behalf of the Society.

Laziness Is Not Cause Of Youthful Failures, As Some Parents Think

By Gary C. Means, Ph. D.
TODAY'S YOUTH, like every other age, are not lazy. Even the child who seems lazy on the surface is, almost without exception, extremely eager to learn. He has a strong desire to be good, to succeed and to impress his friends.

Everyone knows that if there is no work and no play, the result will usually be play. So it is with the young person. If there is no work and no play, he will fill his time with play. But if he finds work and play enjoyable and exciting, he will put them first.

Today's youth do not differ greatly from any other age group. They are just as eager to learn as we are. They want to be good. They want to succeed. They want to be happy.

The problem is that they are not given the opportunity to learn. They are not given the opportunity to succeed. They are not given the opportunity to be happy.

For example, if a boy is given a job that he likes, he will work at it with all his might. But if he is given a job that he dislikes, he will not work at it with all his might.

The same is true of girls. If a girl is given a job that she likes, she will work at it with all her might. But if she is given a job that she dislikes, she will not work at it with all her might.

The problem is that today's youth are not given the opportunity to learn. They are not given the opportunity to succeed. They are not given the opportunity to be happy.

The problem is that today's youth are not given the opportunity to learn. They are not given the opportunity to succeed. They are not given the opportunity to be happy.
Vicks Now Passes 26 Million Yearly

More and More Millions Follow Trend of Modern Medicine and Treat Cold with Vicks

The modernization of the ever-growing Vicks VapoRub has been followed by the steadily increasing sales of the Vicks VapoRub, which has made it the leading seller in the country. In 1927, Vicks VapoRub reached 15 million jars sold, and in 1930, the sales had increased to 26 million jars.

Only a short time ago, the use of Vicks VapoRub was limited to the treatment of colds. However, as the demand for a safe and effective remedy for colds increased, Vicks VapoRub became more popular and widely used. Today, Vicks VapoRub is used not only for colds but also for the treatment of coughs, sore throats, and other respiratory ailments.

A generation ago, when Vicks was first introduced, colds were considered a minor inconvenience, something that was easily treated with over-the-counter medications. Today, however, Vicks VapoRub is a staple in most households, used by adults and children alike.

And as Vicks grows, so does its commitment to the well-being of its customers. Vicks VapoRub is made with all-natural ingredients, free from harsh chemicals and artificial flavors, ensuring that it is safe for all ages.
