Arvin Myers Gone

We deeply regret the passing of our friend, Arvin W. Myers. During an intimate acquaintance, in a business and social way, for nearly a quarter of a century, we have learned to love and respect him greatly.

Few indeed attain such a high degree of respect and fewer acquire and retain such a multitude of friends. Engaged in business for over half a century here, he left a train of good deeds that will keep for him fond memories in the hearts of all who knew him.

We rejoice in that he lived well to the end a wonderful life, and join with dear ones left behind in deepest sorrow that he will walk and talk with us no more.

School Notes

The primary department is enjoying a new program which includes a library period. At this time the children are at liberty to read from any book they wish. At a later time they are required to report what they have read. They also keep lists of the stories they read.

The last winners of the spelling contest were Junior Kelly in the third grade and Bobbie Howard in the fourth grade. We have noticed a marked improvement in spelling since our contest started. We believe there is nothing like a definite goal ahead to inspire the best work possible.

The new supplementary readers are greatly appreciated. One of the aims in reading of the third and fourth grades is to develop a love of good literature. Nothing will promote that like a number of good books at hand for use.

The fifth and sixth grades are divided into two groups the Blues and the Greens have been enthusiastically enjoying a Health Contest in which the victors are eagerly anticipating the great surprise in store for them and the Blues who were defeated are busily making preparations for the big event. The aim of the contest was for each pupil to drink three glasses of milk a day. Both groups held very close rivalry all through the contest, the Greens finishing ahead by a score of two. But the Blues are planning a come back. Watch out you Greens!

Next Tuesday we will have our regular meeting of the P. T. A. at the high school. Everyone is urged to attend. This organization cannot function without the parents.

A careful analysis of the magazines read by our school pupils has been made and the information thus gained will be used for the corrective teaching of reading. A very thorough study of the reading conditions in every grade will be made. Thus we will be able to improve the reading of the entire group. A very marked improvement is noticeable in many pupils at this early date.

Basket ball practice is continuing at a brisk pace with the prospect of a good team very fair. The girls are organized under a group of three captains. A faculty representative directs the play.

Don't miss the all school Thanksgiving program at 2:45 next Wednesday. Entirely produced by the children.

Monday afternoon our flag was at half mast to honor the memory of one of our foremost citizens, Arvin W. Myers.

Music in Our Schools

No one will ever deny that this finest of all the arts should find a place in the curriculum of the school. However, that it is as well represented as we have it in our school must be an element of surprise to many patrons of this district. Music is daily presented in the grades, where progress has been persistent and rapid. Under the conditions now prevalent it is as finely taught as we should expect in only the largest school systems. Vocal music is by no means a lost art in the school.

Once a week expert instruction is given on the violin, the finest of all instruments, to those who are interested in that instrument. These are given an opportunity to play in the high school orchestra and thus develop more rapidly.

The orchestra is divided into two groups. Those who are beginning to play are put in one group to which are added those who have had considerable experience but find time wanting at home for the necessary amount of practice. Thus they learn to improve their playing for the first orchestra. The latter is an organization that we may well be proud of. The director needs no introduction to the community. His instruction has long been of the highest quality. Better teaching in the fundamentals of orchestration is not found in any school in our county.

Witness the fact that children from out of our district come to us twice a week to receive this teaching.

Certainly this school district has ample and excellent instruction in this classical study. Encourage your children to seize the opportunity offered and thus cultivate a taste for the finest of all extra curricula subjects.

Arvin Wheelan Myers

Born, August 22, 1853 in Bloomington township, Van Buren county, Mich.

He was the sixth child and fifth son of Rev. W. H. H. and Betsy Herron Myers. Born in the old log house on the farm his early education was gotten in the old red schoolhouse called the Bell school. As a boy he was of a quiet, pleasant disposition, hence a general favorite with all. This followed him through life. His straightforward integrity in business gave him the confidence and trust of the public. He began his work in Gobles as a clerk in the store of Bulson & Myers, later becoming a partner with his brother, G. W. in the firm of Myers Brothers, which business he carried on for nearly 50 years.

He was married Oct. 23, 1875 to Miss Lucy Hoag. To them were born three children, Mrs. Lutie Myers Deyoe of North Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Florence Myers Baker of Springfield, Ill. and Clair Myers of Dallas, Texas.

For more than 20 years he was a faithful member of the First Methodist church of Gobles.

On Nov. 15 after a short illness of a few hours he passed to be with the loved ones on the other shore. He was 76 years of age, years filled with activity and good deeds. He was the third one of the seven brothers to go. We say "good bye" here, they will say "welcome" over there.

The funeral was held from the Community church, Rev. Williams officiating, Rev. Hayes assisting and the crowded church and mass of beautiful flowers were mute tributes from those who loved him, while the closing of the stores was but another expression of respect and honor from those associated with him in the business life. Following the Masonic service at the grave, his brother, Charles in well chosen words paid the final tribute of love from the family.

Lawns Need "Feeding" At this Time of Year

To many people the term "winter injury" brings vague pictures of plants becoming so cold that they are no longer able to live. This popular idea is not at all adequate, for there are many other factors than low temperatures that are responsible for the trouble commonly known as winter killing.

One of the most common and annoying forms of winter injury is that of the lawn. The percentage of winter killing in lawns is high. This fact has long been recognized by home owners and they have tried various methods of combating the trouble. In years past we let the lawn grass grow in the Fall, and we even placed manure or straw over the grass. Both practices are rapidly being abandoned, for neither accomplished the purpose and both made the lawn an unsightly place for a long period of the year.

It is now thought that winter injury to grass has two aspects. One regards the actual destruction of the cells of the grass roots on account of the withdrawal of water from the cells due to the formation of ice in the plant tissues. The other aspect is concerned with the heaving of the soil, with consequent partial up-rooting of the grass plant. Undoubtedly a combination of these two casual agents is responsible for most of the annual damage done to the lawns of the country.

Vigor or sturdiness of plant is recognized as the big factor in determining resistance to winter injury. A plant that has made a good growth throughout the growing season, and has established a strong root system has vastly increased chances of coming through a hard winter with minimum loss. This is due not only to the inherent vigor of the plant, but equally so to the fact that heaving due to freezing and thawing is negligible when the turf is heavy and the root system deep and extensive.

Adequate drainage, good physical condition of soil and systematic soaking of the lawn are reorganized features in good lawn management, but are in themselves inadequate. On most of our soils a feeding program is absolutely essential to sturdy grass growth. Complete plant food should be applied at intervals throughout the growing season. Spring feeding alone is not sufficient. The growth that the plant makes in that period following the hot spell of summer is very important from every angle and especially from the angle of minimizing winter damage.

Here Are "Don'ts" For Deer Hunters

Warnings, cautions, and don'ts for deer hunters going into the upper peninsula for this year's season will be displayed on big placards in the cabins of the three state ferries at the Straits of Mackinac. The placards have been prepared by the Department of Conservation and will be posted with the cooperation of the State Highway Department.

The placards list information as to what a deer hunter may do while he is in the woods; and what he may not do; what he should do if he becomes lost; and display slogans that it is hoped will help to reduce the annual list of fatalities.

"Your license does not permit you to: Use artificial light, use dogs in hunting; kill a doe; Kill a fawn; hunt a deer while it is in the water; hunt from your automobile; have venison in your possession more than 30 days after the close of the season, hunt on private property without owner's permission; have loaded gun in your car," one of the placards says.

"Don't neglect to: Tag your deer; wear your license button; unload your gun before you enter camp or an auto; carry a compass," says a second poster.

Advice to those who are lost is contained on a third card. It says: "If you get lost; don't get excited. You will probably be able to find a fire tower or its telephone line. Follow the wires. They will take you to town. If it is dark, build a fire and wait until morning. Don't tire yourself out walking in circles. Always carry a compass and matches."

"Be sure it has antlers before you shoot," and "some of you may not come back if some are careless," are among the slogans listed on the posters.

A large percentage of the deer hunters going to the upper peninsula enter by way of the state ferries.

6-Year-Old Tractor Has Plowed 4,000 Acres on 62 Farms

Plowing nearly 4,000 acres on 62 different farms during the past six years is the record of the tractor owned by Walter Steffy near Ann Arbor. Practically all the plowing was done by Mr. Steffy and the tractor has been under the hardest conditions. A two-bottom plow always has been used with this tractor.

Besides plowing, the tractor has been used for general farming and also aided in threshing.

Steffy says he operates the tractor today with the same degree of success he secured when he purchased it, and it has required only a few minor repairs, principally in lug equipment. It now will cover as much ground as a new tractor. Its performance has convinced many farmers in this locality of the reliability of tractors.

U. S. Buys 200,000 Acres in Alger

More than 200,000 acres of land in Alger county have been bought by the United States government for reforestation purposes. The price was given as $30,000. Reforestation work will start as soon as possible.

This is the biggest deal the government has ever made in the upper peninsula.

Considerable reforestation work will be carried on in the upper peninsula, Wisconsin and Minnesota for many years to come, according to the government's chief forester in this district.

The Angora goat not only provides mohair for the upholstery of the parlor furniture and other things, but in parts of the East, the Middle West, the Ozarks, and the Pacific Coast states it is utilized to clear brush from farm and pasture lands. On some range areas where brush is the main forage, stocking with Angora goats has brought better returns than were obtained with other livestock.

Self-Feeding Pigs Gain More in Weight Also Reduce Costs

In a three year test at U. S. D. A. experimental farms, it was found that self-feeding of sows and litters is not only by far the easiest way of handling hogs, but also saves feed.

Hand-fed sows and litters were fed all they would readily clean up twice a day. The self-fed lot had free access to the same ration at all times, the various feeds being placed in separate compartments of self-feeders.

The self-fed lots required 441 pounds of feed per 100 pounds of gain, while the hand-fed litters required 603 pounds. Self-fed pigs made greater daily gains from farrowing to weaning, and both sows and pigs appeared more thrifty. The sows and litters may be put on self-feeders as soon as the sow is on full feed after farrowing.

Get the Gophers

Pocket gophers, pests of alfalfa fields have life habits which tend to lull the farmer into allowing them more security than they desire. They seem to "play possum," according to A. E. Oman of the United States Department of Agriculture.

In the spring and summer when the farmer is in his fields cutting his crop, he finds few new evidences of the multiplication of pocket gophers in the form of new mounds of loose earth thrown up from the tunnels they dig. The great increase in the number of mounds comes in September and October. All during spring and summer the pocket gophers are rearing their young and working from the old tunnels, clipping and eating the tap roots and laterals of the alfalfa and causing scant nourishment or death to the plants.

The animals are out of sight but they are not really "playing possum." Each pair of the old pocket gophers is raising four or five youngsters which are intense individuals and in the fall will start out for themselves, dig their own burrows, and make the fields bumpy and difficult for the haymakers.

The practical procedure for ridding the fields of pocket gophers is to let them make a fair start with their new burrows in the fall, and then put out poisoned wheat in a systematic manner so that all may have their fill. In the autumn, new burrows can be easily located in the fields. This is the season when the pocket gophers lay in their stock of winter food.

Advise Buying Ewes During Fall Months

Recommendation that breeding ewes be bought in November is made by the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College because ewes can usually be obtained at a lower price during these months and the buyer also has a larger number of ewes from which to make his selection.

The purchase of ewes from breeders who live near the buyer is also advised. If the buyer sees the animals before they become his property, many misunderstandings can be avoided. The buyer can also examine the conditions under which the animals have been kept and can judge whether the flock is apt to be free from parasites.

Western ewes can often be purchased more cheaply than native stock. These animals are not native to Michigan and the buyer is unable to see them before he receives them on his farm.

Two three-year-old ewes are most desirable. They are proved breeders and their owner may expect less trouble at lambing time. The animal should be healthy and should carry a good udder. A firm dense fleece attached to a pink skin indicates good condition.

Good breed type and an absence of coarseness in body conformation are other points which should be noted before the ewe is bought.

Poultry

MINERAL AND PROTEIN REQUIREMENTS

Chickens have a comparatively high protein and mineral requirement as compared to other animals. In former times, chickens were fed on grains without any supplementary feeds. They were not expected to lay eggs during the winter months, so they could pick up enough minerals and protein by having a free range to lay some eggs in the spring. This met their requirements at that time, but it will not meet the requirements today as there are more chickens on less range, and more is expected of the chickens than was formerly the case.

Protein was first considered merely on a total protein basis. Later, it was found that in feeding poultry, better results were secured from feeding some type of animal protein. For a good many years, all formulas for laying mash contained meat scraps or tankage as the principal source of protein. Later experiments showed that vegetable protein could be used, at least to some extent, if sufficient minerals were supplied with them. Today the most effective rations are balanced both from a mineral and a protein standpoint. This enables the modern hen to lay sufficient eggs during the winter so that winter eggs are a factor in making the flock pay.

Calcium, phosphorus, chlorine and sodium are the four minerals that are of chief importance in feeding poultry. The last two mentioned combine to make common salt, so they may be furnished in that manner. Calcium may be furnished in oyster shell, high grade limestone and to some extent in different bone products. Phosphorus is chiefly supplied through the use of ground bone products.

The Ohio station is now recommending an open formula for minerals to balance up the mash. They recommend a mixture of sixty parts of oyster shell or limestone containing at least 95 per cent calcium carbonate, and twenty parts of common salt. This mineral mixture is mixed with the mash at the rate of two to four pounds to 100 pounds of mash.

A good many people mix the protein and mineral requirements together in making the mash. This is partly on account of the use of bone and meat meal from packing houses, which partly meets both the protein and mineral requirements. When milk products are used to supply the protein, or a portion of it, there can also be considerable reduction in the amount of mineral fed on account of the large amount of minerals in milk.

On the basis of present experiments, it would seem best to supply protein from both milk and animal products, at the same time supplying sufficient of the minerals enumerated so that the protein in the grain feeds would be effective. Where skim-milk is available, the amount of additional protein in the ration can be very materially reduced. When liquid skim-milk or buttermilk is not available, some of the dried or semi-solid products should be used on account of its beneficial results in securing good production.

UPSTATE MAN RIDES HEN COOPS OF LICE

Routing poultry lice is the unique venture upon which G. A. Turner of Custer township has embarked.

Just so long as men must make a livelihood just so long will vocations be found. In two months time Turner has cleaned and sprayed with a disinfectant made from a recipe of his own, more than 700 poultry houses in Oceana, Mason and Wexford counties.

The farmer needs only to turn his poultry house over to Turner and in a few hours it is spick and span, ready for its occupants again.

DO NOT CROWD POULTRY HOUSE

"Crowded conditions in the poultry house is the main cause for many poultry troubles," according to Prof. H. D. Munroe, formerly of the poultry extension department of Pennsylvania State college. "Prolapse of the oviduct or pick outs, cold and roup and low feed consumption can often be traced to crowded houses," he says.

"A flock of pullets raised on range and then housed under crowded conditions are liable to get into trouble. These birds are used to being busy. If crowded into a house with nothing to do they often start feather picking. Feather picking soon develops into cannibalism. Prolapse of the oviduct, or pick outs, is the usual result.

"Later in the fall when the windows and doors are closed, crowded conditions cause dampness and this condition causes roup and colds. As the birds get to laying they eat more mash and drink more water.

"Crowded poultry houses and not enough hopper space often go together. If there are too many hens in the houses many of the weaker birds do not get enough to eat for heavy production. These birds will lay for a while but will lose body weight and finally molt."

Water heaters for cold weather, feed hoppers, and dependable time switches or regulating the electric lights are items which are especially important in increasing egg production.

"Auntie, will you please wash my face?"

"Why, Bobbie, I thought you could do that for yourself."

"Well, I can, but I would get my hands wet, and they don't need it."

MICHIGAN MAY BE MARBLE PRODUCER

It is quite possible Michigan will enter the ranks of marble producing states in the near future, according to the department of conservation.

A deposit of serpentine or verde antique marble is being developed about six miles northwest of Ishpeming, Marquette county. This deposit has been known for a long time, but it is only recently work has been done here to determine the extent and quantity of this marble.

Comparative specimens show this marble is equal or superior to much of this type of stone now on the market. The marble takes an excellent polish and shows a color that is rich and distinctive. The quarry near Ishpeming has stone in it that shows all the various shades of green and portions of the deposit contain the gray to black varieties. The stone is shot through with veins of calcite, which contrast beautifully with the darker serpentine and gives a distinctive quality to the stone when polished.

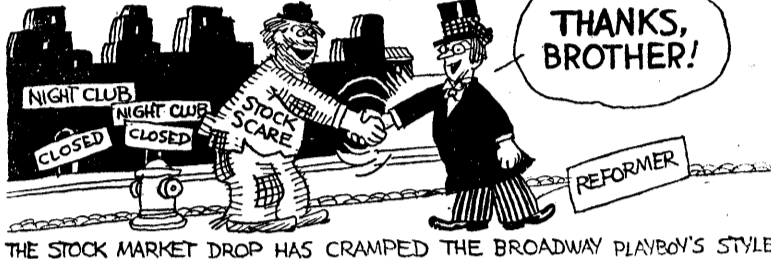

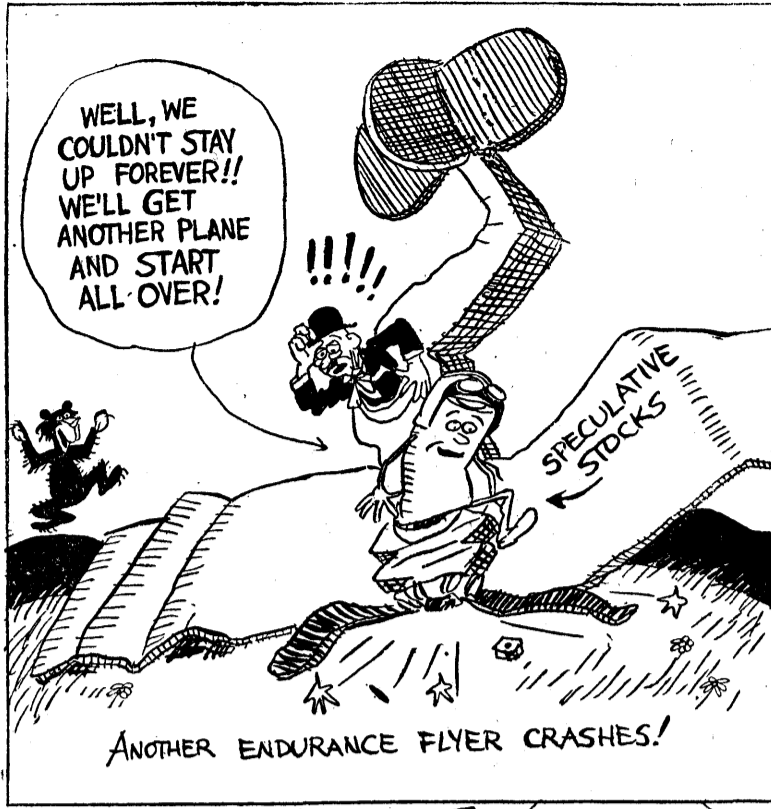

Verde antique marble is used for the interior decorating and in other places where ornamental stone is placed. Some varieties are used for outside trimming.

The smaller pieces of marble that are made in the process of quarrying are ground up and used for terrazzo and stucco. The very fine particles are used as roofing granules in the manufacture of colored shingles.

Want Union Depot

Co-operation of the Van Sweringen interests, owners of the Pere Marquette, in establishment of a new Union station in Lansing, will be sought by a committee of the Lansing Chamber of Commerce Civic Bureau, it was decided recently. The committee is made up of J. W. Knapp, capitalist; Smith G. Young, capitalist; Col. Fred Shubel, A. W. Handy and C. E. Bement, vice-president of the Novo Engine company.

Maybe Stocks Did Crash, But---

Artist Bob Day sees and hears some sad things in New York after the smoke of stock crash clears away.

Those sad, sad tales concerning the aftermath of the stock market crash merely are sad, sad tales to one lone observer, going around to get bottom prices.

- Stock market prices might have hit bottom, but—
- Try to get a cheap apartment;
- Try to find good materials in shops reduced;
- Try to buy a cheaper meal;
- Try to purchase real estate at less.

You'll be smiled at! Even stock prices didn't stay down.

Santa Claus is weeping, sure thing, because "sugar daaddies" were hard hit—but that applies only to Fifth avenue. Then, again, the higher priced Broadway "laddies" were hard hit—but that applies only to Fifth being able to attend one anyway.

If any necessity is cheaper in New York, a week of search has failed to disclose it.

General Motors Increases Its Working Capital to More Than $25,000,000

General Motors Corporation has added $25,302,308 to working capital during the period December 31, 1928, to September 30, 1929, according to the corporation's preliminary earnings report for the third quarter of this year. Net working capital now stands at $321,090,612, as against $295,788,304 at the end of last year. Cash, United States government and other securities totaled $187,653,073 as of September 30.

Net earnings, including equities in the undivided profits of subsidiary and affiliated companies not consolidated, for the nine months ended September 30, amounted to $222,848,335. This compares with $240,534,613 for the corresponding period a year ago. After deducting dividends on preferred and debenture stock amounting to $7,056,200 there remains $215,792,135, being the amount earned on the common shares outstanding. This is equivalent to $4.96 per share on the common stock, as compared with $5.37 per share for the first nine months of 1928 calculated on a comparable basis.

Earnings for the third quarter, including equities, totaled $70,988,025, as compared with $79,266,639 for the third quarter of last year. After deducting dividends on preferred and debenture stock amounting to $2,352,364, there remains $68,635,661 applicable to the common stock. This is equivalent to $1.58 per share on the common stock, as compared with $1.77 per share for the corresponding quarter of 1928 calculated on a comparable basis.

TO ASK $500,000 CUTTER FOR LAKES

Construction of a $500,000 coast guard cutter to be used for marine rescue work on Lake Michigan is to be asked in a bill to be presented congress by Representative James C. McLaughlin, according to a letter received by John C. Beukema, secretary of the Muskegon Chamber of Commerce.

Approval of the commandant of the coast guard has been obtained, McLaughlin said. He conferred with Rear Admiral F. C. Billard before drafting the measure.

A similar bill has been drawn up asking a cutter to be stationed at St. Marys river for use on Lakes Superior and Huron.

Oakland County Plans Big League

The sportsmen of Oakland county are hoping for a new era in conservation following the recent organization of the Oakland County Sportsmen's league.

The league seeks a membership of 2,000 extending into every section of the county. The membership fee is $1 and members are required to pledge themselves to obey all game and fish laws.

In addition to the organization of the league a county conservation commission recently was created, consisting of three members of the board of supervisors and three private citizens.

Robert McClure of Royal Oak, a widely known conservationist, has been named county game warden and will have as his assistants 25 special nonsalaried wardens, carefully chosen from the membership of the county league and approved by the county conservation commission.

Saginaw-Bay City Joined

Two Saginaw valley cities, Saginaw and Bay City, were brought into closer union on October 27, when the new river road between the two communities was opened officially before 10,000 spectators. Eight miles of automobiles, two abreast and reaching from the Bay City limits to the Saginaw limits, formed a two-way procession which met at the midway point. When the program was concluded, the Saginaw cars proceeded to Bay City, and the Bay City cars to Saginaw. The river road cuts four miles from the previous distance between the two cities, making it 12 instead of 16 miles from business center to business center.

STATE TO BUILD NEW HOSPITALS FOR CONVICTS

Establishment of a central tuberculosis hospital for all prisons in the state of Michigan and construction of several other buildings at the new Michigan state prison, north of Jackson, were authorized by the state prison commission recently at a meeting held in the new prison.

Dr. Guy L. Kiefer, state health commissioner, gave his unqualified approval to the building of a tuberculosis hospital inside the enclosure of the prison, and the board decided on a 250-bed sanatorium. This was on the basis that 2.6 per cent of the prison's population is tubercular. The director of construction, Charles D. Frazier, was ordered to prepare plans immediately and to submit them to Warden Harry H. Jackson and Dr. Kiefer for their approval.

State's Asphalt Plant Moves from Elk Rapids

The state highway department's asphalt plant has completed its program at Elk Rapids and has been shipped to Grayling. All the employees also moved.

Sees New Demand for Convertible Auto Bodies

L. Clayton Hill, vice-president of Dietrich, Inc., custom auto body builders, in a recent address before the Detroit section of the Society of Automotive Engineers, declared that the prevalent popularity of the convertible type of body is due to the newly awakened appreciation of the public to the physical benefit of sunshine on the human body.

Mr. Hill declared the movement is so pronounced that he believes the day will come when the convertible car, designed for open or closed riding, might be produced as a leading unit on a mass production basis in the low priced car field.

The craze for out of doors, the passion for the last full measure of ultraviolet rays, said Mr. Hill, are reflected in the demands of motorists for vehicles which removed them from the shut-in class and thus gain more of the benefits of exposure to air and the invisible health-giving rays of the sun.

"Recognition must be given to the fact that there are heavily populated areas in our own country where weather permits the folding of tops for a large part of the time throughout the year," said Mr. Hill.

Thompson Building New $70,000 Pontiac Hangar

Thompson Aeronautical corporation, operating airmail lines in Michigan and Ohio, is constructing here a most improved modern type brick and steel hangar, valued at $70,000, which, when completed, will be the most modern in the state. Facilities are provided for building an entire airplane, a space of 14,000 square feet for housing planes, class rooms for training pilots, a motor overhauling and rebuilding department, an engine test stand, a fuselage covering department, a dope room and sales-display room, locker room for pilots and offices for the manager and accounting department.

Use Stainless Steel

Stainless steel will be used more extensively by automobile manufacturers on new models soon to come out, according to reports in the steel market. Ford, Cadillac, Pierce-Arrow and other auto makers are using this new type of steel.

There are reports in the Chicago steel market that Central Alloy Steel Corporation, which recently took over the Interstate Iron and Steel Company of Chicago will make this new grade of steel. It is also reported that the Illinois Steel company is looking into it and that the International Rustless Iron Corporation will produce it.

Urge Game Refuge In Greenville Park

Preliminary steps were taken by the Greenville council recently to establish a city park and game preserve. Don Irish, conservation officer, said the state department would furnish without cost, three deer to the city if the city would establish a park and provide for their care. The members of the council were in favor of the plan, but left arrangements to the park committee.

BUSSES TAKE 8,000,000 PASSENGERS DAILY

Buses traveling over American highways carry 8,000,000 passengers a day and these passengers pay $300,000,000 a year for transportation. Common carrier bus lines now operate regularly over 290,000 miles of bus routes, as compared with 250,000 miles of steam railroads and 45,000 miles of electric railways.

These highlights were brought out by William C. Blake, United States Rubber company executive, in addressing a recent convention at Detroit. Mr. Blake pointed out that the bus industry still is less than eight years old and that it is the country's fastest growing transportation system.

"As near as we can estimate there are now approximately 90,000 busses operating in the United States," Mr. Blake said. "These are divided into two classifications: Common carriers, which operate over a regular route on schedule at a regular rate of fare, and private carriers, such as busses in school, sight-seeing and hotel service."

"Early this year there were approximately 6,600 bus companies operating 46,500 common carrier busses in the United States. Of this number 73 per cent were operated by independent companies, 24 per cent by electric railways and 3 per cent by steam railroads."

Lake Michigan Damages Pentwater State Park

Lake Michigan has caused considerable damage at the State park at Pentwater. The water washed way over the circle drive, filling the pavement with sand and logs and also has undermined the bath house at the west end. The road was washed out up to the pavement, making a very desolate looking frontage.

Pentwater lake is very high, having washed over the pavement at two points. The Long Bridge road, across the lake was washed out early in the season, but was repaired, but high water has again made it necessary to close it to the public. The flats east of the Long bridge are one large body of water.

May Revive Discontinued Montcalm Co. Free Fair

A decision to discontinue the Montcalm county free fair, announced by the officers and directors recently, may be reversed.

Since it was announced that the fair was $600 in arrears and would be discontinued, numerous persons have asked the directors to reconsider, and they have called for a meeting of all interested persons.

Aids Jackson Hospital

Another gift of $50,000 to make a $95,000 40-room addition to the Foote hospital, Jackson, has been announced by Captain William Sparks, head of the Sparks-Withington company, Jackson manufacturers of radios and signal horns. The additional $50,000 makes a total of $100,000 given by Captain Sparks for the hospital expansion.

THE HISTORY OF THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving day is the oldest of American national festivities. Independence day, though coeval with and commemorative of our national natal day, boasts only a respectable antiquity of a century and a half, but another century and a half must be added to carry us backward to the historical origin of the day that we have nationally dedicated to prayer and thanksgiving—to the days of bluff Governor Bradford and to the first struggling colony of heroic pilgrims. It was in this cradle of our commonwealth that the observance of a day of thanks was first nurtured on our soil, though its inspiration was brought from lands across the seas and probably threaded human history back to the plains of Palestine when the psalmists of Israel praised the Lord in song for the bounties of earth.

Benjamin Franklin tells us that, in a time of great despondency among the first settlers of New England, it was proposed in one of their public meetings to proclaim a fast. An aged farmer arose and spoke of their provoking Heaven with their compliments and of the many mercies they had already received and of the many causes they had for thanksgiving. He then made motion that instead of appointing a day of fasting, they should appoint a day of thanksgiving. To this the assembly agreed.

The first Thanksgiving day was kept amid circumstances most unpropitious and with gaunt famine hovering over the rude and cheerless dwellings of that little colony. The summer of 1621, following the landing at Plymouth, yielded but a scanty harvest and unless supplies came from Europe the sturdy Colonists foresaw that they would be reduced to the point of starvation. Yet, amid such surroundings as these, we learn from the old chronicles that Governor Bradford, "the harvest being gotten in, sent four men out on fowling, so that we might, after a more special manner rejoice together after we had gathered the fruits of our labors." And thus, while sickness lurked and death assailed

And foes beset on every hand, the first governor of New England instituted the American Harvest Home and celebrated the first New England Thanksgiving day.

The old Colonial records also tell of the appointment of Thanksgiving days for various causes, in the Massachusetts Bay colony, in the years 1633, 1634, 1637, 1638 and 1639. In Plymouth colony similar publicly declared observances took place in 1651, 1658, and 1680, when the tenor of the proclamation seems to indicate that it had then become a settled yearly custom.

The Massachusetts Bay colony was the first to appoint an annual Thanksgiving day by the proclamation of the English governor. During the Revolution, Thanksgiving day became a national American institution, being annually recommended by Congress, but after the general thanksgiving for peace, in 1784, there was no national appointment until 1789, when Washington, by request of Congress, recommended a day of thanksgiving for the adoption of the Constitution. Washington issued a second proclamation of thanksgiving in 1795, on account of the suppression of insurrection. President Madison, by request of Congress, recommended a thanksgiving for peace in 1815, at the conclusion of the War of 1812. But the official recommendation of a day for the giving of thanks was mainly confined to New England, until 1817, after which date it was regularly appointed also by the governor of New York.

The Dutch governors of the New Netherlands had proclaimed thanksgiving days in 1644, 1645, 1655 and 1664 and in 1755 and 1760 a day was similarly designated by the English governor of New York.

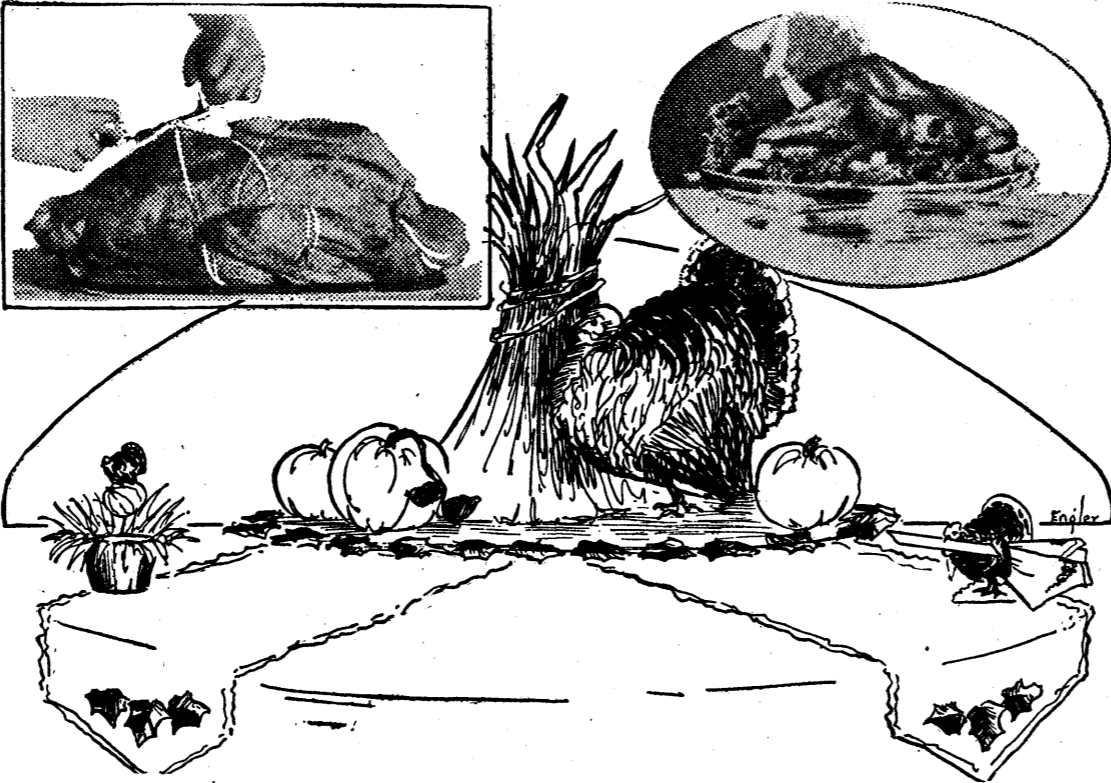

During the Civil war, in 1863 and 1864, President Lincoln issued proclamations recommending a national thanksgiving and since then a proclamation has been issued annually by the President of the United States as well as by the governors of the several states and the mayors of American cities.

Custom has fixed the time for Thanksgiving day as the last Thursday in November, but up to 1864 there was no uniformity as to the date of the observance and Presidents and governors followed no fixed rules in settling a day apart, each state deciding its own Thanksgiving day. Thanksgiving day was long in settling down to its present fixity of day and season. It is on record that one prudent municipality of the old time once postponed the celebration of the day for a week, "in order to get molasses with which to sweeten the pumpkin pies."

Mr. Turkey Gobbler rules over the Thanksgiving feast. Above he is pictured both as a decoration for the table and as the piece de resistance of the feast. The corn husk centerpiece is made from a cone of cardboard and strips of light amber crepe paper pasted to it to make the stalks. The shock is placed on a circular base of cardboard which is covered with light brown crushed crepe paper. A pumpkin vine and cotton stuffed pumpkins are cut from orange and green paper and turkey cutouts held upright by wire are placed on either side of the shock. This menu was prepared for four persons. The chocolate malted milk may be taken by the person who has difficulty drinking the milk which all adults should have in their daily menu.

Today's Recipes

Vegetable Salad—One package lemon gelatin dissolved in two cups hot water, one bunch celery, diced, one head lettuce, one small tomato, cut fine, two carrots, diced. When gelatin starts to congeal, add vegetables and pinch of salt. Mold and serve in slices on bed of shredded lettuce. Top with mayonnaise and sprinkle with paprika.

Chocolate Malted Milk—Two teaspoons chocolate malted powder, few drops vanilla, one-half teaspoon sugar, two cups milk. Shake all ingredients in a shaker for five minutes. Serve cold.

Steamed Molasses Fruit Pudding—Four tablespoons butter, one-third cup sugar, two eggs beaten whole, one-half cup dark molasses, one-half cup milk, one-fourth cup candied pineapple and cherries, cut fine, one and one-half cups pastry flour, one-half teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup nut meats, chopped. Dates or raisins may be substituted for the fruit and nuts. Cream butter and sugar thoroughly. Add beaten eggs and molasses. Sift dry materials and add alternately with milk. Beat well, add nuts and fruit, floured, and pour into oiled molds. Steam an hour and a quarter and serve with orange sauce. This makes two puddings of four servings each.

Orange Sauce—One cup sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch, juice and rind of one medium orange, one and one-half cups boiling water, pinch of salt, two tablespoons butter. Mix dry materials and add boiling water gradually, stirring all the time. Cook until mixture looks transparent, then remove from fire and add grated rind of orange and butter, then the juice of the orange. Serve on steamed pudding.

Inexpensive Hat Box
Two yards of cretonne, a tube of library paste and an oval pasteboard box are all that is necessary to make an attractive hat box. Almost any men's hat shop will give you a box—their hats come packed about a dozen to the box and after unpacking the hats they usually throw the boxes away. The paste should be applied to the box and then immediately covered by the cretonne. To cover the lid an oval piece of cretonne slightly larger than the lid, is used. The edges are folded over and covered by a strip of cretonne.

Hints for Mothers

When giving a small baby cod liver oil from a spoon, try holding a quarter of a paper napkin under her chin. This will prevent the ugly yellow stains from soiling her clothing. The napkins may be purchased very cheaply and are well worth the cost.

Two New Planes for State Air Mail Lines

The Thompson Aeronautical corporation has ordered two new Pitcairn super mailwings for use on air mail lines in Michigan, it has been announced by Richard T. "Tex" Marshall, vice president and general manager.

One of the planes will be flown on the night run between Chicago and Kalamazoo by pilot C. P. Oleson, Mr. Marshall stated, and the other will be flown by Pilot Patterson and stationed at Pontiac at TAC's new hangar.

Delivery was accepted on Oleson's ship late last month and Patterson will take delivery of his plane at the Pitcairn factory early in November.

Poems That Live

LOVE IN THE WINDS

When I am standing on a mountain crest,
Or hold the tiller in the dashing spray,
My love of you leaps foaming in my breast,
Shouts with the winds and sweeps to their foray;
My heart bounds with the horses of the sea,
And plunges in the wild ride of the night,
Flaunts in the teeth of tempest the large glee
That rides out Fate and welcomes gods to fight.
Ho, love, I laugh aloud for love of you,
Glad that our love is fellow to rough weather,
No fretful orchid hothoused from the dew,
But hale and hearty as the highland feather,
Rejoicing in the wind that sings and thrills,
Comrade of the ocean, playmate of the hills.
—Richard Hovey (1864-1900)

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

ACTIVITIES PLUS DUTIES HARM CHILD

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
"Orchestra practice Monday after school, music lesson Tuesday evening, dramatic club on Wednesday, a party up at Peggy's house on Friday night, and I haven't seen a movie for a week," said Cynthia at the breakfast table. Besides, she was supposed to practice at her music one whole hour a day.

A good many school children, particularly in the junior and senior high school, are loaded up too heavily outside their studies. Right in the school many a child is engaged in far too many things. There are the student council, pupil-monitors and helpers who spend extra hours and hours each week. Such training may be very valuable but it often comes in addition to a load already all too heavy for the average pupil to carry comfortably.

Here and there is a good school principal who sees it that no child is weighted down with numerous responsibilities, and that no child is allowed to become identified with an unreasonable number of activities outside his regular school week. Nevertheless, relatively new principals and teachers have been so concerned about the health and general welfare of the over-energetic pupil.

Often, too, the student, barely able to get along with his school work, is burdened with such extra duties. There are more tragedies than most of us have ever dreamed of growing out of foolish eagerness of parents who expect their children to do the impossible.

Occasionally children who measure up very well to responsibility are slow in studies. Some such students are ever ready to engage in club activities and other things not immediately related to their school subjects. So also many a child is hindered by home duties and extra work like instrumental music, dancing lessons, or elocution lessons. The same pupil who freely takes in extra responsibilities at school may readily add them to his home program. The first thing I want to know when a parent brings a child to me who is not keeping up in school is, "What does this child do besides his regular school studies?" How frequent such children have all sorts of extra work and supervised diversions! Many a behavior problem also has like sources.

Of course, the native intelligence of the child and his habits of study should be ascertained. But no matter how bright or dull he may be, how effective or how regular his study habits, if he is weighted down by too many things his chances for success in school and for reasonable happiness are very slight.

We ought to be concerned about our children's program at home and at school, and to do our utmost to protect their health and allow them to grow up free from nervous strain.

The World and All

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

One of my very good friends who was wiped out early in the stock market crash took his third successive beating stoically, and with a smile.

He has a small business, which he operates on borrowed money. Early this year he was caught with all his spare cash invested in good stocks that slumped and squeezed his margin account out. He nearly went crazy.

On the advice of a customer who had the inside, he borrowed money from a relative and bought again, on a margin. Another drop, and he was wiped out. He went three days without shaving, grew pale and thin, and tried drink as a palliative.

Finally, his banker named a stock that was sure. My friend consulted a good customer, who was heavily loaded with this same stock. The friend said, "I have it from the vice president of the company that this stock is cheap. It will make back all your losses before Christmas if you buy now."

He borrowed more money, and bought the stock at 53. Last I heard of it, the stock was down to 26, and my friend was once more wiped out. This time he smiled.

"I can't take it seriously," he said. "Somebody is kidding me. If I believed it to be a real game, I'd jump into the river, but I'm sure my senses deceive me. The relative I borrowed the money of was speculating on this own account, and he had lost two hundred thousand, including his last nickle."

Every victim of the crash whom I've seen refuse to strike a tragic attitude, and I know several who have lost all their savings. One friend said to me: "I was reciting my troubles to a friend of mine. He is a man of 75 and in bad health. I told him how I had my stock on a margin, and had lost $1,500; enough to ruin me. He said nothing consolatory. Later I learned that he had lost more than a million dollars in one day during the scramble for margin money, and I was ashamed for having bothered him with my troubles."

Most of the little speculators whom I know bought their stocks outright with their savings. While many of them count paper losses into the hundreds of thousands, they all believe that stock in a good American industry is still one of the best investments anybody can have, and they aren't worried.

As a matter of fact, American industry was never so good an investment as it is today. This is the country that supplies the world with the things the world has to have, and a small investment in any sound American manufacturing concern is one of the most valuable investments any one of us can leave to our children.

With the Women of Today

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

At a recent convention in New York Mrs. Thomas G. Winter of Pasadena, Cal., was made emissary of the club women of the United States, represented by the National Federation of Women's Clubs, to the film Angles to achieve mutual picture industry.

Mrs. Winter is a former president of the National Federation. She is the author of several books, and a contributing editor of Ladies' Home Journal. She was for many years a prominent resident of Minneapolis.

Visiting in U. S.

Lady Egerton, director of a Paris couture house, recently arrived in the United States for her first visit in her professional capacity. She expects to remain until the first of the new year visiting Boston, Washington and Buffalo, in addition to spending considerable time in New York.

Lady Egerton is the Princess Olga Lohanoff de Rostoff, and the widow of the Right Honorable Sir Edwin Egerton, late British ambassador to Rome. She has been prominent in the organization of lace and embroidery centers, as well as in relief work among women in Greece, Italy and England.

During the World war she worked under the auspices of the American Relief for Belgium, during which time, she explains, she "had the privilege of Genesee county board of supervisors has approved plans for a new county jail building costing approximately $400,000. The building will be erected at Flint. Frederick D.

Madison, Royal Oak architect, who designed the building, states that there will be no less than seven floors, six of which will be entirely above the ground surface.

At her personal request Miss Elizabeth Morrow, daughter of the American ambassador to Mexico, and sister-in-law of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, has been assigned to two public schools to teach English. This exclusive photo shows her pupils receiving her on the first day of school. Twenty girls and 20 boys, chosen for their interest in learning, are Miss Morrow's pupils.

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 24

The mean temperature in most parts of Michigan at the very beginning of the week of November 24th will range close to 36 degrees above zero.

We are of the opinion there will be a combination of rain and snow storms during the first part of this week and in some sections this may amount to sleet storms.

By Monday or Tuesday we look for a rather extensive and high barometric pressure to come out of the Northwest and engulf the state of Michigan.

Close to Thursday there will be a slight moderation in temperature with a resultant clouding up.

CHAPTER IX

"I must stop him!" Chatty was thinking, wildly, desperately, as she watched Jim Bowen make his way across the crowded room to Billie.

"How would she ever hold her head up among them all again, after they knew that her brother worked for a bootlegger?"

"If they phone for that alcohol, it'll be Pud who will bring it," she thought, sick now, with shame and fear.

Of course, she could get up and leave. She said she had a sudden headache, and go back across the hall to her own apartment.

Close to Thursday there will be a slight moderation in temperature with a resultant clouding up.

Out of breath, and starry-eyed from her run in the wind, she flung open the door of the vestibule and rushed straight into the arms of Dave Jordan!

"Where have you been? Billie just sent me out to look after you! And what's this?"

"That's the alcohol," answered Chatty, without a quiver. "I saw the man bringing it up the street and I thought maybe I'd better run down and get it from him."

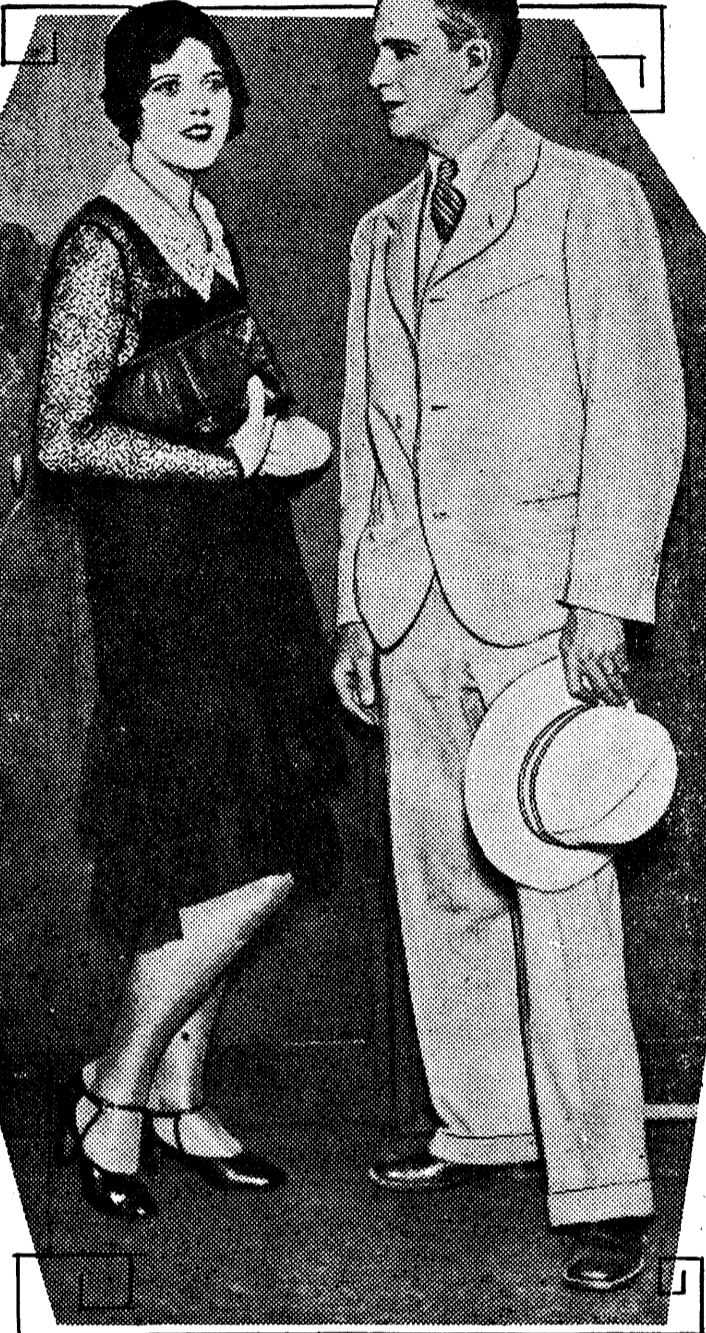

He took the bottles from her, and they started up the stairs. The door of the Langenau's apartment stood open, and the sound of music and

He looked straight at her, and he was very serious. "You needn't be ashamed," she heard him say, and his voice seemed to come from a long way off.

"You needn't be ashamed at all," he said. "I suppose it's none of my business, but I'm glad you haven't had a lot 'dates' and run around with a lot of men."

He had her other hand now, and his face was very close to hers. "I'm going to kiss you," he said huskily, and suddenly she was crushed against him.

This is the most wonderful thing laughter and high voices came down to them.

Chatty laughed. "Doesn't it sound lovely?" she asked, turning her face up to Jordan's face.

"Well, let yourself in and pay yourself $2 out of my purse," she told him. "It's in my bottom dresser drawer, under a pile of stockings."

"Where do you get that bunch of baloney?" asked Pud, using the slang that he seemed to think marked him a man of the world.

"Did she call up just now?" "Sure," Pud nodded sulkily. "Does she know you're my brother?"

"Not from me," answered the boy. "What do you think I do—go around giving folks lemons off my family tree?"

"I've never gone to a movie, even with a man!" She laughed at the surprised look on his face as she went on. "I've never had a 'date' with a man in my whole life!"

"I ought to be ashamed," she said again. "And I am." She turned away from him and started up the steps.

But Dave Jordan stopped her. He caught her by one hand and turned her around so that she faced him. She was a step above him, and her eyes were on a level with his eyes.

that can ever happen to me," Chatty thought. "If there's any heaven on earth for me—this is it!"

The rest of the evening was hazy and unreal—like a dream or a film unrolling on a silver screen in a "movie" theater.

It was hard to believe that she actually was in Billie's familiar little flat, and that she and Dave Jordan were helping to make the gin and orange juice drinks that Billie had not wanted to serve.

Winnie Talcott brought one of them up to her, and Jordan afterwards, and insisted that they share it.

"Here, you two, sitting on this davenport like a couple love birds!" she hailed them. "Split this stuff between you—it gives the teeth a pearly whiteness and the cheeks a rosy hue!"

But Chatty would have none of it. She had her faults, she said, but drinking was not one of them.

"You're too good to be true!" Dave Jordan told her, solemnly. "I knew there must be a girl somewhere or other like you—but I've given up all hope of ever finding her."

Chatty trod on silver-lined clouds all that evening, and when it was over, she lay awake for hours, too happy to even try to go to sleep.

At noon the next day he came up to her, and stood leaning against the files, watching her for a second or two.

For a second or two she pretended not to see him. Then she looked up and laughed. "He's going to take me to lunch," she thought, excitedly.

He had his hat in one hand, and in the other dangled his necktie. "Tie this thing for me, will you?" he asked. "I'm a ten-thumbed dumb bell."

And while she was doing it, he bent his head down and, hidden behind the tall filing cabinet, he held her close and kissed her.

Jordan and Agnes Herford. They were deep in talk.

"Lost to the world," thought Chatty, and bitterness rolled over her like a flood of icy water.

Difficult Phase of Dahlia Culture Is in Successful Storage

The one difficult phase of dahlia culture is successful storage of the dormant roots. As soon as the tops are killed, lift the plants and cut the tops off 8 to 12 inches above the crown.

If the cellar is too warm or too dry, as is apt to be the case, store the roots in barrels filled with dry sand or sawdust. Great care should be used not to injure the roots in digging as decay that starts in a wound will soon spread to healthy roots.
