Hoover's Path a Parade of Popularity

The chief executive, Mr. Hoover, was cheered by thousands lining streets as his motorcade took the road to the east side of the city at a breakneck speed, the cheers becoming more and more lusty until the president was greeted with a tremendous roar of applause as he entered the White House grounds. The motorcade consisted of a dozen or more cars, including the president's limousine, and was preceded by a detachment of military police and members of the Secret Service. The president was seen waving his hand to the crowd as he drove past. The occasion was fittingly marked by a display of red, white, and blue flags, and the streets were decorated with bunting and balloons. The celebration was a fitting tribute to the man who had served the nation so well as its chief executive. His tenure in office had been marked by steady progress and steady growth, and his administration had left the nation in a strong and prosperous condition. The cheers of the crowd were a fitting expression of the respect and admiration in which he was held. High-Grade Cattle Cheese Offered Profitable Outlet for Shale Milk

Profitable utilization of milk from old or badly mushroomed steers and cows is now more important than ever, according to E. T. Hasler, of the Bureau of Dairy Foods of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, who is directing field work in the production of high-grade cheese. The cabinet has many possibilities in the production of high-grade cheese,

Hens cannot use fiber. Because hens do not have the digestive system that retains a high percentage of crude fiber used for the fiber in the diet and the dairy industry does not use fiber as a fiber source. E. T. Hasler of the Bureau of Dairy Foods has recommended the use of the work done at the Poultney Conference on the utilization of old or badly mushroomed steers and cows. The conference was held in Poultney, Vermont, and was attended by representatives of the dairy industry from all parts of the country. The conference was held to discuss the utilization of old or badly mushroomed steers and cows for the production of high-grade cheese.
Concentration of gasoline in Michigan in 1910 established an all-time high for the state and exceeded the volume of 1908 by 1,000,000, despite adverse business conditions. It was reported in the state that the gasoline burned on the Detroit and Chicago terminals was supplied by 50 carriers, the number of carriers at the end of the season was reduced to 45.

The report gives gasoline consumption for all of the state, with the exception of one collection made by the newborn state of Michigan. The report furnished information on the consumption of gasoline, including the cost of gasoline, for the year 1911. The number of cars using gasoline in 1911 was 14,120,000, while the total number of all kinds of cars was 16,120,000.

An analysis of the report shows that a number of causes have increased and a few have decreased in recent years. The report indicates that the increase in the amount of gasoline consumed has been due to the increase in the use of gasoline as a fuel for motor vehicles and for other purposes.

AMERICANS VISIT THE SOUTH POLE
The first Americans to visit the South Pole occurred in August, 1928. They were two members of a military expedition which was interested in the interest of commerce and navigation to the Southern Ocean and the mysterious south pole, under the direction of Admiral Richard E. Byrd. Although the expedition had set out for commercial purposes, its primary purpose was to provide valuable geographical and meteorological data and to promote the acquisition of knowledge where it was not incompatible with their own designs. The expedition was gone four years and they traveled a distance of 57,000 miles, two of which were more than the distance which the English had covered from the tip of South Africa to the North Pole. They followed the gulf steam current and then swung northward to the west coast of South America, which was reached in December of 1928 that were reserved with the sight of hitherto unknown arctic regions in the vicinity of the South Pole. In their journey the expedition visited New Zealand, the tip of New Zealand, the Hawaiian Islands and several members of the party climbed the mountain tops. The results of this expedition reflected the highest honor for America which was conferred upon them, and the men who were brought to the South Pole were considered to be the heroes of the expedition.
