Base ball at Barber's Saturday and Sunday. See ad.

Rose Kalasiak is home from Chicago for the summer.

Opening dance at Barber's Saturday night. Big colored band.

Mrs. Lillie Bowles is recovering slowly from her recent illness.

Don't miss the W. R. C. request for flowers Saturday morning at nine.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Allison announce the birth of a daughter May 21, 1931.

Believe it or not, but O. P. says he has an orchid in bloom in his rock garden. Investigate.

The Rebekahs will join with the W. R. C. in the Memorial services Saturday morning at nine.

Mrs. Marquis and daughter, Elmer, are home from California. Mrs. Zika came with her for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stinson of White Pigeon announce the birth of a daughter May 23. Congratulations.

Sunday callers at Kalasiaks were Mrs. Lewis Camfield and children, Mrs. Anton Rakowski and grandson.

Baccalaureate service at Community church Sun evening at 8. Rev. Johnson of Covey Hill will give the address.

Mr. and Mrs. Lisle Clement of Niles Center, Ill. announce the birth of a son, John Martin, May 22, 1931. Congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Merwin announce the birth of twin girls, Bonnie Lou and Betty Lee, May 22, 1931. Congratulations.

Soil truck at town hall, Kendall, next week Friday at 1:30. Bring samples of top soil and subsoil at 12 inches in depth, about 2 tablespoons of each for each field you want tested in labeled sacks.

A Gospel team from Kalamazoo College will conduct services at the preaching hour at the Methodist churches in Gobles and Kendall Sunday morning, Sunday school as usual. No evening service because of baccalaureate.

Mrs. Schutt and Mrs. Knight entertained several ladies at bridge at the home of the former last Thursday evening, in honor of Mrs. Riemsma, who will soon leave for her new home in Benton Harbor. A most enjoyable time is reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Herron of Grand Rapids and Mrs. Etta Mc Fellin of Toledo spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thayer called on other friends. They also drove to Berlamont to see the old hotel built by Mrs. Mc Fellin's father nearly 60 years ago.

Mrs. Frank Gorton, a lifelong resident of this community, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Howard Rice in Battle Creek Sunday. Mrs. Gorton had gone to her daughter's home following an operation. The funeral was held from the Andre home yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Gorton leaves a host of friends who regret her passing and extend deepest sympathy to her family.

Clarence L. Andre attended the state convention of Michigan Funeral Directors and Embalmers at Grand Rapids. Many changes are conspicuous concerning these people whose services all hope to escape the need of but who eventually are retained for the last sad rites and they are continuously striving to lessen the sting of death. The morgue has become a preparation room, the crepe a door piece, the shroud a burial garment, the undertaker a funeral director, the coffin a casket or couch, the hearse a funeral car, the grave a receptacle and the grave or church yard a cemetery. We congratulate them that they have made a profession of their business and trust that they, with your friends and mine, may "Live Long and Prosper."

Obituary

William L. Mann was born at Eagle, Michigan June 6, 1871 and passed away at his home in Gobles Sunday, May 24, 1931.

He attended Hillsdale College and entered the teaching profession, serving in Michigan public schools for seven years.

In 1900 he was married to Lillian Comden of Stanton, Michigan, who survives him. He also leaves six children, Mrs. Beatrice Rockwell of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Edna Turner of Coopersville, Mrs. Bertha Tobey of Gobles, Arthur and William of Detroit, Louis of Gobles; a sister, Mrs. John Gray of Grand Ledge and six grandchildren.

He entered the Methodist ministry in September 1904 and served the following charges: Hubbards-ton, Breckenridge, Casnovia, Byron Center, North Muskegon, Ravenna, Holt, Schoolcraft, Climax and at the time of his passing was serving the Methodist church of Gobles.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Gobles at 10 o'clock, Dr. R. E. Meader of Kalamazoo, assisted by Rev. F. E. Chamberlain of Lawrence had charge of the service. Brother ministers served as pall bearers.

A service at Ravenna was held at 2:30. Dr. Willets of Holland, assisted by Rev. Clark of Ravenna and Rev. Whitmore of North Muskegon officiated.

Card of Thanks

Mrs. Lillian Mann and family join in expressing our sincere gratitude for the thoughtfulness and sympathy of our friends and neighbors during the illness and passing of our husband and father, Rev. W. L. Mann.

School Notes

Gobles took a place on the athletic map again Saturday when our relay team took fourth place and medals at the regional meet at Western. Loel Otten won second place and medal in tennis singles and Gobles took second place in the meet.

We won a base ball game Tuesday from Covert, score 8 to 4.

Next week is Commencement week starting with the Baccalaureate Sunday evening. On Thursday evening is Class Night and Commencement on Friday evening. The public is invited to attend all without charge.

BASE LINE

Mrs. Fred Saye returned home Saturday after visiting her daughter and family in Vandalia, Ill. and relatives in Kalamazoo.

Lewis Saye and sister of Kalamazoo were guests of their parents over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Clair Woodruff of Kalamazoo and Glen and family and Archie Smith were visitors at L. Woodruff's Sunday afternoon.

Ethelyn Holderman called on Mrs. Edna Wilmot Monday.

The dogs gave Geo. James' calves a merry chase one night last week. No serious damage was done. One calf they found down the road about a half mile the next day and one calf lost a part of his tail the dogs chewed off. People better keep their dogs at home nights even if they have to tie them or they may be minus their dog.

(Too late for last week)

Obituary

Martha Jane White, daughter of Samuel and Hannah White, was born in Brutus, N. Y. April 10, 1857 and passed away at her home north of Kendall, May 20, 1931 aged 74 years, 1 month and 10 days. She was one of a family of eight children and came from New York State at the age of seven years, to the home where she passed away.

In 1880 she was united in marriage with Labon David Emery, who passed away in 1910. To this union one daughter, Nellie, was born. In early life, she united with the Methodist church in Kendall and remained faithful until the time of her death.

Mrs. Emery has been in poor health for a number of years, but was taken worse Easter Sunday, and failed gradually until the end. Her sister, Mrs. Pankonine, was unable to be with her on account of poor health.

Besides the daughter, she leaves two sisters, Mrs. Helen Pankonine of Louisville, Neb.; Eva Powell of Kendall, and a number of more distant relatives. Four brothers and one sister preceded her in death.

She will be greatly missed by her neighbors and friends and by the Willing Workers, of whom she was a member for many years.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for the beautiful flowers and the sympathy shown us during the illness and after the death of our dear mother and sister. We especially thank those who furnished cars; Rev. Hayes for his comforting words, his brother who assisted with the music and all who in any way expressed their kindness at this time.

Mrs. Nellie Sumption,
Mrs. Eva Powell,
Mrs. Helen Pankonine.

Busy Workers

Thursday, May 21 the Busy Workers had an all day meeting with Leota Kridler which proved to be one of the most elaborate social occasions of the season. A lovely four course dinner was served at noon to which all did ample justice. A program of miscellaneous stunts and contests was enjoyed during the afternoon. Practically all members were present and each proclaimed Leota a most royal entertainer. All members answered roll call with a Bible verse containing the word "faith." At next meeting, which is to be June 4th with Genevieve Irons. Each member must answer roll call with a conundrum.

To Hunt Lost Flyers on Sea Hop

Commander Donald B. MacMillan, veteran Arctic explorer, hopes to find trace of the two Frenchmen, Capt. Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, who were lost trying to fly from Paris to New York, in 1927, when he hops off on his projected flight from Boston to London and return, this summer. He also will attempt to demonstrate the feasibility of airplane travel between the United States and Europe over a route across Labrador, Greenland, Iceland and the Faroe Islands. Commander MacMillan, left, will have Charles F. Rocheville of Los Angeles, right, as his pilot. Map indicates their prospective route.

Uncle Sam's Boomer in Action

Before the interested gaze of West Point Cadets at Aberdeen, Md., this sixteen inch Barbette gun is pictured projecting its missile of destruction at a target many miles away. Each year a detachment of generals-to-be make a spring pilgrimage to the Aberdeen proving ground for first information on the latest machines of modern warfare.

Washington Fetes "Last Man"

Washington is paying homage to Captain Charles M. Lockwood, sole survivor of the Minnesota Last Man club, composed of Civil War veterans. Photo shows him being greeted by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, on the White House steps, after the aged soldier had met President Hoover. He is 88.

Fun Brings Fame

Dame Fortune waved her magic wand and lifted sixteen-year-old Albert Ledger (above) from a lowly position in the Covent Garden Market, London, Eng., to a place of honor when his work, "On Board the Hispanola," which he submitted "in fun," was accepted by the Royal Academy. The production of the self-taught painter will be exhibited along with the canvases of the world's most famous artists.

Blames Tariff

In a stirring address before the first plenary session of the International Chamber of Commerce at Washington, D. C., George Theunis of Belgium, retiring president of the chamber, prescribed liberal tariff policies and a throwing off of the feeling of business discouragement as tonics for world trade ills. He singled out high tariffs as one of the fundamental causes of economic troubles.

Kick Stirs Hollywood

An ill-time kick is causing movie-dome's latest rumpus. Lilyan Tashman, above, who is the wife of Edmund Lowe, below, was ordered to appear before the Los Angeles prosecutor because Miss Alona Marlowe, sister of June Marlowe, also of the movies, sought a battery warrant charging that Miss Tashman kicked her out of Lowe's dressing room on the studio lot. Miss Marlowe says the kick was unwarranted, because Lowe merely asked her to come in "out of the hot sun."

FARMERS PLAN TO PLANT MORE SPUDS

Farmers in the United States are planning to increase their potato acreage 10.7 per cent this year, according to growers' "intentions to plant" as compiled by the United States department of agriculture. The department summarizes the potato outlook as follows:

"Even after allowing for average loss of plantings from drought, floods, blight and other causes the probable acreage for harvest in 1931 is indicated to be about 8.4 per cent larger than that harvested in 1930 and only about 4 per cent less than the 1928 acreage, which was the largest in recent years. Should average growing conditions prevail the potato crop of 1931 is likely to result in a price level close to that of the 1928 season.

This intended increase is general throughout the country and is apparently in line with the usual response of potato growers to prices received for the two preceding crops. In the 19 so-called surplus late producing states the intended increase is reported as 9.9 per cent; in the 16 deficit late states 9.4 per cent; and in the 13 southern states 17.7 per cent. These increases are all expected to be modified somewhat in the acreages eventually grown for harvest in 1931.

"From the relation existing in the past between growers' planting intentions and the acreage actually harvested, it is expected that the acreage for harvest in the 19 surplus states in 1931 is most likely to be 2,365,000 acres or an 8 per cent increase over the 1930 harvested acreage; in the 16 deficit states, 837,000 acres or a 6.4 per cent increase; and in the 13 southern states, 470,000 acres or 14.6 per cent increase.

"Of the major late-crop shipping states, Maine, Minnesota, North Dakota, Nebraska, Idaho, Colorado, Oregon and California report plans to increase plantings 10 per cent or more over the acreage finally harvested last season and New York, Michigan and Wisconsin report intended increases between 5 and 9 per cent. Largest increases are reported in the western states, the central deficit states and the south central states. The commercial early acreage for harvest in the southern states seems likely to be about 7 per cent larger than last year and the remaining acreage in these states, grown largely for home and local consumption about one-fifth larger."

Treatment Is Found to Stop Potato Losses

Treatment of seed potatoes with corrosive sublimate will prevent the damage caused by scab, black scurf, and black leg which seriously injure the quality and sometimes reduce the yields of Michigan potatoes, according to the farm crops department at Michigan State college.

The seed should be treated before sprouting has begun and before the seed is cut. Corrosive sublimate corrodes metal and the treatment must be given in wooden containers. The treating solution is made by dissolving four ounces of the chemical in a few quarts of hot water which is then added to 30 gallons of water. The potatoes must be submerged in the solution and left for 30 minutes, after which they should be removed and spread out in a cool place where they will dry quickly.

The solution loses its strength gradually and one ounce of corrosive sublimate which has been dissolved in one quart of water should be added to the solution after treating each two batches of seed. A new solution should be made and the old one discarded after treating six batches of potatoes.

Celery Growers Ask Cut in Water Rates

Grand Haven celery growers have served notice on the city they will install their own water systems this year unless the municipal water works reduces its rates.

The present rates were established following the installation of the city filtration plant. Ways and means are being sought whereby the city may cut its rates to keep its customers and at the same time pay costs of production.

Allegan Co. Produces Half of Onion Crop

Allegan county produces more than half of the entire Michigan onion crop. By far the greater part of the county's crop is raised in the Gun marsh area. The second largest producing section is to be found around Dorr.

Soils Expert Says It's Time to Cull Out Slacker Land

This is not only a time to cull dairy herds and flocks of hens, but also unprofitable land under cultivation, O. F. Jensen of the National Soil Improvement committee declared recently. "Cull the low-producing acres and eliminate the star-boarder acres, but think twice before starving a good acre. It doesn't pay," Jensen said.

Combine Farms For Experiment

Is scientific corporate farming much more profitable than the small individual operations so common in this section of the country? The old C. I. Cook farms near Menominee are now being used for another experiment to prove that the corporate farming is the best method.

The combining of all these farms as a unit makes this the largest single farming operation in the state of Michigan. The tract includes 14 farms of 6,000 acres. Nearly 2,000 acres will be put into crops this spring, which is exclusive of about 1,000 acres of hay, 350 acres of clover and 100 acres of Grimm alfalfa. The balance of the acreage is mainly pasture.

John Philbeck, a graduate of the Wisconsin agricultural college is in charge of the experiment and he is very optimistic of the possible outcome due to his wide experience in such operations. For the past six years he has been managing the Door county experimental station in Wisconsin.

Many noted authorities believe that this scientific corporate farming would be a great factor in aiding the farm problem and it really has been tried in the western states with a great deal of success. One of the advantages of doing this type of work on a larger scale is that it brings greater yields at a smaller cost per unit. Threshing of the crops will be right in the fields and trucked direct to cars for shipment to market.

The Cook farms are on the old state road or Menominee county highway 77 which runs out of Menominee in a northwesterly direction.

Everything in this new experiment is being done in a scientific way and after a careful soil survey it was decided on rye, barley, oats, buckwheat and flax as the most suitable crops. All of the work, from plowing to harvesting, has been let by contract to Roubal Brothers of the state road, who have eight tractors employed in dragging, discing and seeding, operating day and night. Practically all of the plowing was completed last fall and the winter rye came through splendidly.

Besides the regular crops about 200 acres of apple orchards, all good bearing trees, are included in the farms.

The apples will be marketed through an arrangement with the Door county fruit exchange.

Farmers in this vicinity will look to this new project with a great interest, anxious to see what degree of success will be obtained.

Legume Pastures for Pigs

Rapid, economical gains may be made by pigs having access to good legume pasture, according to J. W. Wuichet of Ohio State university.

Alfalfa makes the best legume pasture because it will support more hogs per acre than any other forage crop, is relatively high in proteins and minerals, and will provide forage earlier in the spring and later in the fall than will any of the other legumes. However, if it is pastured so closely that the crowns are nipped off, it will not renew itself satisfactorily.

Red clover, Mr. Wuichet believes, follows alfalfa as a valuable hog pasture, and probably, when the farm rotation is considered, it makes the best all-around forage available. If very much alsike is mixed with the red clover, the pigs should be watched to see that they do not blister or become scabby, as that trouble sometimes occurs with small pigs on alsike.

During the first year sweet clover, especially if sown without a nurse crop, will supply a good source of hog forage, but during the second year it becomes too woody to be of very great value, according to Mr. Wuichet. Also, some time may elapse before pigs become accustomed to it. However, if sweet clover is available, and some of the other legumes are not, it will pay to pasture the pigs on sweet clover.

Chatham Test Shows Best Crop for Silo

Sunflowers outyielded artichokes as a silage crop in experiments conducted at the Chatham station in the upper peninsula and purple top rutabagas produced a greater tonnage of roots per acre than the artichokes produced of tubers, and the conclusions drawn by the men in charge of the tests are that sunflowers are the best silage crop for those sections of Michigan where corn will not mature and that rutabagas are better than artichokes for a root crop.

The sunflowers and the artichokes were planted at the same time in the Chatham trials, but the sunflowers matured several days before the other crop; in fact, the artichokes were not harvested until danger of severe frosts made harvesting necessary and at that time the plants had not blossomed.

Artichoke tubers or pieces of these tubers, when left in the ground over winter, will produce plants the next spring and the plant may become a troublesome weed because of this characteristic. The production of artichokes as a field crop in Michigan is not recommended by members of the Chatham station staff.

Sunflower silage is about equal in feeding value to that made from immature corn and the tonnage of silage per acre produced by the sunflowers is much greater than that produced by corn in sections where corn will not mature.

VACUUM PROCESS IMPROVES STORAGE EGGS

The United States Department of Agriculture has discovered how to seal up the pores in the shell of an egg so it will retain much of its fresh quality when in cold storage.

In recent investigations the food research division of the bureau of chemistry and soils found that fresh eggs dipped in oil and subjected to carbon dioxide gas in a vacuum will retain practically all of their original moisture and carbon dioxide. Impairment of quality generally results when these two constituents are lost.

T. L. Swenson, bacteriologist, who devised the new process, dips the eggs in oil in an air-tight chamber, then pumps out some of the air to create a partial vacuum. Some air escapes from the eggs also. Mr. Swenson then turns carbon dioxide into the vessel. The eggs, once more surrounded by gases of normal pressure, draw some of the oil into the pores of the shell to form a complete seal. Carbon dioxide probably is carried in with the oil, which accounts for the marked improvement in quality which follows its use.

Some western egg handlers recently have been treating large numbers of eggs for storage by dipping them in oil in open vessels. In comparative tests, Mr. Swenson found that vacuum dipped and carbonated eggs lost only one-tenth of 1 per cent of weight during ten months in storage, while the open-dipped eggs lost sixteen times as much. Untreated eggs lost nearly seventy-seven times as much weight as the vacuum-treated eggs. This loss is moisture and carbon dioxide chiefly.

When the eggs were taken out of storage an expert grader classed them on the basis of standard market grades. None of the unsealed eggs were good enough for the two top classes and only 30 per cent of the open-dipped eggs were so classed. But 46 per cent of the vacuum-oiled eggs came within these special and extra grades.

Colorless, odorless and tasteless mineral oil, which in no way impairs the egg's quality, is used in the process. The appearance of the vacuum-dipped egg when opened after ten months in storage compares favorably with that of a two-day-old egg.

FIBER FOR CHICKS ON WIRE SCREEN

The present trend toward brooding chicks on wire-screen floors and in battery brooders makes new demands upon the starting and growing rations, especially with regard to the amount of fiber. In the past, there has been a general tendency to keep the fiber content of chick starters and growing rations quite low. This may be a questionable practice when the birds are raised on wire with no access to floor litter.

More rapid growth, with practically no trouble from slipped tendons, was secured in preliminary tests conducted by P. R. Record at the Ohio experiment station, with chicks in battery brooders and with larger birds in feeding batteries when additional amounts of fiber were used in the ration. Different amounts and sources of fiber-containing material, such as wheat bran, ground whole oats, and legume hay, were added to the basal ration of ground corn, ground wheat, meat scraps, dried milk, salt, and cod-liver oil.

The addition of 10 to 15 per cent wheat bran, 10 per cent alfalfa meal, or 10 per cent ground whole oats to the basal ration previously mentioned gave an increased growth with less tendency towards slipped tendons or other complications which are sometimes associated with rapid growth. Whether it would be advisable to add the high fiber materials in question to rations for chicks having access to floor litter is as yet undetermined, but for chicks on wire floors or in battery brooders the additional fiber appears to have a beneficial function. More work is in progress to determine what the special fiber requirement of battery chicks is and what may be the best sources of fiber.

THE CELLAR FOR EGGS

With the advent of warm weather the egg cases or baskets should be moved to the cellar or cave. It only takes two or three days of 80 or 85-degree weather to put fertile eggs out of the "hennery" or best grade and a few more to make the eggs unfit for food. And whether buying on grade or merely culling, buyers and dealers are going to watch closer for doubtful eggs this season than ever before.

VALUE OF SKIM MILK

One hundred pounds of skim milk is worth one-half the price of a bushel of corn for hogs, says the Nebraska College of Agriculture. Milk, however, should not be fed to sows until three weeks after they farrow because it may increase the milk flow and produce scours in the pigs. The college recommends the feeding of proteins such as shorts, tankage and alfalfa hay until the sows have been put on a full feed, after which milk may be included in the ration.

OFFER MADE FOR EATON FAIR SITE

The Eaton county fair board has received an offer for the fairground property. Hans Kardel, county agricultural agent, stated he had been approached by a man who will pay up the bank notes, take a five-year mortgage on the grounds and lease the property to the society for the term of the mortgage. The man's name is being withheld for the present.

One suggestion offered is to sell tickets or memberships at $5 each in sufficient numbers to clean up the indebtedness. The state is said to be willing to pay the balance owing the fair, about $1,600, as soon as the unpaid premiums are either paid or canceled. Many exhibitors holding unpaid premium orders have declared their willingness to turn these orders back if such a policy would assist in the program to continue the fair.

The state, it is reported, sent a man here to examine the grandstand, and he informed the fair board that at an expense of not to exceed $150 the structure could be placed in satisfactory condition to serve for a decade or longer.

Nashville Plans Its Homecoming

It has been decided that Nashville will have its annual homecoming this year and L. W. Feighner has been elected president of the Harvest Festival association.

Other officers are: Vice president, Noah Wenger; secretary, E. L. Appelman; treasurer, H. B. Andrews.

The president has appointed the various committees including soliciting, advertising, music, sports and games, entertainment, intimation, concessions, reception and registration.

Work has started, but the date for the celebration has not been set.

Three Airports Licensed

State Board of Aeronautics has awarded three new temporary airport licenses. The airports are under construction and are newly completed. They are: Skyport at Mt. Morris, to be operated by the Northern Aircraft Corporation of Bay City; Genesee County Airport at Grand Blanc, operated by Edward S. Schmier, and the Gaylord Airport at Gaylord.

Detroit Air Lines Set New Record for Traffic

All air passenger records between Cleveland and Detroit, and Detroit and Chicago, were broken during April, when United States air mail, passenger and express planes of the Transamerican Airlines Corporation, division of Thompson Aeronautical Corporation, flew 2,042 passengers, Edwin G. Thompson of Cleveland, president of T. A. C., announced this week.

Century Airlines carried 5,013 passengers in the first 30 days of operation, L. B. Manning, vice-president and general manager, announced. This is believed to be a record for any American airline for a similar flying period.

The Detroit to Chicago route led all others with a total of 933 passengers carried. Cleveland to Detroit was next with 640 passengers, and Chicago to St. Louis third with 376. Passengers in and out of Chicago totaled 2,395; Cleveland, 1,815; Toledo, 3,404; Detroit, 2,072; and St. Louis, 652.

Amphibians on the 55-minute Trans-Lake Erie division operating between downtown Cleveland and downtown Detroit since April, 1929, established an impressive new traffic figure by flying 1,056 passengers to surpass by 102 the old record of 954 made during September, 1930. This is the oldest amphibian service in America and the only line of its kind upon which the United States post office flies mail.

The new, through, Detroit-Chicago service inaugurated April 1 following United States government authorization, flew 752 passengers in its multi-motored United States air mail, passenger and express transports during its initial month's operation. Establishment of a new rate cheaper than railroad plus Pullman fare between the two cities made this new service increasingly popular.

Camp Manitow Purchased By Chicago Man

Camp Manitow, about 60 miles below the Canadian Sault, which was founded by John F. Pruitt, has been purchased by Eugene F. McDonald, explorer and radio man.

Commander McDonald, close friend of Pruitt for many years, has taken possession of the property and has announced it will be directed by Dr. George Fox, of Three Oaks, Mich.

Commander McDonald has purchased the camp out of respect for Mr. Pruitt. In recent years he has made several trips to the camp in his yacht, Mizpah. During the past two years Commander McDonald has furnished the camp with moving pictures of his Arctic journeys and to the unknown and unexplored regions of the Galapagos Islands in the South Seas. In addition to being an explorer, Commander McDonald is president of the Zenith Radio Corporation with headquarters in Chicago.

Mr. Fox has had several years of experience in camp work. A new lodge is being built and a new sewage system is being installed by the new owner.

Commander McDonald is well known in the Sault.

New Prison Chapel Will Be Dedicated

Announcement was made recently by Warden Harry Jackson that the chapel of the new Michigan state prison will be dedicated on June 14. Maude Ballington Booth, head of the Volunteers of America, and outstanding Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergymen will take part in the exercises. The new administration building at the new prison will be completed in another month, the warden said.

LIVE TRAP BEAVER NEAR CHARLEVOIX

Beaver colonies have become so numerous in the eastern part of Charlevoix county that the state conservation department has decided to live trap the animals out of the upper Jordan river.

Their dams, by changing water levels, are seriously affecting several rearing ponds along that stream.

The work is in charge of Conservation Officers Ed Deuell of Boyne City and Henry Fyke of Charlevoix.

The beavers are being sent to the Detroit zoo and to Lansing. It has not been decided whether those in Springvale township also will be transferred. Their dams there have caused the highway department some trouble.

Holland Will Have New Deep Well Pump

The board of public works, Holland, will equip the East Eighth street station with a new deep well pump at a cost of $2,520, which will increase the pumping capacity by 800 gallons of water per minute. The pump will be installed by the American Well Works of Aurora, Ill.

A terminal tower for connecting overhead and underground power lines will be erected at the main plant at a cost of $1,319 and a number of pothead devices for connecting the lines will be placed at a cost of $1,430.35.

$7,000,000 Deficit in State Treasury

Additional overdrafts have been authorized by the state administrative board. The legislature, according to a report by the finance committee, requires an extra $60,000 to permit it to operate until June. The board approved releases of $223,000 and directed the secretary to ask the legislative finance committees to include that amount in the deficiency bill so the treasury may be reimbursed after July 1. The total deficiency requests now have reached nearly $7,000,000.

The board decided to levy taxes against timber on land secured by the state for the Casino game refuge, with the condition that the owners be allowed to cut timber. Q. B. Fuller, auditor general, voted against the levy.

U. P. Forest Fires Increase Four Fold

About four times as many forest fires have raged over northern Michigan so far this year, than had been reported up to May 1, 1930, and more than that proportion of acres have been burned over.

The forest fire division of the department of conservation, issuing comparative figures to show the seriousness of the present forest fire situation in the state, said that approximately 400 fires have been reported so far this season in the upper and lower peninsulas of Michigan. It was estimated that more than 10,000 acres have been burned over.

May 1, 1930, the division had reported 117 fires for the season with 2,839 acres burned over.

The heaviest loss has occurred in Dickinson, Iron and Menominee counties. One fire in this section of the state burned over more than 2,000 acres before it could be placed under control.

With no prospects of any radical changes in fire hazard conditions, the continued increase in fire losses is all that may be expected according to the forest fire division.

Boyne City Beavers To Go to Belle Isle

Ed Deuell, conservation officer, has trapped five beavers on the Jordan river recently. They have been over-productive and were becoming destructive. They are handled easily and make no effort to escape if taken some distance from the water before released. They are being cared for at the conservation headquarters at Boyne City and are to be transferred soon to the beaver colony at Belle Isle, Detroit.

Plan Olivet Meet

Registrations for the tenth annual Michigan Congregational young people's conference, to be held at Olivet June 23 to July 1, are being received by the Charlotte Congregational church. Rev. Rudolph R. Roth, pastor of the local church, is to be a member of the faculty of the conference.

STATE PAYS $23,783,308 GAS TAX

The gasoline tax yielded a net revenue of 494,688,410 in 1930 and nearly 15 billion gallons of gasoline were used by the motor vehicle of the United States, according to reports received by the bureau of public roads of the U. S. department of agriculture from state agencies. Michigan collected $23,783,308 on 722,462,686 gallons.

As compared with 1929, the tax revenue increased 14.6 per cent and the consumption of gasoline increased 3 1/2 per cent in spite of the fact that there was no increase in the total number of motor vehicles. The average consumption per vehicle was 556 gallons in 1930 as compared with 538 gallons in 1929.

A gasoline tax was imposed in all the states, the rate ranging from 2 to 6 cents per gallon. The average rate was 3.35 cents per gallon. The net revenue of $494,688,410 was allocated as follows: $1,102,187 for collection expenses; $338,927,564 for state highways; $96,225,637 for local roads; $20,869,901 for state highway bond payments; $10,179,135 for local road bond payments; $11,842,930 for city streets; $13,404,200 for schools, and $2,131,856 for miscellaneous expenditures.

The average of the annual registration fees is $13.41 and this added to the average gasoline tax of $18.62 made a total direct tax on the motorist of $32.03. These two taxes formed the largest items of revenue for highway purposes.

An analysis by the bureau shows that the average consumption of gasoline per motor vehicle was 452 gallons in 1925 and there has been an increase each year to 556 gallons in 1930. This increase is thought to be the result, in part, of the increased percentage of trucks and other commercial vehicles, but it has also been influenced by increased use of the average vehicle.

Owosso Gas Plant Supplies 3 Towns

Approval by Owosso township of a franchise to the Federated Utilities corporation clears the way for the building of a pipe line to supply St. Johns, Ovid and Shepardsville, in Clinton county, with gas from the Owosso plant of the company. Four townships and two municipalities have approved the franchise. Work will start soon.

10-Acre Tract Near Allegan Reforested

It has been successfully demonstrated on a 10-acre tract on Barry ranch in Cheshire township that cutover sandy land can be reforested. Spruce and pine seedlings from one to two feet high completed cover this tract.

ILLEGAL SPEARING DESTROYING FISH

The game fish population of Michigan's streams is being seriously menaced by persons permitted to use spears on certain streams of the state at this time of the year, according to the fish division of the conservation department.

Unless more observance of the law is noticeable before the end of May when the spearing ends, the effects of this year's plants of game fish will be considerably lessened because of the fish illegally taken by spears. The situation is all the more acute because game fish are being taken prior to their spawning period.

The law enforcement division of the department, reporting the situation, said that its field force is experiencing difficulty in adequately enforcing the spearing law.

Because of the excessive violations, it has been necessary to place every available man along the streams to prevent violations, the division reported.

Muskegon Bus Line Asks Fare Increase

Representatives of the Peoples Transportation company, bus line operators of Muskegon, in control of the transportation system of Muskegon and Muskegon Heights, recently requested the city commission to permit an increase in fares from 5 to 6 cents, and offered a universal transfer system.

Two Health Champions Are Crowned at Meet

There also was a program of folk dances, gymnastics and May pole dances.

Alice Paddock of Manton and Cecil Gaylord of Mesick were acclaimed the county's perfect girl and boy.

A DOCTOR'S ADVICE for Stubborn Bowels

"Drink at least six glasses of water daily—preferably before meals. Eat bulkier foods, such as vegetables, fruits and coarse breads. Use a mild laxative as needed."

That is Dr. Caldwell's advice to people with stubborn bowels. He specialized on the bowels; treated thousands for constipation and its ills. The prescription he used over and over in his practice has become the world's most popular laxative! "Syrup Pepsin," as it is now called, was tested by more than 47 years of practice.

Today you can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drugstore in America. It is always the same; made exactly according to the original prescription, from laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other valuable ingredients. Nothing in it to harm even a baby. It does not gripe, sicken or cause any discomfort. But it moves the bowels; it gets rid of all the souring waste which clogs the system; makes you bilious, headachy, gassy, bloated, weak, half-sick. A doctor should know what is best for the bowels. Syrup Pepsin is a famous doctor's choice of a safe, pleasant, effective laxative for men, women, older folks, babies and children.

The Chestnut Bean

This wonderful Bean looks like a gigantic pea. When boiled it has a flavor like boiled chestnuts, and is one of the most delicious beans grown. Grows in the form of a tall bush and is completely covered with pods. For soup and turkey stuffing it has not been surpassed. It is a Spanish Bean, and is known as the "Garbanos" Bean. After once you grow a few you will want to plant a lot of them. We have but a limited amount of the seed to offer this season, so are selling same in

INSIST on the INSIDE FACTS

For Your Protection Make These Comparisons Before You Buy Your Tires

UNDERNEATH the surface is where you get the cold truth about tire values. It's the inside of the tire—the method of construction and the quality and quantity of materials—that determines its Stamina, Performance, Safety, VALUE. You can no more tell the quality of a tire by its outside appearance than you can tell the character of a man by the kind of clothes he wears.

We have arranged to show you cross sections of Firestone and special brand mail order tires. You can come here and make your own comparisons, uninfluenced by any sales propaganda. We urge you to thoroughly check every vital point—rubber volume, weight, width, thickness, and plies under the tread. Then buy accordingly—ON FACTS AND FACTS ALONE. Against the various claims presented about different tires, isn't this the most logical suggestion ever made to you? Could there be any more positive way to definitely determine which tires offer you the most for your money? There can be no question or controversy when you get the FACTS yourself.

Composition of Tinfoil

Tinfoil is thin sheets of tin, the metallic element. It is beaten thin with a wooden mallet. Leadfoil is made of lead. Both are used for wrapping purposes, but tinfoil is the more common. "Foil" in such compounds literally means leaf.

WHERE QUALITY COUNTS

Legislative Letter

With the date for adjournment of the 1931 legislature now definitely set, I am at this time writing my last letter. Two years ago the adjournment was on May 9th, so this session has continued longer than usual. While certain lines of legislation and especially that as to taxation has not progressed where many of us wished it might, still I think the 1931 legislature has done some very constructive work. It has been a great disappointment to those coming from rural sections like myself, that the oleo tax was sidetracked and defeated by the Senate. It is to the credit of the House that Representative Milo Johnson of Greenville introduced a bill in the House to tax oleo and protect the farmers' butter from this unfair competition. The law as drafted proposed a tax of ten cents a pound. The committee lowered it to six cents a pound and the House passed it and the Senate buried it in their political "boneyard." The House likewise passed a personal income tax bill and it went to the Senate and the Senate ran true to form and never let it out of their taxation committee. This bill therefore reposes in the Senate "graveyard." The House passed a couple of bills dealing with cemeteries but strange to say these bills got through the Senate and became laws. The income tax law will sooner or later be passed in Michigan. Twenty states now have such a law and Michigan should be one of the states with an income tax law. It puts the burden on the man who has something with which to pay a tax. A man who advocates such a law in Michigan just now may be a little ahead of his time, but I am glad I was one of the men who pressed this legislation and worked and voted for it. I feel that we perhaps "pioneered" but I predict that we will have an income tax law.

The closing days of the session presents a very busy scene. With many of the members impatient to get home and attend to their various lines of work we see the legislature working at top speed. Every committee is cleaning up its bills. The House is in session sometimes in the morning and then again afternoons and sometimes in the evenings. Public hearings on disputed and controversial matters are in progress.

During the session I introduced seven bills. Five have been passed by both houses and signed by the Governor and become laws. Two have died in committee. I introduced two House resolutions. One was the invitation to President Hoover asking that he spend his 1931 vacation in Michigan.

The President's reply was extremely courteous but 1931 happens to be a year in which he contemplates taking no vacation on account of the urgent need of his remaining at Washington. My income tax resolution became embodied as to many of the features in the Thomas Income tax law mentioned above. My most important committee was that of Roads and Bridges. I do not recall that I missed a single meeting of this committee. I have tried to furnish information promptly on request to all my constituents. I have furnished the House and Senate Journals during the session to all who made request for them. I have endeavored in session and out of session to advance the interests of the state and to look carefully after the interests of Van Buren county.

How well I have succeeded, I will naturally have to leave to the judgment of the people. I have felt that in the many contacts that I made with the men and women about the state that it was up to me to be an apostle of good will and to always in a modest way tell them of our county and to put it forward in the best possible way.

I can check up on myself and make the statement that I have kept my two promises made to the people in the primary and election, namely, I have furnished every week to each paper in Van Buren county from inauguration day on January 1st to the closing of the session a weekly letter telling of events here at Lansing and the work we were endeavoring to perform.

I have repeatedly had many comments from people all over the county that they enjoyed these letters and looked forward to their reading. Most papers published these letters but whether they did or not my copy went weekly to each and every paper in Van Buren county. Whether the county papers feel that this plan of mine renders a service to the reading public is something that they will have to answer for themselves. I know I have spent a great deal of time and work in getting the information contained in these letters.

The other campaign pledge was that I would introduce a resolution on the state income tax. I did so and this started the talk in the legislature on this method of tax revenue and it finally culminated in the introduction of an income tax bill.

The opportunity that you have afforded me of serving as your State Representative has been a real education to me and has made me innumerable friends and acquaintances about the state. It is an experience that any man or woman might well covet and I well know that Van Buren has many capable and worthy citizens. I cannot close this series of letters without thanking you all for having made me your State Representative. It has been a pleasure to have served you and I trust that I may have discharged the duties of the office in a way that is generally satisfactory to the citizens of Van Buren county.

Board of Review

The board of review for the township of Bloomingdale will convene at Bloomingdale, June 2 and 9, 1931, to review and correct the assessment roll, and at the Gobles Bank on June 3 and 10. All taxpayers are urged to meet with them on the later dates to view their assessments and offer any suggestion and state grievances.

Dated May 18, 1931.

TEACHERS MUST SWEAR OATH IN STATE SCHOOLS

Teachers in normal schools and municipal colleges as well as all teachers in the public primary and secondary system in Michigan must now swear to an oath, coincident with the signing of their contracts, pledging allegiance to the constitution and laws of state and country, according to the terms of two new bills.

One of the bills applies only to primary and secondary schools supported in whole or part by the state. The other bill includes all publicly or semi-publicly supported colleges with the specific exception of the University of Michigan, Michigan State college and the Michigan college of Mining and Technology.

The oath prescribed by the statute which applies to the primary and secondary schools, and to be administered by members of the boards of education, school trustees and commissioners, is as follows:

"I solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support the constitution of the United States of America, the constitution of the state of Michigan, and will by precept and example promote respect for the flag and institutions of the United States and the state of Michigan, reverence for law and order, and undivided allegiance to the government of the United States of America to the best of my ability."

The second bill reads in part as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for any board of control of any state Normal college, normal school or other educational institution supported in whole or in part by public funds, to employ therein as a teacher any person unless and until such person shall subscribe to the following oath or affirmation."

The oath which follows is the same as the one in the first bill, except the phrase "to the best of my ability" is omitted.

Senator Charles H. Reed, chairman of the committee on education, who supported the bill, declared that "If I could have my way I would give the principle a wider application in that I would make it a requisite for the privilege of citizenship."

Saugatuck's Art Group Organizes

The Saugatuck Art Association has completed its organization and arrangements for a civic art gallery. Dr. R. J. Walker was elected president, with the six vice presidents each being the president of a leading organization in the community. Mrs. Celia Gamble House will act as director.

The association is affiliated with the state federation of art associations and expects to have the exhibits of this federation as well as those by resident artists.

The second floor of the village hall is being made into an art gallery.

Another Japanese Enrolls at Hope

Hope college will enroll another Japanese student in Tase San, a graduate of Ferris seminary. This young girl, according to reports, has missed one day of school in six years. She plans to enter Hope college next fall.

The first two Japanese students to be graduated from Hope were Kumajima Kimura and Moitoiters Oghimi, members of the class of 1879. Both entered the ministry and returned to their native country. In recent years several Japanese students were enrolled at Hope.

Commencement Plans In Tekonsha Formed

Superintendent A. J. Stroud has announced the following commencement plans: Baccalaureate sermon by Rev. A. M. Coldren at the Baptist church, Sunday, June 7 and commencement exercises June 11.

The class of 1931 is composed of twelve members, eight boys and four girls, Dean Rice, Kenneth Schafer, Rex Doolittle, William Burrows, Duane Hoag, Carrol Anderson, Ralph Palmer, Millard Hill, Marion Dean, Marian Green, Marjorie Goff and Ruth Armantrout. Valedictorian, Ruth Armantrout; salutatorian, Marion Dean; historian, Marion Green; class prophecy, William Burrows, and president's address by Carrol Anderson.

Bible Reading Given O. K. of Women's Clubs

At their closing session held at Kalamazoo recently members of the southwestern district Michigan Federation of Women's Club adopted resolutions supporting the bill now before the state legislature to make the reading of the Bible in the public schools compulsory.

Mrs. F. N. Moulthrop of Dowagiac was re-elected president for the district. Other officers elected were as follows:

Vice-president, Mrs. George E. Foote, Kalamazoo; recording secretary, Mrs. C. R. White, Dowagiac; treasurer, Mrs. C. A. Bartlett, Union City.

Joshaway Crabapple says: "Never meddle with a hornet or a man who is minding his own business."

Hard Work Brings Singer Success

Lily Pons, a young French singer and actress who has made a sensational success with the Metropolitan Opera company of New York, says that the choice of a good teacher and then good hard work are what make for success in the operatic field. "A girl must have a voice, of course," she says. "Mine vanity won't put one across; then a good teacher and plenty of hard work." Lily Pons is 26, married, and has been singing only five years. She has appeared in "Mignon," "Rigoletto," "Lucia de Lammermoor."

ZEELAND HIGH ELECTIONS HELD UNDER NEW METHOD

Class elections were held recently in Zeeland High school under a new method. Each office seeker presented the student council a petition bearing names of 20 per cent of the members of his class. Results were as follows:

Seniors—President, Lester Wolterink; vice-president, Ruth Wierenga; secretary, Easter Poest; treasurer, Don Kooiman; student council, Marian Baehr and Harold Weersing; editor, Janet Wildschutt.

Juniors—President, Lester De Koster; vice president, Minnie Van Eden; secretary, Geneva Janssen; treasurer, Marvin Meeuwssen; student council, Janet Wiersma and Leonard Kaslander; editors, Mariona Kammeraad and Elizabeth Hoffman.

Kalamazoo Girl Selected To Lead Normal Women

Miss Arline Butler, Kalamazoo, a junior at Western State Teachers College, was elected president of the Woman's league of the college at the annual election. She succeeds Miss Helen Merson, of South Haven.

Miss Mildred Hakes, of Reading, was elected vice-president; Miss Marian Dennert, Kalamazoo, secretary, and Miss Margaret Balfour, of Grosse Pointe, treasurer. The Woman's league is the organization of all the women of the college.

Hope's Graduates To Hear Zwemer

Rev. Samuel M. Swemer, professor in Princeton Theological seminary has been booked for the baccalaureate service for the class of 1931 of Hope college, in Hope memorial chapel, Sunday evening, June 14.

Dr. Swemer was graduated from Hope college in 1887 and spent 40 years as missionary in Arabia and Egypt. His father, Rev. A. Swemer, was a pioneer minister in the Holland colony.

Household Hints

MENU HINT
Cupid's Cocktail
Chicken Patties—Buttered Peas
Hot Biscuits or Rolls
Strawberry Jelly
Tomato Gelatin Salad—Heart Shaped
Heart Cakes with Pink Frosting
Pink and White Candy Hearts
Salted Nuts Coffee
This menu is intended for a luncheon for a prospective bride.

Recipes
Cupid's Cocktail—One cup seeded white cherries, one cup seeded red cherries, one cup diced pears, one cup diced pineapple, four tablespoons lemon juice, one cup water or canned fruit juices, one-third cup sugar. Boil the water and sugar for two minutes. Add the lemon juice. Cool. Add the rest of the ingredients and chill. Serve in glass cups which have been placed on pink hearts on serving plates.

Heart Tomato Gelatin Salad.—Two tablespoons granulated gelatin, one-third cup cold water, two cups tomatoes, one cup boiling water, two slices onion, four celery leaves, four whole cloves, one-half teaspoon salt, two bay leaves, one-half cup finely chopped celery, one-fourth cup chopped sweet pickles. Mix the tomatoes, boiling water, onions, celery leaves, cloves, salt and bay leaves. Cook slowly for 20 minutes in a covered pan over a low fire. Strain thoroughly and heat to the boiling point. Pour over gelatin which has soaked for five minutes with the cold water. Stir until the gelatin has dissolved. Add the rest of the ingredients. Pour into a shallow pan which has been rinsed in cold water. The gelatin should be one inch thick, when it is in the pan. Set in a cold place to stiffen. When cold use a heart pattern and cut out heart shapes and place on crisp lettuce. Surround with salad dressing and serve.

Pink Frosting.—Four tablespoons hot cream, two tablespoons butter, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla, red fruit coloring, one and two-thirds cups sifted confectioner's sugar. Mix the cream, butter, salt and vanilla. Add a small amount of the coloring. Add the sugar and beat for two minutes.

Nut Scotch Pie
Two-thirds cup brown sugar, two tablespoons butter or margarine, one-half cup boiling water, one and one-half cups milk, two egg yolks, one-fourth teaspoon salt, three and one-half tablespoons flour or cornstarch, one-half teaspoon vanilla extract, one-fourth teaspoon black walnut extract, one-half cup ground peanuts. Melt sugar and butter in skillet until golden brown. Add hot water and boil until sugar is dissolved. Beat egg yolks, add flour, salt and milk. Into this pour the syrup. Cook in double boiler until thick, stirring often. Remove from fire, cool, add butter, nuts, flavoring. Pour into baker pie shell. Make a meringue of the egg whites and brown in oven.

Suggestions
Grease pan with butter before melting chocolate. You will then have no difficulty with it sticking to the pan.

Lightweight oilcloth pasted on the backs of pictures on which the paper is torn and soiled will keep out the dust and is easily kept clean.

Traverse's Boy Scouts Are Assured of Camp

A 50 per cent assessment on stock in the Community Camp association, Traverse City, will see the Boy Scout camp through the season. The assessment was decided upon at the annual meeting of the association.

The meeting also agreed upon $10 as the camp fee for the two-week period.

Albert Clement was elected president of the association. H. D. Gage is vice president, W. J. Hobbs secretary, and Leo Kalahar treasurer. Four trustees whose terms expired were re-elected—W. J. Hobbs, H. D. Gage, A. C. Batsdorff and Leo Kalahar.

Hope College Gets Two $10,000 Bequests

Hope college received two bequests in the will of Charles W. McLean, 75 years old, who died here recently at Holland. The sum of $10,000 was left in trust, the interest to be used for loan funds for worthy students, a second $10,000 was left to be added to the endowment fund of the institution. The remainder of the estate of the educator, who was the president of the board of trustees of the college at the time of his death and former superintendent of schools of the city, was divided among his sons and widow.

Greenville Youth to Enter West Point

Albert F. Johnson, 19-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Johnson of Greenville, has received notice from the war department at Washington that he has passed mental and physical examinations for entrance to the United States Military academy. He is to report July 1.

Albert was graduated from Greenville High school in the class of 1930. He is the first Greenville boy to enter West Point since Hilbert Wittkopp was admitted in 1918.

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

KEEP BUSY LETTING TOT AMUSE SELF

Referring to an earlier article of mine on the "Artist Parent," a mother writes:

"My Dear Dr. Myers: "The outstanding sentence in the whole article, for me at least, was: 'Consider the achievement of the mother who has led her little child to entertain himself for hours while she makes plans for,' etc. That is just where I have failed. As a result I've starved for reading. I haven't the time."

"My little girl is eight, little boy three. The little boy is just now beginning to play along just a bit, still he wants me with him, despite the fact that I have tried hard to teach him to rely on his own resource for entertainment, of course with toys. Little girl is in third grade, yet she wants company afternoons and on Saturday of every day and week. Where have I failed?"

"My neighbor says I should teach them to amuse themselves. That I am well aware of, but how? That is the question on which I would like something specific. Can you give me the specific help, I would greatly appreciate specific rather than general suggestions."

Answer: Perhaps you can persuade the girl to read to the three-year-old child, liberally praising her, even giving her rewards to do so.

Now, when you are with the little child alone, set a clock where you can see it, and make up your mind that you are going to read or pretend to read for fifteen minutes, say to begin with. On beginning tell the child you are going to be busy now until the clock hand gets here (show the child where it is) and that you will not an-

that time. Then, no matter how much he cries or begs, stand by your resister him nor play with him during solve. Once he knows you will not amuse him he will learn to amuse himself, provided, of course, he has simple blocks and toys.

When he creates something, make a great ado about it. By and by extend your "busy" periods to more length. I know this will be hard for you to do, but if you are able to map out such a program and stick by it you will get results.

A good many children over three or four do not know how to amuse themselves. While it is desirable for them to spend much time at play with other children of their age, there are some times when the child is and ought to be alone. It is well to read a great deal to him then, but he should learn many ways of self-amusement. Provide ample materials, such as clay, crayons, paste, scissors, hammer, nails, saw and if possible, a work bench, and set some definite periods aside for yourself when you are "too busy" to help him. Be sure to express strong appreciation of his inventions and creations. If you do not do too much for the toddler he naturally will learn to find enjoyment alone for hours at a time. It is the mother who does her own work, who is least likely, as a rule, to do too much to amuse her child. Fortunately, she does not have time to spoil him.

Editor's Note: Two pamphlets by Dr. Myers may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Garry C. Myers, in care of Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Punishments and Rewards" and "Fear."

Gladys Glad on Beauty

AMERICA'S FOREMOST BEAUTY

RIGHT FOODS TAKE PLACE OF MEDICINE

"Dear Miss Glad: When I was a youngster my mother always used to dose me with sulphur and molasses in the spring. I'd like to take this tonic now, but cannot seem to find out just how it is made. Can you advise me?"

If you eat the correct foods, especially greens and fruits, if you modify your diet with attention to better elimination, you will have no need of sulphur and molasses or any like preparation. However, to make the sulphur and molasses mixture, place about one ounce of plain sulphur in a container, and pour over it a quart of molasses. Then stir the ingredients continuously until they form a smooth, even mixture. This mixture should be taken in tablespoon doses three times a day. The modern substitute for the sulphur and molasses mixture is sulphur and cream of tartar, which may be purchased in the form of lozenges in any drug store.

"Dear Miss Glad: I've been following the reducing instructions contained in your booklet on "The New Figure" and as a result have lost a gratifying number of inches from my hips and bust. My ankles, however, refuse to respond very satisfactorily, and are still too plump. Do you think that some sort of massage would help to hasten the reduction of my ankles?"

Massage will indeed help to hasten the removal of the fatty tissues from your ankles. Most reducing machines are based on the principle that massage breaks up fatty tissues. Begin the massage at the instep. Grasp the tissues, and knead and pinch them deeply. Encircle the ankle with both hands, so that the thumbs meet in front, and press strongly with your fingers, working slowly upward. Then slap the ankles briskly with your hands, to beat up the circulation in the surface tissues. It is best to apply a bit of cold cream to the ankles before beginning the massage, to prevent any irritation to the skin. You may also try applying a solution of eight ounces of alcohol into which two squares of gummed camphor have been dissolved. Pat the solution on the ankles several times a day. As this lotion is drying to the skin, it is advisable to apply a bit of cold cream after its use.

"Dear Miss Glad: Almost every morning, when I awake, I find that some sort of a crust has formed on my eyelids, around the lashes. What causes this unpleasant condition? What is the best method of removing the crusts? And how can I prevent their reappearance?"

I should judge, from your description, that you are afflicted with trachoma, which is commonly known as "granulated eyelids." The crusts that accumulate on the lids can best be soaked off with a weak solution of bicarbonate of soda. Use a small pad of absorbent cotton, and lave the weak bicarbonate of soda solution gently over the tightly-closed eyes, until the crusts have been entirely removed. However, trachoma is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the eye, and you should not attempt to treat the condition yourself. I would advise you to consult a competent eye specialist or physician about it as soon as possible. The eyes are far too precious to be submitted to the unskilled treatments of an amateur.

The Child Is Your Teacher
Greatest of All
Your Reproach and Your Guide

By MARSHALL MASLIN

We do not teach. We are taught. You do not teach a child. A child teaches you.

You cannot teach a flower to burst through the dark earth and grow toward the light and bloom. It gives you, even though faintly, a lesson in the mystery of life.

You may teach a friendly puppy to do tricks. He teaches you more. He teaches something about love and kindness and a loyal, uncritical affection.

Very often, when we think we are teaching, we are not teaching at all but studying out lessons.

So it is with a child, the greatest of all Teachers among men and women.

You say to a child, "Learn!" The child whispers, "Learn from me!"

You say to a child, "Study your history lesson!" The child replies, "All history is in me. Study me."

You say to a child, "Do what is right!" The child responds, "Set me a proper example. If I must not lie, then do not lie to me. If I must stand straight, you stand straight, too."

If I should be happy, let you be happier still. Watch your tongue, watch your temper, watch your thoughts, watch your wishes, your hopes, your ambitions, your emotions. And thus, if you would teach me, you must first learn from me that deeper wisdom I must accept and ape and make a part of my own self. I am your teacher, though you may not know it."

So a child, or even the thought of a child, of a young thing coming onto this earth and growing here, is the Greatest of All Teachers in this world.

He is your reproach, he is your example, he is your guide. Fearing he will follow the lesser part of you, he educates you. In the older sense of that word, he Leads Out from you the better part of your being. He is your loving friend, but he is also your stern attendant, and he will not let you falter. All pedagogy is in him—let him teach you!

Dentist: "Where is that aching tooth?"

Theater Usher: "Balcony, first row to the right."

WEEK OF MAY 31

The week of May 31st begins in Michigan with temperatures below the seasonal normal as a result of the passage of a low pressure area that will bring in cold air from the northwest. Strictly speaking, this coolness comes from the higher layers of air directly over the low pressures but these currents will not break through only in the weak places, which, in this particular case will be to the north and west of the "low." The rotation of the earth will gradually bring this cool center south and east over the lake region at the beginning of this week.

Immediately after the beginning of June, about Monday or Tuesday, the temperatures will again be on the upgrade. Increasing humidity with rising temperatures may generate thunder storms in some parts of the state. With these activities will come generous rains, especially in local sections. Also we are expecting that during Tuesday and Wednesday the winds will increase in force, probably ranging as high as 20 to 25 miles per hour, and locally even higher for a short period.

The last half of this week is expected to be mostly fair with temperatures somewhat below the normal for this time of year. In fact, we look for a continuation of downward trends in the temperature until about or after the middle of next week in Michigan.

Weather and Complexion

The weather is blamed for many things and gets credit for a few. Carl Weeks in a magazine article tells us that the weather has much to do with the selling of cosmetics. In hot weather, he says, a woman will often powder her face four times offener per day and multiplying this by 20,000,000, makes some difference in the complexion of the complexion business.

Dinner Stories

The Money Changers

Cohen and his family sat down to dinner on Sunday. To his three boys Cohen said: "Now, children, which of you would want a nickel instead of meat for dinner?"

Each of the three decided in favor of the cash settlement, so Mrs. Cohen put the meat away. Then she brought in the pie and put it on the table.

"Now, my children," inquired Cohen, "How many of you want a nickel's worth of pie?"

At a prayer meeting held in the backwoods of Rhode Island, testimonies were requested, and a very old woman tottered to her feet.

"I want ter tell this blessed company," her voice quavered, "that I have rheumatiz in my back, and rheumatiz in my legs, and rheumatiz in my arms, but I have been upheld and comforted by the beautiful Bible verse, 'Grin and bear it!'"

Don't Ask Questions

A man was invited to a Sunday dinner. He was asked to offer a prayer of thanks. As he didn't know what to say, he saw the minister's little daughter going by so he said to her, "What does your papa say when he sits down at the table to eat?"

"Go easy on the butter, kids, its 50 cents a pound," replied the little girl.

From the Ground Up

"Yes," said the self-made man, "I was left without a mother and father at nine months, and ever since I've had to battle along for myself."

"How did you manage to support yourself at nine months?"

"I crawled to a baby show and won the first prize. That was the way I started."

Knew His Berries

Roy: "Papa, what kind of berries are those?"

Father: "Blueberries, my boy."

Roy: "Blueberries! Why, papa, they're red."

Father: "Yes; but only while they are green."

The Judgement of Vulcan

BY LEE FOSTER HARTMAN
One of O. Henry Memorial Award Selections

Farquharson must indeed have parted with his reason to have attempted that grotesque sally. Listening to Wadakimba's tale, I picturing to Wadakimba's tale, I picture, heedless of bruises and burns, scrambling up that difficult and perilous ascent, and hurling his ridiculous blasphemy into the flares of smoke and steam that issued from that vast caldron lit by subterranean fires. At its simmering the whole island trembled. A mere whiff of the monster's breath and he would have been snuffed out. According to Wadakimba, the end had indeed come in that fashion. It was as if the mountain had given a deep sigh. The blast had carried away solid rock. A sheet of flame had licked the spot where Farquharson had been hurled headlong, and he was not.

Wadakimba, viewing all this from afar, had ventured to the scene of the tragedy. He had picked up Farquharson's scorched helmet, which had been blown off to some distance, and he also exhibited a pair of binoculars washed down by the tide of lava, scarred and twisted by the heat, from which the lenses had melted away.

Major Stanleigh and his wife deferred their departure for England until their niece should be properly married to Joyce. At Eleanor's wish, it was a very simple affair, and as Joyce's bride she was as eager to be off to his rubber-plantation in Malduna as he was to set her up there as mistress of his household. I had agreed to give them passage on the Sylph, since the next sailing of the mail-boat would have necessitated a further fortnight's delay.

In the cabin that evening at dinner, when the two of them deigned to take polite cognizance of my existence, I announced to Joyce that I proposed to hug the island pretty close during the night. It would save considerable time.

Evening had fallen when we came up on deck. Joyce bethought himself of some cigars in his stateroom and went back. For the moment I was alone with his wife by the rail, watching the stars beginning to prick through the darkening sky.

"You may think it unfeeling of me," she began, quite abruptly, "but all this past trouble of mine, now that it is ended, I have completely dismissed. Already it begins to seem like a horrid dream."

"Perhaps you understand," she went on, after a pause, "that I have not told my husband. But I have not deceived him. He knows that I was once married, and that the man is no longer living. He does not wish to know more."

It was after midnight. The Sylph came about, with sails trembling, and lost headway. Suddenly she vibrated from stem to stern, and with a soft grating sound that was unmistakable came the rest. We were grounded in what should have been clear water, with the forest-clad shore of Muloa lying close off to port.

The helmsman turned to me with a look of silly fright on his face, as the wheel revolved useless in his hands. We had shelved with scarcely a jar sufficient to disturb those sleeping below, but in a twinkling Jackson, the mate, appeared on deck in his pajamas.

"What do you make of this?" he exclaimed, as I called for the lead.

"It's the volcano we have to thank for this," was my conjecture. Its recent activity has caused some displacement of the sea bottom."

There was nothing to do but to wait for the tide to make and lift the vessel clear. It would be a matter of three or four hours. I dismissed the helmsman; and the watch forward, taking advantage of the respite from duty, were soon recumbent in attitudes of heavy sleep.

Alone, I paced back and forth—countless soft-footed miles, it seemed through interminable hours.

Suddenly a soft thump against the side of the schooner, followed by a scrambling noise, made me turn round. The dripping, bedraggled figure of a man in a sleeping suit mounted a rope ladder that hung over the side, and paused, grasping the rail.

Just then the sooty vapors above the edged maw of the volcano were rent by a flare of crimson, and in the fleeting instant of unnatural daylight I beheld Farquharson, barefooted, and dripping with sea-water, confronting me with a hardonian, triumphant smile.

"It was not your intention to stop at Muloa," he observed, dryly, for the plight of the schooner was obvious. "We'll float clear with the tide," I muttered.

"But in the meantime"—there was something almost menacing in his deliberate pause—"I have the pleasure of this little call upon you."

To get rid of him, to obliterate the horrible fact that he still existed in the flesh, was the instinctive impulse of my staggered brain. But the peril of discovery, the chance that those sleeping below might waken and hear us, held me in a vise of indecision.

"If I could bring myself to reproach you, captain," he went on, ironically polite, "I might protest that your last visit to this island savored of a too-inquisitive intrusion. You'll pardon my frankness, I had convinced you and Major Stanleigh that Farquharson was dead. To the world at large that should have sufficed. That I choose to remain alive is my own affair. Your sudden return to Muloa—with a lady—would have upset everything, if Fate and that inspired fool of a Malay had not happily intervened. But now, surely, there can be no doubt that I am dead?"

"I can promise you that," I attempted to assure him in weak, sepulchral tones. "And now, if you like, I'll put you ashore in the small boat. You must be getting chilly in that wet sleeping suit."

"As a matter of fact I am, and I was wondering if you would not offer me something to drink."

"You shall have a bottle to take along," I promised, with alacrity, but he demurred.

"There is no sociability in that. And you seem very lonesome here—stuck for two more hours at least. Come, captain, fetch your bottle and we will share it together."

I contemplated him helplessly. There was no alternative but to fall in with whatever mad caprice might seize his brain. If I opposed him, it would lead to high and querulous words; and the hideous fact of his presence there—of his mere existence—I was bound to conceal at all hazards.

I went stealthily down into the cabin, where I secured a box of cigars and the first couple of bottles that my hands laid hold of in the locker.

"Now this is something like," he purred, watching like a cat my every motion as I set the glasses forth and guardedly drew the cork.

His disengaged hand had fallen to the side of the chair, and I now observed in dismay that a scarf belonging to Joyce's wife had been left lying in the chair, and that his fingers were ostensibly twisting the silken fringe.

He lifted his glass and drank it off, then thrust it out to be refilled. "Life as the world lives it—bah!" he dismissed it with the scorn of one who counts himself divested of all illusions. "Life would be an infernal bore if it were not for its paradoxes. Now you, Captain Barnaby, would never dream that in becoming dead of the world—in other people's belief—I have become intensely alive. There are opened up infinite possibilities."

"I'm a plain man of the sea," I rejoined, bluntly. "I take life as it comes."

He smiled derisively, drained his glass, and held it out again. "But you have your secrets, rather clumsily guarded, to be sure—"

"What secrets?" I cried out, goaded almost beyond endurance.

"There is no reason why we should quarrel," he went on. "But there are times which call for plain speaking. Major Stanleigh is probably hardly aware of just what he said to me under a little artful questioning. It seems that a lady who—shall we say, whom we both have the honor of knowing?—is in love. Love, mark you. It is always interesting to see that flower bud twice from the same stalk. However, one naturally defers to a lady, especially when one is very much in her way. Place aux dames, eh? Exit poor Farquharson! You must admit that his was an altruistic soul. Well, she has her freedom—if only to barter it for a new bondage. Shall we drink to the happy future of that romance?"

A feeling of utter loathing went over me. I set my glass down. "It would be a more serviceable compliment to the lady in question if I strangled you on the spot," I muttered boldly.

"But you are forgetting that I am already dead." He threw his head back as if vastly amused, then lurched forward and held out his glass a little unsteadily to be refilled.

He gave me a quick, evil look. "Besides, the noise might disturb your passengers."

He drained his glass and sat staring into it, his head drooping a little forward. The heavy wine was beginning to have its effect upon him.

"You seem very much distressed," he observed, with ironic concern. "One might think you were actually sheltering these precious love-birds. . . . Love-birds—" I caught the word feebly from his lips, spoken as if in a daze. The glass hung dripping from his relaxed grasp.

It was a crucial moment in which his purpose seemed to waver and die in his clouded brain.

I leaned forward to take the glass which was all but slipping from his hand, when Lakalatcha flamed with redoubled fury. It was as if the mountain had suddenly bared its fiery heart to the heavens, and a muffled detonation reached my ears.

Farquharson straightened up with a jerk and scanned the smoking peak. He watched its graceful play as if hypnotized, and began babbling to himself in an incoherent prattle. All his faculties seemed suddenly awake, but riveted solely upon the heavy laboring of the mountain. When I ventured to urge him back to shore he made no protest, but followed me into the boat. As I pushed off and took up the oars he had eyes for nothing but the flaming cone.

"The fire upon the altar is lit," he addressed me, oracularly, while the fanatic light of a devotee burned in his eyes. "Shall we ascend and prepare the sacrifice?"

I leaned over the oars, panting from exertions, indifferent to his rhapsody.

He leaped over the gunwhale and strode up the beach. Again he struck his priest-like attitude and invoked me to follow.

"The fire upon the altar waits," he repeated, solemnly. Suddenly he broke into a shrill laugh and ran like a deer in the direction of the forest that stretched up the slopes of the mountain.

My first glance about the desk had been one of relief to note that Joyce and his wife were not there, although the commotion of getting under sail must have awakened them. A breeze had sprung up which would prove a fair wind as soon as the Sylph stood clear of the point. The mate gave a grunt of satisfaction when at length the schooner began to drip her bow and lay over to the task. Leaving him in charge, I started to go below, when suddenly Mrs. Joyce, fully dressed, confronted me.

"You have been awake long?" I ventured to ask.

"Too long," she answered significantly, with her face turned away, looking down into the water. She had taken my arm and drawn me toward the rail. Now I felt her fingers tighten convulsively. In the droop of her head and the tense curve of her neck I sensed her mad impulse which the dark water suggested.

"Mrs. Joyce!" I remonstrated, sharply.

"What other way out is there?" "Never that," I said, shortly. I urged her forward again. "Is your husband asleep?"

"Thank God, yes!" "Then you have been awake—"

"For over an hour," she confessed, and I detected the shudder that went over her body.

"The man is mad—" "But I am married to him."

"When we reach Malduna—" I began, but the words were only torture.

"I cannot—cannot go on. Take me back!—to that island! Let me live abandoned—or rather die—"

For what seemed an interminable time we paced the deck together while Lakalatcha flamed farther and farther astern. Her words came in fitful snatches as if spoken in a delirium, and at times she would pause and grip the rail to stare back, wild-eyed, at the receding island.

Suddenly she started, and in a sort of blinding, noon-day blaze I saw her face blanch with horror. It was as if at that moment the heavens had cracked asunder and the night had fallen away in chaos. Turning, I saw the cone of the mountain liftlink skyward in fragments—and saw no more, for the blinding vision remained seared upon the retina of my eyes. Across the water, slower paced, came the dread concussion of sound.

"Good God! It's carried away the whole island!" I heard the mat's voice bellowing above the cries of the men. The Sylph scudded before the approaching storm of fire re-descending from the sky. . . .

The first gray of the dawn disclosed Mrs. Joyce still standing by the rail, her hand nestling within the arm of her husband, indifferent to the heavy grayish dust that fell in benediction upon her like a sleet shower of snow.

The island of Muloa remains today a charred cinder lapped about by the blue Pacific. At times gulls circle over its blackened and desolate surface devoid of every vestige of life. From the squat, truncated mass of Lakalatcha, shorn of half its lordly height, a feeble wisp of smoke still issues to the breeze, as if Vulcan, tired of his forge, had banked its fire before abandoning it.

(The End)

Power Gained by Tackle Blocks

The general rule for the power gained by tackle blocks is that the pull on the rope is multiplied by the number of ropes lifting the weight or the movable pulley. Thus a single block if fixed has but one rope lifting the weight, and no power is gained. If the single block is a movable one and the weight is attached to it, there are two ropes lifting on the weight and the force is twice the pull on the rope. In a double block, if there are two ropes lifting on the weight, the force is double the pull on the rope; while if three ropes lift on the weight, the pull is trebled, and so on.

The Modern Dance

Cap: "What Yuh mean to say, Officer O'Brien, that this fellow choked a woman to death in front of 200 people, and nobody interfered?"

Cop: "Yeah! Happened in a cabaret, and everybody thought they was dancing."

BO BROADWAY

By Joseph Van Haalte

New York—in Tammany Town, as in most places, hotel bills are due when rendered; and Mine Host in the metropolis has fallen into the engaging custom of rendering his bill every three days, with a "please remit immediately" clause euphemistically woven in the margin.

The assistant manager of a large mid-town caravansaria ordered the hotel room of a Montana millionaire locked the other day because the Worthy Brother was delinquent at the cashier's desk.

The man from Montana, with all the money, thereupon proceeded to register disapproval, at the top of his voice, which I think was very much out of order.

The mere possession of a little money doesn't relieve a man of the necessity of being just and fair—when he's wrong, of bowing to the inevitable and smothering his chagrin.

WHIMS OF THE FAMOUS

The quaint old fashion of asking celebrities who they'd rather be if they weren't what they are, is not outworn.

Some Busy Baby went among movie stars recently and found that if Adolphe Menjou weren't a screen performer he'd probably be a designer of men's clothes. May Brian would like to be Charles Augustus Lindbergh's wife. If Joe Brown weren't Joe Brown he'd crave to be Babe Ruth.

Ronald Colman wishes he'd been born an English country gentleman. Anita Page nurtures the belief that life would have done its best for her had she been cast in the role of newspaper artist. Betty Compton would like to swap places with Jascha Heifitz, the lad who plays the fiddle by the grace of God. Mary Astor thinks Fate played a mean trick on her by not endowing her with the talents of an architect.

And when it came to John Barrymore's turn, Lionel's brother said: "If I were not John Barrymore I should like to be a Japanese fisherman."

Isn't that whimsical?

DIPLOMACY

Years ago, when The Pastor was still wearing three-cornered-pants, someone ask old Joe Choate, the statesman, who he'd rather be if he couldn't have been Joe Choate. And Josephus replied:

"Mrs. Choate's second husband."

LOFTY OBSERVATION

Al Smith's Empire State building was opened to the public the other day. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was there and Al and Jimmy Walker. And they called each other Al and Frank and Jimmy, and everything rolled along as smoothly as the funeral of a prominent man.

Later in the afternoon John Q. Public and his wife were permitted to take the elevator to the topmost level of the Empire State building and look over the surrounding country.

It was a foggy afternoon. Two thousand "Constituents" paid a dollar apiece to go to the top and peer into one of the loveliest fogs that every blanketed Tiger Town.

"Gee," grumbled one 'Constituent.' "I waited in line an hour, coughed up a buck—an' they ain't nothin' to see but fawg."

"Cheer up," replied his friend. "When better fawgs is sold, Al Smith'll bet 'em."

"ART" AND FREAKS

The Empire State building weighs 300,000 tons, cost $2,000,000 and is the tallest thing of its kind on earth. It's impressive because of its height—just as a giant is interesting because of the distance between his cranium and the floor. But giants are found among the freaks in the circus sideshow while structures like the Empire State building, pass muster in the modern cock-eyed dispensation, as "Art."

TALL ACCOMPLISHMENT

One time the Giant and The Dwarf in a circus sideshow had a falling out and stopped speaking as they passed by.

"He ain't in my class," confided The Dwarf, to a newspaper friend. "I'm an arthrit. I kin thing; I kind danth; I kin play de banjo. What kin dat damgiant do? Nuttin', except hang hith hat higher 'n anybody eith!"

CONVALESCENT

The society editor of the Jewel (Kan.) Republican, writing:

"Mrs. Leonidas W. Van Quentin, who took up horseback riding last Tuesday, was able to take a short motor ride Sunday afternoon."

No Friends

Agent (to actor): "Then we'll consider that settled."

Actor: "But—er—what about the contract?"

Agent: "Oh, that's all right. A verbal contract'll do."

Actor: "Laddie, listen. The last time I had a verbal contract I drew a verbal salary."

Model Manners

"Children, I hope you peeled the apples before eating them?"

"Yes, mother, dear."

"What have you done with the peelings?"

"Oh! we ate them."

Sleeping Bear Point Coast Guard Station To Move Over Dune

Sleeping Bear coast guard station, which for 30 years has stood isolated on the tip of Sleeping Bear point, a mile and a half west of Glen Haven, beyond the high sand dune, will be removed within the next two months to the inner side of the point in the shelter of Glen Arbor bay.

Capt. Fred Marsh, keeper of the station, has received instructions to be ready for the removal at a moment's notice. Living quarters and boat houses will be moved over the dune, nearly a mile, to their new location. The lookout tower will be erected on top of the dune, which is 300 feet high.

Resurrection Plant

The Genuine "Rose of Jericho"

These peculiar plants are found among the pines and cedars of Palestine. When you set the plant it will have the appearance of a ball of tightly folded leaves, dry and dead. Put it in water and it will open up its handsome fern-like foliage, turn green, and begin to grow in about twenty minutes. Take it out of the water and it curls up, turns brown and becomes dead again. It is capable of apparently dying and coming to life again repeatedly, and even from the dead or dormant state for years and re-awakened directly upon being placed in water. It is an interesting, curious and most beautiful house plant. Its fern-like foliage, of very agreeable fragrance. If you want a "table fern" that will prove satisfactory under all conditions, don't fail to get one of these marvels of plant life. Grows and thrives in a shallow bowl of water, and is greatly admired by everyone.
