Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hart and daughter Prudence, and Henry Hart, wife and son of Detroit were week end visitors of Mr. and Mrs. John Terrey.

School meeting in the rural districts will be held next Monday evening. Most of them at eight fast time. Better go and see what your schools are doing.

As predicted, one of the biggest crowds ever, was in this locality for the week end. Our stores were open most of the day to accommodate the trade and all did a big business.

We surely enjoyed Editor Wood's broadcast Monday. After hearing all the good things our county editors have spoken we'll "tell the world" to pick from theirs the best and Gobles will be well described.

Barber's Bathing Beach entertained the greatest crowd ever on the Fourth, both day and evening and all should be pleased as they saw two great ball games, danced to good music and had a real time.

Mr. and Mrs. John Howard of Rock Island, Ill., and T. G. Breen and daughter of Grand Rapids were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eo Cleveland. Margaret Anderson of Benton Harbor is visiting them this week.

Messrs. Reigle, Dorgan, Wauchek and Riley are home from a week's fishing in northern Michigan and report narrow escapes from bear, deer, and other dangers of the wild and woolly and probably the community will never recover from the fish stories.

A. W. Freeding and family, Walter Freeding and family, Augie Hansen and wife, Wilford Calm wife and son, William Lau, wife and daughter, all of Chicago, were week end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Freeding at Lake Mill. The former has purchased four fine lots in Milwood and plans to build a fine country home.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank all who so kindly assisted at the fire the morning of July 5, and for all other assistance.

Ed Messinger and Family.

Barns Burn

The large barn, chicken house and out buildings of Ed. Messinger burned Sunday morning with most of contents, but all live stock was saved. While a reasonable insurance was carried, it means a real loss as the barn was larger than usual. How the fire started is unknown as there was no sign of fire just before the flames burst forth.

The barn of El Carter's burned Monday night and a horse and a cow burned before the same was discovered.

Notice

Due to the heavy demand of the Canning Factory, the pumps are unable to maintain proper fire protection and allow free sprinkling of lawns at the same time. Time allowed for sprinkling shall be 6 to 8 a. m. and 5 to 8 p. m. Penalty for violation: Water service will be shut off and a fine of $1.00 must be paid before water service be continued.

By order of Village Council.

High Importance Still Attached to the Seal

We still preserve something of the reverence paid to sealing in the oriental lands, from whence we got the custom. For instance, when the lord chancellor in England, or the secretary of state in Canada affixes the "great seal" to a statute, a commission, or any other official document, it becomes something which has all the force of an inviolable law. They had that rule in China unnumbered years ago. The great seal of a document, thrust in a man's face, brought him to his knees straightway. It represented the supreme unassailable power—the power that was as nearly divine as could be in this world. Sometimes to this day commanders of ships or fleets are sent off to sea, under sealed orders not to be opened excepting under certain conditions, or on a certain day. It is well understood that to break the seals in disobedience to command would bring the utmost disgrace upon the disobedient officer. The sealed orders become a sacred charge, an honor conferred upon an officer, whose obedience and honesty is confided in by his sovereign, a charge to be respected and defended unto death itself.—Montreal Family Herald.

STATE GUARDS DANGER AREAS FOR BATHERS

Inspected water, life guards, roped off dangerous areas and regularly cleaned beaches. These are some of the ways the state protects the hundreds of thousands who use the bathing beaches at the state parks.

By using these simple precautions the number of accidents at the park beaches have been kept unusually low despite the fact that these beaches are used by millions of people annually.

The cooperation of the State Department of Health has been asked by the Parks Division in inspecting the water at the beaches of all state parks, to make certain that the water and beach are in a sanitary condition. If it should be found that conditions at any particular beach are injurious to health, the beach will be immediately closed until the conditions are remedied.

Life guards will be employed regularly during the summer at the beaches at five of the state parks: Island Lake at Brighton, Bay City Park at Bay City, Grand Haven Park at Grand Haven, Holland Park at Holland and Walter J. Hayes in the Irish Hills.

Park superintendents at other parks have been authorized to employ life guards when there are large crowds at the beaches. The life guards this year will wear uniform suits provided by the state.

Oil Field Extended

Expansion of the Isabelle-Midland oil fields eastward, which was given its first market impetus a few weeks ago with the striking of a big producer on the Hornick No. 1, nearly three miles east of the proven area, was furthered recently with the drilling in of a 250-barrel producer on the Skinner No. 1, located in section 9, Greendale.

The Skinner well is three-quarters of a mile west of the Hornick. It brings added strength to the contention that vast oil deposits are located beyond the limits of the "old" Chippewa-Greendale pool. The latter pool has been the location point of the bulk of the oil drilling in the Central Michigan field.

Resurrection Plant

The Genuine "Rose of Jericho"

These peculiar plants are found among the pines and cedars of Palestine. When yet get the plant it will have the appearance of a ball of tightly folded leaves, dry and dead. Put it in water and it will open up its handsome fern-like foliage, turn green and begin to grow in about twenty minutes. Take it out of the water and it curls up, turns brown and becomes dead again. It is capable of apparently dying and coming to life again repeatedly, and will keep in its dead or dormant state for years and reawaken directly upon being placed in water. It is an interesting, curious and most beautiful house plant with fine fern-like leaves of very agreeable fragrance. If you want a "table fern" that will prove satisfactory under all conditions, don't fail to get one of these marvels of plant life. Grow it in a shallow bowl of water, and it is greatly admired by everyone.

WAY OF VIOLATOR GROWING HARD

A gradual but steady increase in the penalties inflicted on conservation law violators during the past 10 years is indicated in comparative figures issued by the law enforcement division of the conservation department.

While in the fiscal year 1921 the average fine imposed on conservator law violators in Michigan was $11.82, the average penalty has gradually increased until it was $16.46 last year.

These figures would seem to indicate that the conservation law violator is not worried particularly about the punishment, according to the law enforcement division. The number of arrests and convictions has grown despite the ever increasing penalties.

In 1921 there were 2,530 convictions in the state. The division reports a total of $29,913.30 paid that year in fines. The next year it had risen to $28,111 convictions and $30,993.70 in fines. This increase was gradual until 1925 and 1926 when there was a slight drop in the number of convictions. However, despite this fact, the amount imposed in fines continued to increase in 1929 when the aggregate sum fell from $60,236 to $56,009. However, last year it rose again to $67,497.48.

Figures for the first six months of this year show that the 1931 arrests and fines probably will exceed all previous figures.

Defeat of Bills Saves Industry Many Millions

The Michigan Manufacturers' Association has made a digest of the legislation introduced into the last session of the Michigan legislature, affecting commerce and industry in Michigan.

"Most of the measures listed were defeated; a few of them were so amended as to remove some very burdensome features," it says.

"The approximate cost of these measures, had they been passed, would have saddled on to Michigan industries and Michigan business an increased cost of $271,675,000.

"The rural districts received more from the 1931 legislature than from any other legislature in the last 12 years. The passage of the McNitt-Holbeck bill, providing for the elimination of township road taxes over a five-year period starting in with the elimination of $2,000,000 in the coming year, will benefit rural property and reduce taxes to a maximum of 1 per cent a year. The Michigan Manufacturers' Association joined with the Michigan State Farm Bureau in urging the passage of this bill.

"The Dykstra-Wreford bill provides about $16,000,000 for distribution to the cities of the state for the building and maintenance of trunk line highways, and for the widening of streets, thus relieving city property to this extent.

"No new forms of taxation were added, excepting the malt tax which does not bear heavily upon the general business of the state. There were some bills also fees, the most burdensome of which, perhaps, was the Green truck bill, which adds $1 per hundredweight to the contract carriers of the state. The constitutionality of this bill, however, is doubtful and it will be tested in due time in the courts.

Point Betsie Light Will Get Special Installation

The light at Point Betsie has been selected as one of the three lights on Lake Michigan to have a specially synchronized fog signal installation. The signal will be so arranged as to synchronize with the radio signal, so that the difference in the time of reception on the boats will make it possible to ascertain the distance from the point to the ship.

Chicago and Manitowoc both have this arrangement of light. It is a new feature and in a test recently made out of 144 trials there were no miscalculations. The test of the Point Betsie signal will be made this week.

Road Work Pays Million

Nearly $1,000,000 in wages is being paid to state highway workers in 15 western counties of Michigan this season. In this district, taking in Mecosta, Newaygo, Oceana, Muskegon, Montcalm, Ottawa, Kent, Ionia, Allegan, Barry, VanBuren, Kalamazoo, Berrien, Cass and St. Joseph, highway contracts for roads and bridges this year run to between $1,500,000 and $3,000,000, and of this total one-half goes for wages of men employed on the jobs.

A contract will soon be let for the extension of North Division avenue in Grand Rapids. This job will run approximately $625,000.

50 WARDENS TO LOSE GOOD JOBS

Reorganization of the various divisions of the conservation department because of lack of funds will be effected within a month, according to Director George R. Hogarth. Then plan, which calls for a reduction of between 40 and 50 game wardens, was approved by the conservation commission at its meeting last week in Marquette.

The wardens to be dropped from the payroll will be selected from among those in counties now having two or more, Hogarth said. Under the reorganization all field workers will be centered in one division, which will be headed by H. R. Savre, chief forest fire warden. In the past, there have been separate groups representing the forest fire division, the game division, the lands department and the law enforcement division.

P. S. Lovejoy, now chief of the game division, is to have charge of co-ordinating the activities of the various departments to be centralized. Hugh Green, chief game warden, is to be fitted into the new operating scheme later.

The commission has ordered all division heads to keep within their legislative appropriations, even though a drastic reduction of employees is necessary. Reductions in revenue ordered by the legislature and new activities will cut the department's available funds by about $650,000 for the next two years.

Salvation Army Will Build Hall

Plans have been made for a permanent hall for the Salvation Army at Charlotte by the advisory board consisting of M. H. DeFoe, D. F. Munger, George H. Spencer, Dr. H. A. Anderson, M. J. Krieg, Dr. H. A. Moyer, John Richey, E. H. Chapelle, Ernest G. Pray, L. C. Benedict, Vine B. Peters, Lawrence Dodge, A. A. Houghtaling, Mrs. B. F. Simpson and Mrs. W. J. Hauenstein.

The board decided to sponsor an Eaton county campaign on a dollar basis. It is proposed to organize every township in the county. Quotas set for the county are: Charlotte, $2,000; Grand Ledge, $500; Eaton Rapids, $300, and the county at large, $2,200.

The proposed hall would be known as the Eaton County Salvation Army Memorial hall, to be built in recognition of the "overseas" service of the organization.

Builds Sea-Hop Plane

Detroit Aircraft Corporation announces gross sales of $81,884 for May. Among the planes sold were two Lockheed Orions, the latest Lockheed development in high speed transport, and a Lockheed Air Express with special streamlined landing gear.

Miss Laura Ingalls, well known eastern aviatrix, has purchased an Air Express for her proposed trans-Atlantic flight this summer. The plane will be completely equipped with the necessary instruments for blind flying, and will carry extra tankage to provide adequate fuel capacity for the ocean hop.

Officers Are Named For Electric Line

John F. Collins, of Jackson, recently named receiver for the Eastern Michigan-Toledo Railroad company, once the most prosperous line in the state, announced the appointment of the following men as officials of the line:

Manager H. D. Sanderson; secretary-treasurer, O. H. Degener; assistant secretary-treasurer, C. C. Dancer; auditor of freight accounts, J. B. King; auditor of passenger receipts, A. T. Margwats; traffic manager, G. W. Quackenbush; freight claim agent, S. S. Major, all of Jackson, and superintendent of equipment, R. C. Taylor, of Albion.

These officials hold similar positions under the Michigan Electric Shares corporation. There will be no change in passenger and freight service on the line at present, Receiver Collins stated.

Industrial Leaders Are Honorary Alumni

Four industrial leaders were made honorary alumni of University of Michigan at the annual alumni luncheon. Dr. Alexander Grant Ruthven, president of the university, made the announcement that Harry B. Earhardt of Ann Arbor, president of the White Star Refining company, of Detroit; James Inglis, president of the American Blower company, of Detroit; Ernest F. Lloyd, retired manufacturer and Francis C. McMath, Detroit, financier and honorary member of the staff of the astronomy department had been recognized by the board regents.

Dr. Ruthven said the four honorary alumni have given the university "advice and moral support when needed."

Adrian Water Board Profits Are $18,321

The annual report of the Adrian city water board, shows a net profit of $18,321 for the year ending March 31, 1931. The gross profit was $25,890, but of this amount $7,483 was used to pay principal and interest on the water board's bonds. During last year $26,090 was spent on extensions and other improvements to the system, and at the present time a 10-inch main is being laid on Lansing avenue to give additional service to manufacturing plants.

Holland Bluegill Pond Is Restocked

The bluegill rearing pond near New Groningen on US31 has been stocked by officials of state hatcheries. The bass pond will be stocked later in the month. These ponds are maintained by the Holland Fish and Game club and between 200,000 and 300,000 fingerlings annually are planted in Black lake and other local waters.

Mother Bird Usurps Uncle Sam's Rights

Ethel Kymer of Grand Rapids was surprised to find a bird nest in the mailbox near her mother's cottage, near Jenison Park. She told her mother, Mrs. J. L. Kymer, who promptly relinquished ownership of the box to the bird and gave orders to her carrier, Gerrit Rutgers, to leave her mail in her neighbor's box until the bird had properly mothered its young.

Line Buys D. A. C. Planes

High speed, DeLuxe service will now bring air travelers from Mexico City to New York within 34 hours, according to officials of the Detroit Aircraft Corporation in announcing the sale of Lockheed equipment to Continental Airways, of Chicago. A. F. Anderson, president of the new line, states that he will operate a passenger and express run using retractable gear Lockheed Orion transports from Chicago via Columbus and Pittsburgh to Washington, D. C.

Herring Fishing Poor

Because of the extremely poor herring catches, the Grand Haven fishing fleet is laid up. Whitefish is all that is being caught off this shore.

"See here," said the angry visitor to the reporter, "what do you mean by inserting the derisive expression 'Apple sauce?' Great Scott, man, I wrote 'Applesauce!'"

EATON FAIR WILL BE DISCONTINUED

The Eaton county fair is a thing of the past, according to an announcement made recently. Arrangements have been made for the sale of the fairgrounds to the city of Charlotte for the amount of the Eaton County Agricultural society's indebtedness, which is placed at $7,630.

The West Michigan conference of Eleventh Day Adventists, with headquarters at Grand Rapids, had decided to buy the grounds, but the city council voted in favor of the purchase and the city's offer was accepted. The conference wished to purchase the grounds for the site of a permanent camp.

The grounds are being sold for less than the cost of the main exhibition building, which was $8,000. There are 54 acres in the grounds. The city has no plans with regard to their use. It is felt the location, within the city limits, would be an ideal site for the construction of an airport. The funds collected in the "save the fair" campaign will be returned to the donors.

Resort Business Brisk In Black Lake Area

A good season seems in prospect for resorts on Black lake, Cottages at the resorts and along the beach of Lake Michigan in both directions rapidly are filling up. Tourists are coming from many states, automobile license plates indicate.

Wider lake beaches are drawing bathers and picnic parties in larger numbers and the county and state parks are better equipped for larger crowds. Hotel managers at Waukago, Pine Lodge, Macatawa and other resorts are anticipating a busy season.

Oil Well Near Clare Has Strong Pressure

There was plenty of excitement in the Vernon gas and oil field when the pressure on the Carmichael oil well became so great that the pipe leading to the tanks split and the oil was released during a flow of the well.

Oil was carried high into the air and spread over a surface of 150 feet in width and carried in a line for a distance of 40 rods, covering the trees and grass of the fields with crude oil.

It is evident there is a strong gas pressure and plenty of oil in this particular basin.

She Made It—DO-X Marks the Spot

Lying serenely at anchor at the conclusion of her long-delayed trip across the South Atlantic, the giant German flying boat, DO-X, is shown above at her berth on the Potengi river, Natal, Brazil. The first party of visitors to the craft are seen climbing aboard. The huge plane made the 1,500-mile crossing from Porto Praia, Cape Verde Islands, in 15 hours and 33 minutes.

Davy Jones, Here I Come!

After 40 glorious years at sea, in which she traveled 4,000,000 miles in sailing the seven seas, the Australian steamer Wodanga was dispatched to the corner of Davy Jones' locker reserved for maritime immortals when the gallant old ship was sunk off Sydney Heads, Australia. This picture depicts the swan song of the Wodanga as its bow slips gracefully 'neath the waves at the end of its 576th voyage.

New Honors for Lindbergh

Rescuer Honored

Captain Ahrenberg, foremost Swedish flier and one of the courageous rescuers of the British Courtauld Greenland expedition, has gained the distinction of being the first non-commissioned officer to be appointed a captain in the Swedish navy. Here he is resplendent in his new naval uniform.

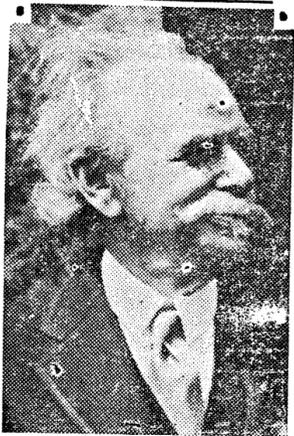

Alumnus Hughes

Back to old scenes of his college days went Charles Evans Hughes, chief justice of the United States Supreme Court, when he donned cap and gown and took part in the commencement exercises at Brown university, Providence, R. I., where he was graduated in 1881. The chief justice is shown wearing the traditional graduation attire.

Hanging a Hoax

B. P. Brown, supply pastor of the North Dallas Baptist church, Dallas, Tex., has confessed to his congregation that he had trussed himself from an electric fan in the church. Brown created a sensation when he reported that four masked men had attempted to hang him. He later said he was trying to hang himself but lost his nerve.

A LARGE DROP IN ACREAGE SHOWN ON BERRIEN CO. FARMS

The problem of how you're gonna keep 'em down on the farm is ever becoming more complicated in Berrien county farm census figures for the county released from Washington, D. C., indicates.

For the census report discloses that the number of farms in Berrien county has decreased by 421 in the five-year interval from 1925 to 1930. The acreage during that period, the report reveals, has dropped from 316,471 to 297,118. The figure for farms in 1925 was 5,911; the 1930 total is 5,290. In 1920 there were 5,443 farms in the county, comprising in all 326,690 acres.

The total value of farms, lands and listed as $44,553,401, as compared with buildings, in Berrien county for 1930 is $48,087,355 for 1925 and $44,094,039 for 1920.

The value of farm implements and buildings have increased for 1930 over 1925.

Under tenure of farms, the report discloses that 4,766 farms in Berrien county in 1930 were operated by owners as against 4,532 in 1920. In 1930 515 farms were operated by tenants and in 1920, 803. The number of farms under operation of managers also decreased in the decade from 108 to 99.

The bulk of farms in the county range from 20 to 49 and 50 to 90 acres, as was also the case in 1920.

With only corn harvested for grain and wheat excepted, selected crops in Berrien county dropped in the five years from 1924 to 1929, the report shows.

Total acreage of crop land in the county dropped from 1925 to 1930 from 217,995 acres to 204,562. Harvested land dropped something more than a thousand acres and crop failures decreased nearly 15,000 acres, indicating, according to the report, great increase in agricultural efficiency.

Dairymen Have Plans For Improved Herds

Many groups of Michigan dairymen are taking advantage of the present low prices for purebred sires and by the joint purchase of excellent animals are preparing to build up herds of high producing cows in anticipation of the inevitable upturn of milk prices.

These groups are being assisted by members of the dairy department of Michigan State College by a series of meetings held in Branch, Barry, Sanilac, Jackson, Allegan, and Mason counties. A special truck carries representative sires of three dairy breeds, and the farmers who attend the meetings are told the advantages of forming bull clubs.

By this method two, three or four dairymen co-operate in the purchase of the sire. Animals whose dams average yearly butterfat production is 400 pounds or more can be bought for prices as low as $75.

Each of the men has the use of the sire in his herd, and the group of men can easily afford to build a safety bull pen in which the animal can be kept without any danger of any person being injured. At the end of two or three years the group can trade sires with some other group, and in this way two or more animals can be obtained for the price of one.

The sires which are traded are proved animals. Their heifers can be seen, so no chance is taken on the kind of calves which will be obtained. The dairy department at the college helps the clubs in these trades and will also aid any groups to organize a club.

Grand Traverse Cherry Club Has 260 Members

Two hundred and sixty members have enrolled in the Grand Traverse Region Cherry club at Lansing. William Nash, former city clerk of Traverse City and now a hardware dealer in Lansing, is president and organizer of the club.

Not to be outdone by the friends they left behind in Traverse City and the other towns of the region, the club members have elected a queen, Mrs. Thelma Taylor Heiges, and two maids-in-waiting, Mrs. Charles Huellmantel. They will greet Miss Maxine Weaver, queen of the cherry festival, when she visits the state capital.

For Late Cultivating

The use of surface shovels has become very common, especially for the later cultivation of corn, on account of the fact that it does not cut and destroy the roots. In getting these shovels, get them wide enough so that they cover all portions of the ground by lapping past each other. You will find them very satisfactory for ordinary weeds, but do not believe that you can do anything in the cultivation of bind weeds.

Spud Growers Accept Market Challenges

Two hundred Michigan potato growers in 32 counties will accept the challenges from other states which have been invading Michigan markets and these men have planned methods to produce a crop of potatoes which they say will equal in quality any that can be grown.

This group of growers have formed a Standard Potato club which has as its purpose the demonstration that Michigan potatoes are excellent when properly grown and which includes as members only those growers which agree to use the strict methods of growing and grading that are needed to produce high quality stock.

The methods include the use of high quality seed treated to prevent disease, close planting to avoid over size and hollow tubers, early planting to permit the tubers to fully ripen, five spray applications to control blight and leaf hoppers, care in digging and handling to prevent bruising the potatoes, early digging to avoid field frost, close grading to throw out all off-grade stock, and marketing in marked packages which will tell the buyer who grew the potatoes.

The membership in the club is only limited by the grower's willingness to meet these conditions and applications can be made either through the county agricultural agent or direct to the farm crops department at Michigan State college.

Montcalm and Otsego counties have the largest membership in the club at present, but the growers in the trucking sections near Detroit are planning to enter and to grade and market their stick through a central warehouse.

Michigan Pays No Bounty on Crows

The state of Michigan does not pay a bounty on crows, the law enforcement division of the conservation department stated today as a reply to scores of letters that have been received asking for bounty money.

Recently a bill was introduced into the legislature to establish such a state bounty. The bill was not adopted. However, it apparently gave many people the impression that the state was paying a bounty and the law enforcement division is being flooded with requests for money. The number of such requests has been growing steadily for several weeks.

Ottawa and Zeeland Join to Better Hill

The city of Zeeland and the county road commission have agreed to split 50-50 on a proposition to grade and improve State-st. south, known as Shoemakers hill. The hill now is in a dangerous condition due to loose gravel from recent rains. The hill will be made of regulation width and depth. The roadway is a direct route to Hamilton via Overisel and it is planned this year to make a good gravel surface and within the coming year place a top surface of macadam. The estimate cost of the construction work is about $800.

Urges Farmers to Cut Down Wild Cherry Tree

Recommendation that the pin cherry trees be destroyed because they afford the cherry, fruit fly nesting places was made by the entomology department at Michigan State college.

Officials of the department assert that since the pin cherry, better known as the wild cherry, is not harvested on a large scale the fly easily can lay its eggs in the fruit and larvae can develop to maturity without being disturbed.

Prof. R. H. Petit, head of the department, said that first reports of the discovery of the fly this year arrived from VanBuren county this week. He recommended that cherries, which are to be washed before canning, be sprayed with a mixture consisting of two and one-half pounds of dry powdered arsenate of lead mixed with 100 gallons of water.

Ford Tries Out New Farm Plan

Henry Ford, whose mass production methods revolutionized the automobile industry, is applying new efficiency methods to the farm, it was revealed recently.

A group of Lenawee county's ancestral farms quietly purchased during the winter, are Ford's experimental agricultural laboratory.

At present, more than 100 men, employed at $5 a day for eight hours, are transforming the Ford tract into a huge farm, unbroken by line fences.

The $5-a-day farm hands and a fleet of tractors are tearing down line fences, clearing trees and bushes and installing tile ditches to give the tractors a long sweep.

An adjunct of the Ford farm plan is the establishment of small industrial plants in farming country to give the farmer employment during the winter months.

One such plant, for the manufacture of textiles, is now under construction at Rawsonville, near Ypsilanti. Similar plants, dotting the countryside and drawing farm labor from about a 22-mile radius, would greatly benefit both the farmer and manufacturer, Ford believes.

POULTRY

WORMS ARE WORST "DISEASE"
"Worm infestation," observes an Illinois pathologist, "is the most widespread of any poultry disease." He goes on to say that affected flocks are not less profitable, but also more susceptible to contagious diseases. Inasmuch as worms counteract good feeding and management, they might as well be an infectious disease so far as loss of profit goes. One might as well lose a number of fowls outright and be rid of the expense of feeding them, as to let worms sap their productive ability while they continue consuming expensive feeds.

"The odds are the difference" in summing up profit and loss. Worms prevent profits at best and predispose to various losses at their worst. So they may be regarded as one of the most insidious enemies, hard to control once the soil about the place becomes infested with their eggs. If rotation of yards or range cannot be practiced and the soil has become more or less infested, worm remedies should be used at intervals to keep the parasites under control.

There are many good proprietary worm remedies on the market, some to be given in capsule form, some to be mixed with the mash, etc., and tobacco still stands at a home remedy. This may be given in the mash, using a pound of fresh tobacco dust to each 50 pounds of dry mash for a month, or it may be given in the liquid form, known as nicotine sulphate, a half teaspoonful to each gallon of drinking water for a day or two at a time, once a week for a few weeks.

Tobacco has some influence on chick growth as well as on worms, so we incline to the use of worm remedies guaranteed not to hinder growth or production. Ask your hatcheryman about the most approved worm remedies. Anyone can easily ascertain whether worms are numerous by examining contents of intestines of fowls killed for the table, or by killing thin, unthrifty birds for the purpose. Use sharp pointed scissors or pen knife, split intestine from end to end and wash gently and worms will be found at bottom of pan, if present.

STAY IN THE GAME

Where you are tempted to reduce the feed of growing pullets because the feed bill mounts so fast, just stop and consider that in the same ratio that you reduce the feed now you will lengthen the time it takes them to come into production. What will it profit you to save $25 now on feed by letting the pullets "rustle" a living from pasture and insects and lose perhaps $100 on September, October or November. Like most things agricultural, we must invest something in a crop before we can harvest one and, other things being equal, we reap as we have sown.

For the sake of a fall income, we must be willing to invest something in summer feed. It will pay to keep the pullets growing this summer, beyond the usual, for there will not be so many laying pullets as usual this fall nor so many old hens. Stay in the game and keep the pullets growing. That means, while keeping a good mash before them, that worms, lice and mites must also be kept down.

WEAKNESS PREVAILS IN EGGS

Egg prices have lost ground moderately thus far in June. Owing to grading requirements, June eggs are not so acceptable for storage as receipts during April and May and quality has been disappointing, suggesting that some eggs have been held back in the country for an advance in prices. The movement into consumption is fairly prevailing. No pronounced change in the level of prices is probable during the next month but after that time, decreasing supplies of high quality eggs may start the seasonal advance in that grade.

CONTROL OF LICE

The best way to handle lice is to treat the hens as soon as they are set and again two weeks later. Sodium fluoride, applied by rubbing a little of the powder on the skin of the head, neck, wings, back and fluff, with a very little melted grease mixed with kerosene on any bunches of mits that may be found on feathers just below the vent will get rid of lice before hatching time. A drop of grease on the top of the head of each chick or gosling is all that can safely be applied to them. Do not allow ducklings or goslings to get into cold water the first few weeks. Water just deep enough to immerse the nostrils, but in a container too small for goslings to get into, is safe.

PURCHASING CHICKS

In purchasing chicks it is best to deal only with reputable, well-known hatcherymen who have consistently followed a carefully planned program of breed improvement, and who have used pedigreed males from a reliable source, culled their flocks, and attempted to reduce losses from pulorum disease.

Swedish

Ole Olson came into a Minnesota village one day and inquired at a drug store if they had any "squirrel" whiskey. "No," said the clerk, "but I can slip you a little 'Old Crow'." "Aye don't want to fly," said the Swede, "Aye yust want to yump around a little."

Mortgage Sale
Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by Raymond Harvey and Mabel Harvey, husband and wife, to the First National Bank of Lawton, Michigan dated December 28, 1923 and recorded in Liber 123 of mortgages, page 341, Register of Deeds office, Van Buren County, Michigan and by said First National Bank of Lawton, Michigan assigned in writing to Isadore E. Sherod, said assignment being recorded in the Registers' office of the County of Van Buren, State of Michigan, in Liber 121 of mortgages at page 400; and by said Isadore E. Sherod assigned to David E. Rich on January 12, 1931, which last mentioned assignment is recorded in the Register's office of Van Buren County, Michigan in Liber 151 of mortgages on pages 24 and 25.

Whereas, the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is One Thousand ($1000.00) Dollars of principal and Seventy Dollars of interest together with Twenty-four and 67-100 Dollars paid for taxes and Thirty-five ($35.00) Dollars as an attorney fee, together with any taxes which may be paid hereafter by the undersigned which will be added at the time of said sale and no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted to recover said debt now remaining secured by said mortgage, whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now, Therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises in said mortgage described at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the north outer door of the Court House, in the Village of Paw Paw, Van Buren County, Michigan (that being the place for holding the Circuit Court in and for said County), on the 25th day of August A. D. 1931 at nine o'clock in the forenoon of said day (Central Standard Time), which said premises are described as follows, to-wit:

The following described land and premises, situated in the Township of Waverly, County of Van Buren, State of Michigan, viz: Commencing Twenty seven (27) rods South from Northeast corner of Section Seventeen (17), Township two (2) South, Range Fourteen (14) West; thence West Eighty-three (83) feet, South Twenty (20) rods, Five (5) feet, East Eighty-three (83) feet, North Twenty (20) rods and Five (5) feet to the place of beginning.

Order for Publication

STATE OF MICHIGAN—The Probate Court for the County of Van Buren.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the Village of Paw Paw in said County on the 10th day of June A. D. 1931.

Present: Hon. Merle H. Young, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Albert T. Felts, deceased.

Emerson E. Felts, administrator of said estate, having filed in said court his petition praying for license to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described.

It is Ordered, That the 20th day of July, A. D. 1931, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, e. s. t. of said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said court at said time and place, to show cause why a license to sell the interest of said estate in said real estate should not be granted.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Gobles News, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

MERLE H. YOUNG,
Judge of Probate.
A true copy. Mamie L. Shafer, Register of Probate.

Umbrellas Designed to Ward Off Heat of Sun

The first umbrellas were used, not to keep off rain, but as shields against the sun. Their original home was in hot, brilliant climates, and in eastern countries from the earliest times the umbrella was one of the signs of royalty and power. The Mahratta princes of India had, in fact, among their titles "lord of the umbrella."

The early umbrella was a heavy, ungainly article. It had a long handle and ribs of whalebone or cane. The covering material consisted of oiled silk or cotton, and was very heavy in substance and liable to stick together in the folds.

Gingham was next used as a substitute for the oiled silk, and finally William Sangster patented the use of alpaca as an umbrella-covering material. This was a in 1848, only 83 years ago.

Four years later came the invention of one Samuel Fox, who patented the "Paragon" rib formed of a thin strip of steel rolled into a U or trough section, and today all umbrellas are constructed on this principle.

Nowadays the aim of the manufacturers of umbrellas is to get an article that will not occupy much space, and some of the latest patterns have almost doll-like proportions.

Eastern Cemetery Laid Out Like Modern City

Travelers in Egypt approaching Cairo from the east are deeply impressed with the striking appearance, in a sandy valley between lines of broken hills, of a seemingly opulent city, close-built with houses of varying sizes and dominated at intervals with great domes and slender minarets. They are, however, greatly amazed upon reaching the city to find that not a living soul is in it.

Such is the "Eastern Cemetery," or "cemetery of the Sahara," as this strange city of the dead is known. It is far more luxurious than many towns of the living. It has houses, streets, courts, shaded walks, and large, central buildings which are the tombs of the wealthy or great.

The principal structure, under a huge dome, is called the "Mosque of Kaltbey," the tomb of a sultan. There are also the squalid quarters of the poor.

These cemetery houses often contain several rooms, all well furnished and decorated with beautiful oriental tapestries and silk hangings.

Ancient Weather Vanes

Its use on famous old structures in England shows that the weather-vane must have been invented at a very early date. On towers, castles and secular buildings its usual form was that of a banner, but on churches it usually took the form of the rooster. The large tail of the cock was well adapted to turn with the wind.

Many churches have for a vane the emblem of the saints to whom they are dedicated. St. Peter's, London, is topped by a large key, and St. Lawrence's, a gridiron. St. Sepulchre's church has four pinnacles, each having a vane, leading to the saying: "Unreasonable people are as hard to reconcile as the vanes of St. Sepulchre's tower."

In Old Nuremberg

Trips on many days can be made in the beautiful old city of Nuremberg, one of the quaintest in the whole of Germany. Most Americans go first to the home of the great artist Durer. It is a Fifteenth century Gothic structure, now owned by the city as a shrine. Here you may see beneath its heavy timbered roof the furniture of his own day as well as many of his works, though mostly copies, as the originals are in the greatest museums and galleries of the world. The modern Durers are toy makers and their products are in the happy nurseries of all nations.

Land-Locked Nations

Jests about the Swiss navy might be applied to many nations, the National Geographic society says in a bulletin noting that there are 15 countries that have no sea coasts.

Europe has eight land-locked nations—Switzerland, Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Andorra, San Marino, Liechtenstein and Luxembourg.

Switzerland is developing its aerial lines to the highest degree to make up for its lack of access to the sea.

Not Talking

Martha Lou was jealously watching her favorite aunt fondling her new brother and telling him how cunning he looked in his pink blanket.

Presently the four-year-old said: "You might as well put him in his basket, he won't talk to you."

Car Owners Bought More Firestone Tires

During April, May and June than in any like period in History

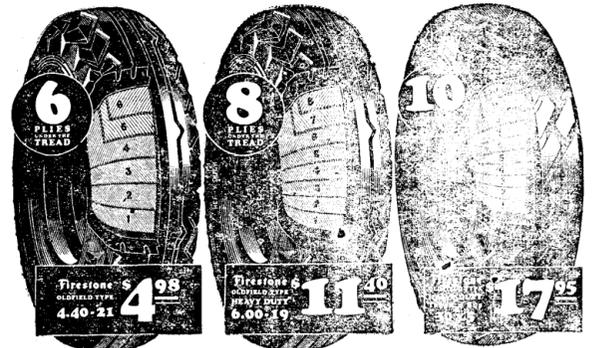

THERE are reasons for this—Firestone is now building the Greatest Tire Values in history, with the result that Firestone factories are operating 24 hours a day, 6 days a week, to meet public preference.

This is the year everybody is scrutinizing his purchases. This is particularly true in tire buying because of the many confusing and misleading statements made about tires.

To give car owners the facts, Firestone published comparisons showing quality, construction and prices. Then the public came in—made their own comparisons with cross-sections cut from Firestone tires—and from special brand mail order tires and others.

When they saw the facts, they bought more Firestone tires during April, May and June than in any like period in Firestone history.

Drive in today and let us show you these Firestone Extra Values and have your car equipped for Safe, Trouble-Free Summer Motoring. We can save you money and serve you better.

WEEK OF JULY 12

Pleasant, sunny weather of last week in Michigan but by Monday, the week in Michigan but by Monday, the 13th, we are expecting there will begin a period of local thunder storms accompanied by wind and showers.

Following the middle of the week we are expecting these local storms will increase in intensity and number. Temperatures are expected to rise higher than during the first part of the week, the wind storms will be more numerous and the showers will be a little more general.

These stormy conditions will last through the greater part of this week in most parts of Michigan. It must be realized, however, that we do not mean there will be continuous rain and wind every day of this week.

The Hot Spot of Michigan

The season has arrived when the game of "watching the thermometer" will be played every day. There will be much rivalry among towns as to which was the hottest on any one day.

In any one year most any town can get the honors, even in the upper peninsula as in July, 1901, when the mercury rose to 108 degrees at Marquette. However, by averaging all the years on record, the hot spot of Michigan is found around the headwaters of the Shiawassee, Grand, Clinton, Huron, Detroit, Saline, Raisin, Prairie and St. Joseph rivers, in the highest elevated section of the southern half of the state.

This statement is further augmented by the hot spell of July, 1911 when Bay City reported a record temperature of 110 degrees and with 107 degrees at Plymouth. Again in August, 1918, temperatures at Morenci and Plymouth registered 108 degrees and 107 degrees at Adrian. The temperatures were so high and the sunshine so intense during this August that the hot, dry weather dried out and hardened the soil, making fall plowing a very difficult task.

Dinner Stories

Just Right

A Negro porter was given a bottle of moonshine by a traveling salesman. After taking a shot of the stuff he fell into convulsions of coughing. The traveling salesman asked him how it was.

"Just right," the negro replied. "What do you mean, just right?" asked the salesman.

"Well, if it was any worse it would 'a' killed me," answered the negro, "and if it was any better you wouldn't 'a' given it to me."

Poor Fat Man

He was very fat, and stood behind an irritable old woman while waiting in line to see a movie.

"Stop yer pushin', can't yer?" said the woman suddenly.

"Excuse me, madam," he apologized, "I did not push, I only sighed."

They Were Good Sports

He: "I have many reminders of my prowess in winter sports." She: "What are they?"

He: "Three loving ups and two medals."

She: "Lovely. I have trophies from the winter sports also."

He: "What are they?" She: "Five engagement rings."

CHAPTER II

Mary could hardly believe her eyes when she saw Dick sitting there across the street waiting for her. But all the weariness and despair within her aching body seemed to lift and float away, up into the stone-walled canyon of the street, as she crossed over to him eagerly, in response to his call.

"Why, Dick, you shouldn't have waited for me. I might have hurried a little more if I had known—" Why, the work might have gone like magic, she thought, had she known he was down there, waiting. "Aren't you going to the dance?"

"Sure. So are you. Get in, and let's get going."

"But I can't go like this."

"Of course not. I already have on my 'soup and fish.' I can drive you home in no time. Traffic is not so heavy now. You can dress in a jiffy, can't you?"

"Oh, yes—in no time," she agreed happily. "But you will miss half the utmost. To be valuable to Mary, possession had to represent effort, thought or ability—or all three.

It had been that same night, too, that Dick had told her about his ambitions: that he had some money but he was saving more toward buying a seat on the Stock Exchange. He wanted to go into investment banking for himself some day. Finance was his world. His father had been a figure in "the street" a decade ago, but the Baldwin fortune had been pretty well depleted before his mother's death a few years ago. A trust fund had provided for Dick's education and a nucleus with which to start toward his ambition.

Mary turned to look at him now. In the dimly reflected light from the dashboard, his strong profile was accented like a sharply cut pink-white cameo. Mary caught her breath, silently. No use to deny the fact that she was wild about Dick Baldwin. Her heart did a violent flipper. Even when they were little tots, she had always boasted about her pretty little sister and delighted in showing her off, or claiming her for a sister. Something of reflected glory, perhaps.

"Is Bonnie your kid sister?" Dick asked, absently, looking down the river.

"Yes. You will like her, too."

"Perhaps so, but I already like you better," he grinned, and gave her hand a quick pressure.

Mary laughed softly.

The pulse of the ferry motors vibrated through the sailing stillness of the river traffic. Shadow boats and phantom barges, outlined only by their red and white and green lights, swept beside them, past them, before—all about them, in and out of the foggy shadows. Deep, throaty horns blurted abrupt signals of yarning. Bells clanged.

Mary liked the ferry crossing, par-

Dick is taking me to the University club dance. I'm sorry, but really—"

"Well, such nerve," Bonnie retorted. "What do you think I am to keep my date waiting while I dress again? Who do you suppose he is—none other than the junior Horace P. Moffatt, the silk Moffatts, my dear! And I haven't a decent rag to my name. You surely don't mind if I wear it just this once."

"Well, I do mind, Bonnie. You don't know—how important—please, Bonnie, you can have anything else of mine, but tonight, and because it is new, I want that dress—" while she pleaded with Bonnie, Mary was getting out of her crepe dress and kicking off her oxfords with nervous haste.

"Oh, your old beige lace will do," Bonnie insisted, "and you may have my blue wrap—it would clash too horribly with this red. There's a dear. I can't keep the honorable Horace waiting another minute—" and before Mary could open her lips to protest further, she had gone, leaving only the fragrance of Mary's best perfume behind her.

CHAPTER III

Mary groaned and sank into a little crushed heap on the floor. She could have wept.

Then she remembered that Dick—Dick was waiting downstairs for her to dress in a jiffy. She snatched up her old kimono and dashed into the bathroom.

No time for vain regrets. She would just have to make the best of it. While she proceeded with swift, mechanical motions, she tried to think of something she might do to improve what was left for her to wear.

No use! The only possibility was the beige lace, sultan pearls, gold slippers, tarnished and worn at the toes. Bonnie's blue wrap with the gray squirrel collar—not her color or style at all. Oh, how could Bonnie, her thoughts wandered over and over.

At last she was ready. Dick laid down the magazine he had been fingering and rose as she came into the room. His eyes appraised her. He seemed to be satisfied with her appearance, but his manner was not so enthusiastic as it might have been, had she worn the red dress, she thought.

"You hold the record for speed," he told her. "Not many women can do the quick change in that time. You look grand Mary."

Her heart ached. But only for a moment. Soon they were again crossing on the ferry, in the snug intimacy of the coupe, and Mary quite forgot that she wore the old lace frock.

She was more painfully aware of it when she entered the ladies' lounge at the club, however. Sequins and brilliant dazled all about her, sheen of satins and lustre of exquisite velvets, blended with foaming, iridescent chiffons on scores of well-groomed women. Not many of them had worked in an office until eight o'clock, Mary surmised. She hastened out to join Dick in the reception room.

He was already the center of a group of chattering girls with a fringe of men in the offing. But he saw Mary at once, and came to her gallantly.

Mary never had been introduced to so many people at one time, in her whole life; and she was not oblivious of their critical scrutiny. She gained the impression that she passed their inspection rather well. At any rate, she did not lack dancing partners.

Fortunately, she danced well. Mary knew that. It was just an inherent part of her—a sense of rhythm and balance and grace. More than once she had been told that she walked like a queen—poised and graceful.

Dick was charming. He saw that she met everyone and was most deferential in his attentions to her. In fact, he let everyone know that Mary Vaughn was his "latest find" and he was proud of it. At which Mary glowed and looked her best. There is nothing like love to enhance a sweet face, be it ever so plain. Mary forgot that she wore last season's gown. In fact, she had the best time in all her life, and radiated her happiness.

"Like it?" Dick asked her on the way home.

"Oh, Dick, it was lovely. You have so many friends."

"Well, just so you don't like my friends better than me."

"Of course not," she assured him. "Check!" he declared.

"Double-check!" she laughed.

Mary had been in bed for an hour when Bonnie slipped into the room. But she wasn't asleep. The evening had been too stimulating for sleep. She had rehearsed ever moment of it again and again in her thoughts, and had even ventured farther. Perhaps, some day, she would marry Dick and they would be going always to places like the University club and to dinner at the lawyers club—oh, many dignified and exclusive places that were closed to her now.

Mary stirred at Bonnie's entrance. "No. Turn on the light if you wish. I'm wide awake as an owl. Have a good time?"

"Oh, not so hot! And my head is splitting. I'll say the honorable Horace P. carries a mean flask. And I ruined your dress, Mary. Awful sorry. But some fellow tipped over my punch while Horace was hating it up. I'll pay you for it when I get to work again."

"Oh, Bonnie!" Mary's voice was almost a wail. "I don't know when I can afford another new dress. I stretched a point to get that one." She knew that Bonnie's promise to pay her was forgotten as soon as it was given.

"The spots might come out if you have it cleaned," Bonnie suggested carelessly.

"But a thing is never new after it has been cleaned," Mary declared vehemently, and very near to tears. She was almost angry with Bonnie for the first time in her life. This affair seemed to be the straw that broke the camel's back. It was because the incident struck her so vitally—in the vulnerable spot of her desire to make herself attractive for Dick.

But this was no time to quarrel with Bonnie, she decided reasonably. And besides, there was nothing she could do about it. The dress was ruined. To exhaust her resentment, she turned over her pillow and gave it a vicious punch. "Well, I've got to get forty winks or so if I expect to make an appearance at the office in the morning."

"The way I feel, I'm glad I don't have to shuffle out in the morning," Bonnie observed. "There are some advantages, even, to being out of a job. By the way, where did you pick up the swell date, Mary? He is the berries. Maybe commuting does pay, after all. What's his line? They don't grow 'em like that here in Patterson."

GIANT AZTEC BEAN

The above illustration was reproduced from an actual photograph to show the comparative size of the Giant Aztec Bean with that of the common field or navy bean.

LARGEST OF ALL BEANS

It is a real bean; looks like a field or navy bean except that it is 5 or 6 times as large. 18 or 20 Giant Aztec beans usually weigh an ounce, while it takes from 160 to 170 of the common field beans to weigh an ounce. It is a bush bean; will stand more drought than most varieties; very hardy; and probably the most productive bean grown. One planter reports that two years ago he secured four bushels, the product of which he replanted last spring, and in the fall harvested 240 pounds of dry beans. The quality of the Giant Aztec Bean is unexcelled both as a green and dry shell bean. Our supply of seed is limited, and the price is high, but now is the time to get started with this wonderful bean. 3 bushels, 25c; 40 bushels, $1.00; one-fourth lb., $2.00, postpaid.

NOVELTY GARDEN CLUB 58 Market Ave., S. W. Grand Rapids, Mich.

"Oh, Bonnie, please give me my dress."

fun, Dick."

"What of it? I couldn't go alone and I don't want to take anyone but you. Half the time with you is better than all the time with anyone else, Mary. It's more fun late, anyway."

"Well, it's sweet of you," she insisted in her soft, resonant voice, as the car rumbled along the canyon between the high, black, silent walls.

"Who wouldn't be sweet to you?" he asked blithely, and Mary chuckled softly in her happiness.

Her heart sang. Wasn't she glad that the new red chiffon hung in the closet at home, waiting with the white tissue paper pinned over the beaded shoulders to keep off the dust? The red moire slippers with silver trim that she had got only last Saturday, were waiting in their box, too. A dash under the shower, dusting of powder, perfume—"in a jiffy" she would be ready to drive back to New York with Dick.

She sighed. If only she were beautiful!

Then she remembered what Dick had said the last time she was with him. They had sat at a wall table in a restaurant, with the mellow lamp-glow forming an arc on the white damask cloth between them. Sweet intimacy, just sitting across the table from each other, at dinner. She had looked up suddenly and laughed at something he said. And he had looked at her critically and exclaimed, "Do you know you are a pretty girl, Mary, especially when you laugh that way? There is something different about you that I've been trying to analyze. You wouldn't win a beauty contest, but your looks would wear better than those of the girl who did. Your beauty is more than skin deep."

His compliment had quite astonished Mary, but of course, it had pleased her, too. No girl resents being told that she is pretty, and when the man she admires as Mary admired Dick, discovers something attractive about her that no one else has recognized, there is nothing sweeter in the world.

Dick was right, too. Mary's blue-gray eyes were not large and seductive, but they were kind of smiley. Her lips were not a pouty, inviting cupid's bow, but her mouth was firm and generous enough to be sweet. Her square jaw was too wide for classic beauty, but it revealed a determination and courage that resolved into self-respect and loyalty. That was Mary: sweet, honest, kind, ambitious. She wanted the good things of the world, but she wanted to get them honorably, to deserve them. She was the kind of person who wouldn't think of depending on luck, or winning a prize or a gamble. She wanted to earn what she had and enjoy possession to flop and then seemed to stand still every time she saw him, or heard his voice—or even thought of him. Plain, practical Mary, who had always been a balance-wheel for herself and others, felt herself losing her equilibrium over Dick Baldwin. She hoped he didn't think she was giddy or anything like that. She really couldn't account for her words or actions when she was with him. She felt all mixed-up inside, and excited.

His eyes were intent upon driving because the traffic was heavier now. They were nearing the ferry docks. His jaw was thrust a little more forward, unconsciously, and Mary could discern the slight indentation of line where there was a suggestion of a dimple in his broad chin. The eyebrows swept upward from over dark-humorous eyes—lige trim, clean wings, joyously. He had a way of raising them higher, too, when he asked a question, that accented his curiosity about what he wanted to know. His bulk was very obviously the muscular proportions of a hard athlete, with broad, thick shoulders. Mary felt the tremendous strength of him, there beside her, and loved it.

They were driving upon the electric ferry now. Their car led the line. Mary liked that—being in front on the ferry so she could have an unobstructed view up and down and across the river. If one were hemmed in by the cars and walls farther back, it was a long, impatient five minutes.

Dick reached down and shut off the motor, turned about to face her and smiled chummily.

"Tired?" he asked. "Darn shame you had to work tonight. Couldn't you stall him off for once?"

"No, it was very important—reports of the investigation for the new syndicate had to be out. We haven't too much time, now."

"I'll bet Foster is no cinch to work for. He looks like an old crab."

"He is exasperating sometimes," she shrugged. "But it's all in the game, and I like it all. He is as reasonable as anyone can be with so much responsibility."

"You don't look as if you had been at the grind overtime. Your eyes shine like stars." He reached over and covered her hand that lay on the seat between them.

Sweet of him to say that. But Mary knew why her eyes shone, didn't she? And wondered if he ever would know. Self-consciously, she said, "Oh, I'm not pretty. Bonnie has all the looks in our family. Wait until you see Bonnie's eyes. They not only shine like stars, but they twinkle, and are as blue as the sky around them." Mary never had got over the habit of praising her little particularly at night; always thrilled to the romance of it. On the river's broad, strong, heaving bosom rested the commerce of the world; in the crook of her arms on either side it held big business—turbulent, temperamental, overgrown children, whose opposite natures she was constantly striving to unite and reconcile. And deep within, under that broad, tranquil surface, still other forces held sway—in the arteries of transportation.

Mary's own pulses throbbed heavily, rapidly, anticipating Dick's next words. But just then the curved end of the ferry slid into the corresponding curve at the Jersey City wharf iron chains clanked, Dick started the motor and they rolled off into the highway. No time to lose, if they got back to New York early enough to dance any that night.

Their conversation during the drive was about most everything but "shoes and ships and sealing wax," and then they were hurrying into the house. This was the first time Mary ever had taken Dick in, for he had not stayed on the two other occasions when he brought her home late. As they went up the steps, Mary hoped fervently that the twins were in bed, that Mom looked her best and the living room was in some semblance of order, as it would not be if the boys were about.

Opening the front door, she almost collided with Bonnie, just leaving with a fellow whom Mary had never seen before.

Greetings and introductions followed. Mother, it developed, had taken the twins to a movie, fortunately for Mary, on this night when she was in such a hurry to leave again.

Bonnie's round eyes dilated when she saw Dick, as Mary knew they would. Which gave Mary a little thrill of pride, for it was usually Bonnie who brought home the classy dates. And then—Mary reeled sickeningly at what her eyes discovered. There was Bonnie, resplendent in her own new red chiffon evening dress and slippers, and even her black velvet wrap that had been chosen conservatively to wear with most anything. But the vision swam dizzily before Mary's eyes. Finally, she managed, "Bonnie, will you come upstairs with me? I want to see you a minute."

What calamity! Even if she did change now, the boys would know she had taken the very clothes off Bonnie's back. But that wasn't the big thing to Mary now. She had to look well for Dick at the club. Oh! how could Bonnie just take her new dress without even asking her?

Upstairs, having closed the door gently, she whispered with entreaty, "Oh, Bonnie, please give me my dress."

HEALTH OF "M" CO-EDS GIVEN FURTHER CARE

New precautions for guarding the health of University co-eds housed in five large dormitories on the campus are being taken according to Dr. Margaret Bell of the University. A graduate nurse has been in residence in each of the dormitories during the last year, Dr. Bell reports. About a quarter of the entire number of co-eds on the campus are housed in the five principal dormitories, Dr. Bell said.

Dr. Bell's statement follows: "This year for the first time, due to the efforts and understanding of the directors of every large dormitory, there has been a part time graduate nurse in residence. The advantage of this arrangement has been appreciated by directors, students, and doctors, since it was originally tried at Martha Cook in 1925. In practically all instances this nurse has been a student in Public Health Nursing and has been selected on the advice of Prof. Barbara Bartlett. The personal has been ideal for the situation.

"When it is realized that about one quarter of the total number of women on the campus are housed in these five big dormitories, the importance of this plan as an educational device may be appreciated.

"The responsibilities of the dormitory nurse are fairly well defined. She is responsible to the director and keeps her informed as to the health of the student group in general. The nurse assists in prevention of disease. She is available at the election of the student, for advice and at all times has been remarkably constructive in her criticism and assistance to the Health Service. So far her work is largely preventive. From the clinical aspect she works on as limited a scale as possible. The pay is small and the demands on her time are unlimited. She does some first-aid and dressings. She decides often when a doctor is to be called. She advises health service treatment and employs certain treatment and employs certain standing orders. She follows the bed cases.

"This nurse has been a great force in creating satisfactory attitudes among her colleagues. She has been of great service in keeping her director informed and a great satisfaction to the doctors."

Girl Is Champion Speller of County

Spelling honors in the grade schools of Jackson county were carried away by girls in the final spelling bee held recently, according to County School Commissioner Howard C. Prine.

Mary Agnes Hume, 12 years old, a pupil in the Maxon school in Leon township, won first prize by spelling the word "sacrilege" properly. Bon Ella Bailey, 12 years old, of the Sandstone school, was runner up. Both girls have just completed the seventh grade.

Only one boy, Walter Oisef, 14 years old, of Liberty township, survived the preliminaries.

Greenville Boy Is Academy Graduate

Joseph Gibson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Gibson of Greenville, was one of 60 seniors to receive diplomas at the seventy-third annual commencement exercises of Lake forest academy at Lake Forest, Ill.

While at Lake Forest Joe was a member of the varsity football and track teams, the Orange basketball team, the glee club and the Pollies. He plans to enroll as a member of the freshman class at Ann Arbor next fall.

LaFollette Unable To Visit Traverse

Gov. Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin will not be able to attend the national cherry festival here because he cannot leave Wisconsin the third week in July when the festival is to be held. He hopes, however, to get away for a few days in August to visit his friend, Harry P. Harrison, at the Harrison summer home at Leland.

"Ag" Class Apple Project Success

The apple orchard leased from the Gem Fruit association by agricultural students of the local high school promises to repay the boys for their efforts of the last two years. Indications are they will harvest approximately 1,500 bushels of Northern Spies, Baldwins and Greenings next fall.

According to Benjamin J. Hennink, agricultural instructor, under whose supervision the work is being carried on, the class is making the last year's experience count to the utmost. The spring rains have kept the boys busy spraying to control apple scab and insects.

The second orchard, which was leased this spring from Lieut. Gov. Luren D. Dickinson of Eaton township, promise about a third of a crop. The boys are confident, however, that with continued good care the trees will in time produce a full crop. Application of 1,500 pounds of sulphate of ammonia has been of much benefit.

Even Summer Has Its Formal Moments

By Mme. Lisbeth

To judge from the shop windows summer is just one long sports event after another. Sweater suits, tennis togs, golfing outfits, riding costumes, bathing suits and ensembles all fill the shops with their fascinating suggestions of lively outdoor recreations.

But summer and vacation time have their more formal moments, and clothes to fit them, although even in these there should be just a suggestion of unconventionality to suit the season. Some of the clothes designed for afternoon and evening functions are pictured here displayed by those lovely Hollywood girls whose work demands the smartest clothes worn in the very best manner of the "well dressed woman."

First is Marion Davies in a quaint but up-to-date frock of allover embroidery with long ruffled skirt, elbow length sleeves, also ruffled, and tiny jacket. It is form fitting almost to the knees, as is a favorite manner with this type of frock.

Inset below and numbered two is the only sport suit in the collection. It is white with a colorful plaid vest blouse, and Joan Crawford is the model, wearing with it a white hat with bandeau and a smart ribbon bow under the brim.

No. 3 is Edwina Booth in a cool looking suit of pale green with darker green trimmings. It has a deep collar with wide lapels cascading down the front of the jacket, which has short sleeves edged with flowers. The dress is long sleeved. Hat and slippers further emphasize the two shades of green.

No. 4, inset above, Loretta Young shows a formal little hat in the popular tri-corne. It is pineapple weave jeweled clip. This type of straw needs little or no trimming for it is so ornamental in itself.

W. S. T. C. TO HAVE BIG SISTERS GROUP

Under joint auspices of the Woman's league and the Campus Y. W. C. A., cooperating with faculty advisers, preliminary plans are being completed for the inauguration of the Big Sister movement at Western State Teachers college.

A committee including faculty advisers and representatives of the two organizations now is engaged in choosing a group of 60 women students from the upper classes who have been suggested by the faculty of the various departments to serve in the capacity of Big Sisters to the freshmen women at the opening of the fall term.

When freshmen women register next fall each new woman student will be assigned to a Big Sister to assist her throughout the fall term. Miss Ruth Bowman of Detroit is chairman of the committee working on the preliminary plans and will head the Big Sister work at the beginning of the term. Others on the committee are: Dorothy Hay, Bangor; Mildred Adams, Dowagiac; Arlene Butler, Kalamazoo, and Margaret Blair, Galesburg.

Private Band Camp May Be Opened for High School Pupils

A private band camp for high school pupils modeled somewhat after the National High School Orchestra camp at Interlochen is expected to be opened this summer at Omena by Fred H. Lewis of Ann Arbor, former member of the faculty of the Interlochen camp.

Lewis intends to start the camp for a six-week period Sunday, July 12, providing his enrollment totals 40 boys. If fewer than 40 enroll he will wait until next year to open the camp. The faculty is ready and the grounds are being prepared.

American High School Band camp is the name Lewis has adopted. Lewis will be faculty director and first conductor of the camp band, while D. C. Ryan, director of the Michigan State Normal college band at Ypsilanti, will be second conductor and instructor of brass instruments. Others on the faculty will be J. H. Currier, high school music supervisor, Marshall; John Banta, Wyandotte High school music supervisor, and Marion Struble Freeman, former instructor in the University School of Music, Ann Arbor. Physical training and all camp sports will be in charge of Capt. Albert Freeman of Ann Arbor, director of physical education on the first floating university.

Household Hints

MENU HINT

Cold Sliced Tongue and Ham
Creamed or Scalloped Potatoes
Stewed Tomatoes
Lettuce With French Dressing
Homemade Bread Butter
Orange and Lemon Pie Iced Tea
Is there anyone that can resist homemade bread? In spite of the fact that bakers turn out loaves of uniform goodness, there is something about even the smell of the homemade article that makes one ravenous. Try this recipe for making it once in awhile on a cool day in summer and hear the family cheer.

Today's Recipes

Four-Cup Bread—One pint milk, one cup water, two tablespoons sugar, three tablespoons shortening, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one cake compressed yeast, bread flour. Scald milk, add water, when luke warm add yeast sugar, shortening, salt. Let stand 10 minutes, add three cups flour, stir smooth. Cover and keep warm until light (about 40 minutes) then add flour to make a stiff dough and knead five minutes, divide into three loaves. Put into well-greased pans, let rise until a little more than doubled in bulk and bake 45 minutes.

Orange and Lemon Pie—Bake crust for pie. For filling beat a cup of sugar into two tablespoons butter. Add beaten yolks of two eggs and one cup milk. Stir and add juice of one lemon and grated rind and juice of one orange. Place three tablespoons flour into two tablespoons water and stir until smooth, then add to the mixture. Cook filling over slow fire, stirring constantly, for it scorches easily, until thick, and pour into pie shell. Make a meringue by beating the two egg whites with two tablespoons powdered sugar, spread over top of pie and bake until brown.

SUGGESTIONS

Keep a jar of simple syrup on hand in the refrigerator during the summer for making cool drinks and sweetening fruits. Simple syrup is made by bringing to a boil one cup of water and two cups of sugar. This syrup can be used "to sweeten grapefruit, orange juice, or any cold drink, such as iced tea, coffee, lemonade, orange-ade or punch. It speeds up the whole business of preparation, and eliminates the nuisance of the sugar settling to the bottom of a cold drink."

A currycomb makes a good fish scaler.

When laundering lace curtains put borax in the rinsing water and there will be no need of starch.

To clean a clogged drain pipe, pour down some kerosene and follow it immediately with boiling water.

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

EXPULSION THREATENS SASSY LAD

"Dear Dr. Myers: My son often is exceptionally impudent. I don't seem to be able to overcome this. I have just received word from his principal at school. She threatens for punishment to put him back a grade and next expel him from school.

"Last year he had a teacher who was, in my opinion, too old to teach, and who this year has retired. The principal asked me if my son was mentally and physically all right. She said he annoyed his teacher continually by tapping his feet and pencil, and made a noise in his throat. So I took him to my family physician. He said he was on the verge of St. Vitus dance. My little boy said he couldn't stop making the noises because she continuously reminded him of them. I finally took him out of school and sent him away for a change and rest.

"This fall he seemer better, so I sent him back to school. I went there to visit to hear how he was getting along. The teacher said he was impudent, but not to get the impression he was the worst child she had. Wish you could help me with this problem. Whipping doesn't seem to help.

Answer: I have a deal of sympathy with the boy, his teacher and you. All seem to be in need of help. I wish the teacher were more sympathetic and discreet. Of course, she has other children, too, you know.

The boy is very nervous and finds it hard to sit still and to control his tongue, and the more often he gets into trouble, the more practice he has in being impudent and in losing self-control.

You have not been very successful in managing the lad at home. He got his early training there in impudence and is merely practicing at school. Naturally you are embarrassed by the school's complaint and, being human like the rest of us, you come to the lad's defense and try to make the teacher feel the fault is mostly hers.

First have the boy examined by your physician. See that he has regular and ample hours of sleep—work for better habits in him at home.

Don't let him play too long at a time. Have him come in for quiet for about forty minutes before the evening meal. Sit down with Dad, with a pencil and paper, and write down all the specific ways you can think of to reduce commands and to remove unnecessary annoyances to the lad. Plan together one or two important habits you are going to work upon, not many. Overlook the rest for the time.

Covenant together to scold less, smile and joke more at home, and to praise more often when the boy does a few things well. When he talks back hold your tongue. Never talk back to him. Better say nothing about his talking back. Just keep calm and silent but don't budge nor change your command once it has been thoughtfully given. Never let yourself get in an argument. Speak in a very low and quiet voice. In case he is not likely to obey a specific command calmly tell him what the penalty will be, and then don't lie. But be reasonable. Better not resort to physical punishment. Isolation or sitting in a chair doing nothing for half an hour by the clock, or forfeiture of some attractive privilege announced ahead, may be much better.

Gladys Glad on Beauty

AMERICA'S FOREMOST BEAUTY

GLADYS SAYS IT'S SAFE

TO APPLY A DEODORANT

"Dear Miss Glad: Those scanty little bathing suits can't phase me any longer, thanks to you. You see, by following the advice contained in your booklet on "The New Figure," I've developed my bust by two inches, and reduced my waist by three and my hips by four inches. My entire figure is more harmoniously proportioned now. However, I'd like some further advice. My hair is a sort of mousey color, and my skin is of a light, creamy tint. I'd appreciate it very much if you'd tell me what colors I might wear in my gowning.

"Priscilla."
If your clothing is delicate, you should avoid blatant hues in your gowning. Loud, vivid colors like purple, scarlet and bright green will contrast unpleasantly with your skin, will seem to wash you out. They will not flatter your skin by their vividness, but will make you appear unattractively colorless by contrast. Because your own natural coloring is so delicate and faint, you should choose shades that add glow to your complexion. Pastel shades, and medium colors are best. I think that you will find rich browns, soft peaches, warm tans, orchid, pinkish beige, and soft bluish greens especially becoming.

"Dear Miss Glad: As my hair is quite gray, I have been having it dyed at intervals during the past year. I would now like to obtain a permanent wave, but have heard that it is impossible to permanently wave dyed hair. Is this statement correct?"

"Mrs. Copela."
It is always somewhat of a problem to permanently wave dyed hair satisfactorily. It can be done, however. Of course, only a skilled and reliable operator should be permitted to administer the wave. And a test curl should be made first to determine what effect the waving process will have on the hair. The permanent waving procedure sometimes discolors hair that has been dyed. And if, when the test curl is made, the hair becomes discolored, the administering of the entire wave should be postponed until the hair has been put into a more receptive condition. It is usually advisable, before the permanent wave is procured, to submit the dyed tresses to a series of hot oil treatments to nourish the hair roots and the scalp, and to make the hair soft and glossy. For the success of the permanent depends, to a great extent, upon the health of the hair and scalp.

If You Had a Rich Uncle—
It Wouldn't Be Fun
He'd Be Too Much Trouble

By Marshall Maslin

Suppose you did have a Rich Uncle—

A bachelor, worth millions, with no one but you to leave his money to—
What if you did have one?

It might be bad for you. You'd always be waiting for him to die. No matter how much you liked him, you'd be thinking about all the money you'd get when he died. . . . And that wouldn't be good for you. . . . It wouldn't be good for him, either.

Bad for your character and bad for his, too. He'd know you were waiting for him to die, and you'd know that he knew that something of the sort was in your mind. He'd become a benevolent tyrant; you'd become a sycophantic slave. It would be uncle this and uncle that, and uncle-says-this and uncles-doesn't-like-that. You'd get sick of it; soon you'd be ashamed of yourself, and you wouldn't have any real fun at all.

And while you were waiting for that Nice Old Gentleman With Money to die, you'd cheat yourself of living. It would cramp your own living. It would cramp your own style terribly. You wouldn't work hard. You wouldn't develop your own powers. . . . You'd just be waiting, waiting, waiting for another human being to die, and that wouldn't be healthy for you. . . . He might live "forever" too. And when you finally got the money you'd be too old to enjoy it. The sparkle would be out of life. You'd be wilted and old and you'd have that frightened, expectant look in your eyes—of a spirit-broken puppy that doesn't know whether he's going to be kicked or caressed.

He might not leave All That Money to you, after all. He might invest it foolishly. He might marry some Designing Creature on his death bed and leave you holding the empty sack of your weak hopes and meager delusions. Then you'd be bitter and you'd feel cheated. You'd blame him; you'd blame everybody; you'd blame life, and soon have a face like a dried-up apple with a worm in it. What a life, what a way to live!

If you did get that Rich Uncle's money into your hands you'd be hating your own nieces and nephews, and you'd start suspecting that they were just waiting around for YOU to die—and you might not have any fun at all.

It might NOT be like this if you didn't have a dime and your uncle had millions, but it's too great a chance to take with your life and your happiness. . . . Perhaps, after all, you'd better not have a Rich Uncle. He'd be too much trouble.

The Brute

Jaywalker: "So many people are struck by autos while alighting from street cars."

Street Car Official: "Well, yes; but those people have paid their fares. It's this running over people who are waiting to get on that make me worn and you'd have that frightened, mad."

Gratitude

By Frank K. Glew

'Twas the zero hour—the clock chimed three,
As "Mommie" brought a gift to me;

A bundle sweet of squirming boy,
Who packed my heart with thrilling joy!

"A son," said Doctor, "you're in luck!
"Your wife's rewarded for her pluck;"

The tenseness gripping me before,
As up and down I paced the floor,

Was lifted by this happy word—
That finest instincts in me stirred!

"Don't fret, Old Man, for all is well.
"Go forth the happy news to tell!"

And down upon my knees I sank,
To humbly our Great Maker thank.

Every Farm Bureau Feed is Open Formula

A so called "formula" means nothing unless the NUMBER of POUNDS of each ingredient is shown on the tag. A feed may claim a long list of ingredients and yet only a "cupful" of some of them may be used and the "formula" be correct. A good feed is not ashamed to show the actual number of pounds of each material and to guarantee it. That's why Farm Bureau Feeds sell.

MERMASH is the only poultry feed containing true "MANAMAR"--the "food from the sea." Originated by Philip R. Park and obtainable ONLY through the Farm Bureau in Michigan. Mermash is so popular that others will no doubt try to imitate its formula, but only Mermash contains 200 pounds of genuine Manamar (40 per cent protein) per ton.
