LOCAL BREVITIES

Al Machin was in Augusta on business Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Ryno and George left Monday for a northern trip.

Nancy Ann Wauchek is spending the week with her cousin, Barbara Young at Ferndale.

Mrs. Emma Converse of Lynn, Mass. and Mrs. Ida Cole are visiting at Al Wauchek's.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Voorhees and Lloyd are on an auto tour through the wild and woolly north.

Earl Hopkins and family and Mr. Bulet of Coldwater took dinner with the former's mother, Mrs. Sheldon Saturday.

Monroe Wilcox and family left for their home at Hobson, Mont. Sunday after spending the summer here and in Chicago.

Reduced prices at Barber's Sunday games for balance of season, starting Sunday. This will be appreciated by the fans.

Mrs. R. C. Herman and sons, Ross and Rob returned to their home in Chicago Monday, after spending a week with her mother, Mrs. A. M. Herman.

Gobles won a game from the South Side Giants Sunday but lost to the Cheshire Cats in a double header. The locals are to be reckoned with when the county championship is declared this fall as usual.

Base Line again won Sunday in a fast game with the Louisville Pro team but it took them an extra inning to do it, with the final score 9 to 8. Postums next Sunday and they are coming to avenge a loss sustained last year.

Mrs. E. E. Herman entertained 18 guests Thursday at a shower for Mrs. E. E. Mann of Bloomingdale. A fine luncheon was served and a jolly good time enjoyed by all. Out of state guests were Mrs. Ernest Brown of Tampa, Fla. and Mrs. R. C. Herman of Chicago.

Bob Curtis left Tuesday for Rochester, N. Y. to join the pitching staff of Grover Alexander's Long Hairs. As this team plays most of their week day games in the evening under the flood lights it will be a new experience for Bob, but we predict he will make good as usual.

We wonder how many of our readers have paid strangers more for magazines than they can buy them at News office for. With an occasional exception of some style magazines sold through dry goods merchants we can save you money on most magazines published.

Early Hospitals

The establishment of hospitals in the sense in which we understand them now probably occurred in Europe during the Middle Ages. Historians differ somewhat on this, but it is generally agreed that the institutions conducted in Europe by various religious orders were perhaps the forerunners of the present-day hospitals. It should be remembered, however, that there were certain places set aside for the treatment of the sick in early Greece. These were more on the order of clinics rather than hospitals in the modern sense of the word. The first hospital in the United States was established a few years after the settlement of New York was made, about 1670.

Andrew Jackson's Protoge

"Among the incidents of Tallus-batchle," says Augustus Buell in "History of Andrew Jackson," "was the capture of a little Indian boy not more than two years of age, both of whose parents had been killed. General Jackson took charge of him, provided him with clothing and made a captured colored woman, a slave of the Creeks, nurse him. He subsequently sent him and his nurse to the Hermitage. The boy, to whom Jackson gave the name of Lincoyer, lived on the general's plantation until he reached the age of twenty, when he died of what was then called 'quick consumption' (pneumonia)."

A Year and a Quarter Century

With this issue The News closes the 26th year under the present management and again we thank all who have made possible our continued presence in your midst.

Our pride in our community still continues and we hope to serve you as well for another quarter century.

The printing and publishing business has changed greatly in the past quarter century: paper, ink and everything needed in making a newspaper have more than doubled in price, forcing thousands of publications out of business and weekly newspapers in towns of this size are getting nearly as scarce as hens' teeth.

Even with our list of reliable subscribers greater than most towns as small can boast and our list of live merchants greater than in towns much larger we could not serve you as well as we do were it not for the side lines of insurance, conveyancing and poultry.

One cannot gain a competence in the newspaper business in a town of this size and we have abandoned that hope but we do hope that we may continue to serve you as well and keep in the harness until death do us part.

In the meantime, we believe this is the greatest place in the world in which to live, that this community affords privileges equal to the best and better than the most for right and happy living; a community of honest, happy people with whom one is proud to associate and count as friends.

We hope all may be as happy as we and as proud of their community as we are.

Bara Burns

Last Friday evening the barn on the Loren Rhodes' place on west side was discovered afire and when the department arrived it was one mass of flames and the fire had spread to the houses on each side and small buildings near. Two lines of hose soon had the flames checked with little damage outside the barn, which is a total loss.

No one seems to know how the fire started and how it got such a start in so short a time as people driving near just before it burst out did not notice it. A strong east wind threatened houses in the next block but fortunately none caught fire.

Strangers in our midst were loud in their praises of the efficiency of the fire department and when one realizes how little practice they have it is truly remarkable the way they handle a fire and we hope they will not be called often.

Card of Thanks

We are most grateful to the Gobles Fire Department and all others who so efficiently aided in saving our house in Gobles at the time the barn burned. With the dryness and all it seems almost a miracle that you did so well.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Rhodes.

Sunny Day Club

The Sunny Day Club met at the home of Mrs. M. O. Morgan July 30. There were 22 members and 14 visitors present. At noon a bountiful dinner was served.

Then the business meeting took place, followed by a fine program by the members, at which time some of the visitors took part. Mrs. VanAlstyne gave a fine recitation and little Jean gave two nice songs. The program was enjoyed by all.

There will be a picnic for the members of the club and their families August 16 at Barber's Bathing Beach. All be sure and come. Please bring table service.

There were six plates sent to the sick. The next meeting will be at the Community Building. Mrs. Bud Keller will entertain August 13.

Mallery Reunion

The 29th annual reunion of the late John and Waitstill Mallery family was held Sunday, Aug. 2 at Barber's Bathing Beach, Base Line Lake. There were 75 members present, the oldest of the group being Frank W. Schoolcraft and the youngest, Lewis Fredrick, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Willsea, both of Keddall.

Cities and communities represented were Lansing, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, Allegan, Hopkins, Gobles and Keddall. Letters of regret were read from Harvey J. Mallery, Flight, Dorothy Mallery, New Jersey, also other relatives from Chicago and Allegan.

Mrs. Bernice Morgan of Allegan and Mrs. Jennie Brenner of Hopkins were elected to arrange for the reunion of 1932.

Obituary

Florence Orphie Adams, daughter of Robert Lorenzo and Charlotte Ruth Vanderhule was born in Windsor, Nebr. March 23, 1880 and departed this life July 27, 1931.

While still a small girl she moved with her parents to Irene, S. D., where she grew to womanhood. She was married to Frank Cook in 1894 of Irene, S. D. To this union one son, Orrin was born.

She again united in marriage in 1909 to Oswald Adams of Chicago, who remains to mourn her loss, besides the son, Orrin Cook and wife at Keeler and three granddaughters, Lois, Fern and Rowena Cook; also a sister, Mrs. E. V. Beck of Gobles, the last surviving member of a family of five children, and she nursed and cared with untiring devotion this loving sister in her last remaining days.

Besides all these are a host of relatives and friends.

She was a devoted wife and mother, a loving sister and a kind friend, always thinking of others before herself.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank all the neighbors and friends who so kindly assisted us in the sickness and death of our beloved wife, mother and sister and to all for the beautiful flowers and the pall bearers and to Rev. Hayes for his comforting words.

Oswald Adams,
Orrin Cook and Family,
Ellen V. Beck.

$41,000,000 BUSINESS SHOWN BY MICH. HOTELS

Hotel guests in Michigan during 1929 paid in over $41,000,000, according to figures released by the U. S. Bureau of Census based on the 1930 census of distribution. The figures do not include hotels of less than 25 rooms. The survey covers 507 hotels in operation during the full year 1929, and 97 resort hotels in operation from two to eight months of the year.

The 507 hotels in operation throughout the year reported a total annual business of $39,144,000, an average number of 11,333 full-time employes and a total of $10,632,000 paid during the year in salaries and wages. Of the total number of hotels, 432 are operated on the European plan, 38 on the American plan, and 37 on a mixed plan. Ninety-six of the hostels are owned by corporations and 411 are individual and partnership owned.

Comstock's Celery Market Is Active

The Comstock Celery Growers' association, formed in the early spring, is doing a good business, according to reports. Eight new members have been added. The organization not only grows celery, but ships direct, and has of late been pressed to secure enough of the product to fill orders. Recently, it is stated, it was necessary to buy 6,000 dozen celery in the open market to satisfy the needs of customers. The Comstock association operates much along lines adopted by the Kalamazoo Celery Growers' association. All celery is inspected and graded.

Port Huron Gets Factory

Negotiations have been closed with the Independent Gas Cook Company, Jonesville, Mich., to move to Port Huron and to utilize the plant formerly occupied by the Burwood Products Company. Twenty-eight men were employed at the Jonesville plant. The company manufactures high grade forged brass gas cocks.

Officers of the concern are: G. Nelson Smith, St. Louis, Mo., president; P. E. Welton, Jonesville, secretary-treasurer, and Frank Whitlark, Jonesville, superintendent.

Resurrection Plant

The genuine "Rose of Jericho" is a peculiar plant found among the ruins and ruins of Palestine. When you see the plant it will have the appearance of a ball of tightly folded leaves, dry and dead. Put it in water and it will open up its handsome fern-like foliage, turn green and begin to grow in about twenty minutes. Take it out of the water and it curls up tight, brown and becomes dead again. It is capable of apparently drying and coming to life again repeatedly, and will keep in its dormant state for years and reawaken directly upon being placed in water. It is an interesting, curious and most beautiful house plant with fine fern-like leaves of very agreeable fragrance. If you want a "table fern" that will prove satisfactory under all conditions, don't fail to get one of these marvels of plant life. Grows and thrives in a shallow bowl of water, and is greatly admired by everyone.

IONIA MAN INVENTS COLLAPSIBLE GYRO FOR USE ON PLANES

Claiming to have overcome the objectionable wind-resisting features of types now in use, Clarence A. Bolcom of this city is seeking patent rights on a collapsible gyro device for airplanes that will permit greater speed from reduced power.

Bolcom, who a few years ago perfected a seed cleaning device that proved to be a boon to clover seed producers, declared his design does away with the long, protruding inclined propeller blades and substitutes a more compact, four-blade flat propeller, the dual arms of which lock in position parallel to the fuselage when not in use, thereby eliminating wind resistance.

In the event of trouble while aloft a pilot using his method, Bolcom contends, merely would have to release a brake pedal and the blades would swing into action through sheer air pressure.

Abandons Carrier Plea

Michigan Public Utilities Commission announced that the Pere Marquette railroad has withdrawn its application for permission to operate motor vehicle carriers between Bangor and South Haven.

Sportsmen Protest Spearing of Fish

The Bay-Straits League of Sportsmen at its meeting at Grayling elected officers and protested against spearing in lakes and rivers.

T. W. Hanson, Grayling, was elected president; R. G. Schreck, Bay City, secretary; Robert Raburn, Alpena, first vice president; Samuel Yawcke, Harrison, second vice president, and Frank Shipp, Gaylord, third vice president.

Resolution offered by Loren J. Budge, Beaverton, favoring closing all lakes and rivers against spearing and use of set lines was unanimously adopted.

Advocates Commission To Rename State Lakes

Appointment of a commission to rename the inland lakes of Michigan to eliminate the confusion of duplication of names was suggested to Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker in a letter from Senator Ernest T. Conlon of Grand Rapids. Mr. Conlon would have the commission report at the next session of the legislature.

"The increasing popularity of the state as a resort district is developing added confusion because of the great similarity in the names of numerous popular inland lakes," Mr. Conlon wrote. "We have a large number of Bass lakes, Bear lakes, Beaver lakes, Blue lakes, Clear lakes and so on down the alphabet. We find so many lakes of one name throughout Michigan that it makes intelligent directing of tourists extremely difficult."

Kent county recently completed the task of ending duplication of lake names in the county. Senator Conlon's proposal is considered as an outgrowth of this plan.

P. M. Would Add Line

Pere Marquette railway has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to acquire control of the Manistee & Northern railway by acquiring all of its 11,037 shares of capital stock for $497,297 and lease of its line. Road operates 95 miles of line in Michigan, of which 25 miles are leased from another company.

Cement Plants Safe

Outstanding in the field of industrial safety are the achievements of two west Michigan industries—The Newaygo Portland Cement Company of Newaygo and the Petoskey Portland Cement Company of Petoskey, in that both plants operated through the year 1930 without a single accident to an employe which resulted in an hour's lost time.

Plan 10-Story Building

Plans for a new 10-story Detroit headquarters building for the Salvation Army are expected to mature this fall. Announcement of the proposed structure was originally made in May, 1929, but plans have been held up in the meantime. Frank Eurich, Jr., Detroit architect, now is preparing new sketches for the building. It will be 100x200 feet, reinforced concrete construction, and will be located at Henry street and Michigan avenue.

PATENTS AWARDED W. MICHIGAN MEN

Patents were awarded recently to Grand Rapids, Muskegon and Holland inventors.

The Grand Rapids inventor was Garrett P. S. Gross, who received a patent for a controlling system on an application more than six years old, filed Feb. 9, 1925. He was allowed 108 claims to new ideas. The patent has been assigned to the United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J.

Harold S. Covell, Holland, invented a furnace register and filed his application July 7, 1930. He was allowed eight claims to new ideas. The patent has been assigned to Hart & Cooley Manufacturing Co.

There were four Muskegon inventors receiving three patents. Thomas B. Bennett and Leroy A. Proscott invented a two-sided dispensing pump. They filed their application July 18, 1928. One claim was allowed. The patent has been assigned to the Bennett Pumps Corporation, Muskegon.

The other Muskegon inventors were Grover O. Wardrop, patenting a kickback for bowling alleys, with two new ideas, and Raymond H. Soper, inventor of a furniture top with six new ideas. Soper's application was filed Sept. 8, 1930.

Expands Commuter Service

Fewer Cars Needed

Freight cars required for the third quarter of 1931 are estimated by the Great Lakes Regional Advisory Board at 472,986, as against 598,443 cars loaded in this territory in the like period 1930, a decrease of 21 per cent. Iron and steel car requirements are estimated at 41,500 cars, against 42,695; automobiles, truck and parts at 69,250, compared with 76,595 in third quarter last year. Anticipated car requirements for rubber products amount to 8,780, against 9,361 loaded in the like period last year.

Muskegon to Seek Delinquent Dog Tax

Collection of delinquent taxes on 4,312 dogs in Muskegon county will be started following appointment of four special deputies for that purpose by Sheriff Adolph Charron.

Seeks Reopening of 44- Year-Old Monroe Oil Well

An interesting operation has been commenced in the petroleum bearing area of Monroe county, where a number of wells have been drilled for oil, some of them with good showings. In 1887 the owner of Senator Christiancy's old farm near Dundee, one Nygard, operated a stone quarry thereon, the limestone deposit being an outcrop of the Sibley quarry deposit which he worked by the Solvay Process Company at Trenton. This operation was coincident with the discovery of natural gas in Indiana, and Nygard conceived the idea that if he could get natural gas he could use it to burn his stone into commercial lime. So he put a hole down 2,100 feet, cased some of it with tubing and was rewarded with a good showing of petroleum, which overflowed into his quarry basin. However, as this was before the days of gasoline demand, and his petroleum was worth only 15 cents a barrel, Nygard registered his disappointment by plugging up his oil hole, and letting the water in the quarry basin cover up its top.

Meantime the showing of the Nygard well, which is recorded in the state geological reports, lead to the other borings which have been made at Deerfield, Petersburg, Cone, Oakly, Ida and other adjacent places where, where the usual vicissitudes of short money, losses of tools and the like have been experienced. Recently a group of explorers, headed by Clare Dennison of Detroit, started to clean out the old Nygard well. To do so they must unwater the old stone quarry in which its plugged pipe is submerged, which will take a week or two. Then, if the old tubing is in condition they hope to repeat Nygard's 44 years ago experience with petroleum.

Collection and distribution of clothing for local needy families next winter will be facilitated by the Big Rapids Welfare Union through the establishment of a central depot for this purpose. A Big Rapids furniture factory has donated its warehouse as a welfare depot. A drive for used clothing will start in August, Rev. Harold T. Janes, president of the union, announces.

Big Rapids Gets Welfare Warehouse

Collection and distribution of clothing for local needy families next winter will be facilitated by the Big Rapids Welfare Union through the establishment of a central depot for this purpose. A Big Rapids furniture factory has donated its warehouse as a welfare depot. A drive for used clothing will start in August, Rev. Harold T. Janes, president of the union, announces.

Grand Haven Man Gives His Estate to Charity

Four Grand Haven institutions were named as beneficiaries in the will of James Alston, which was filed recently. The estate is valued at between $15,000 and $20,000.

The Spring Lake Presbyterian church and Hatton hospital will each receive one-fourth of the estate, and the Grand Haven chapter of the American Red Cross and the Salvation Army, one-eighth each. A cousin, Mrs. Neva Cuthbert, Hollywood, Cal., will receive one-fourth share. Alston, who died a few weeks ago at his home in Spring Lake, was 74 years old and unmarried.

Plan $350,000 Hotel

Plans for the formation of the Ann Arbor Wayside Tavern Corporation which would finance the erection of a tavern type hotel in Ann Arbor and lease it to an operating organization for a period of 30 years are under way. The site is the Sheehan property on East Huron street, where the Haunted Tavern now is located. The Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the new project.

The Ann Arbor Wayside Tavern, as the hotel is to be known, will be a seven-story fireproof structure, consisting of 101 rooms, with all modern conveniences. The cost is estimated at between $350,000 and $375,000.

Lee's son brought him a report card and on the edge the teacher had written, "Good student, but talks too much." The card was returned with Lee's signature and these words, "You should hear his mother."

NEW LAW LIMITS BOAT SPEEDING

Under an act given immediate effect by the 1931 legislature, conservation officers and all other officers authorized to make arrests are given liberal powers in regulating motor boats.

The new law, which applies to motor boats operating on all inland waters and connecting waters of the Great Lakes and within a quarter mile of shore on the Great Lakes, makes reckless driving with a motor boat a misdemeanor, for which a severe penalty is attached.

The law provides that no motor boat shall be operated "in a reckless manner or at an excessive rate of speed so as to endanger the life or property of any person in or on said waters, having due regard to the presence of other boats, bathers, persons engaged in fishing, or objects in or on such waters and of any other conditions then existing, and no person shall operate such motor boat on said waters at a rate of speed greater than will permit him to bring it to a stop within the assured clear distance ahead."

All motor boats operated on these waters during the period from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise shall be equipped with a light on the bow which can be plainly distinguished at a distance of five hundred feet.

A satisfactory muffler or underwater exhaust must be part of the equipment of all motor boats and the muffler or underwater exhaust must remain closed and in proper working order at all times when the motor is operating. The only exception to this provision is when the boat is engaged in a supervised motor boat race, regatta or speed trial.

A fine of $10 or ten days in jail is provided for the first offense; a fine of $20 or 20 days in jail for the second offense; a fine not exceeding $100 and costs or 90 days in jail or both for the third offense.

The conservation department has asked the attorney general's opinion as to whether this motor boat law would restrict boating fish spawning beds.

Allegan Prepares For Biggest Fair

With plans going forward for the greatest display in recent years, the Allegan county fair, to be held Aug. 4 to 8, has reduced its price of admittance in the hope of attracting larger crowds.

A public wedding, pig races, county contests, automobile races and a magnificent pageant in the form of an automobile parade and style show are among the many features offered in addition to the horse races, agricultural exhibits and the big program of free attractions.

BUILD YOUR OWN BOAT SAVE OVER 1/2

RESORT and Summer Home Owners, Fishermen, Hunters and Boating Enthusiasts—you have long felt the need of a really good book on boating; one that would explain in comprehensive, step-by-step form all the details of boating, boat-building and boat-maintenance.

It is for the amateur builder and small boat owner that is written. Here are boats that are really worth building and are thoroughly explained that any amateur craftsman can build them well. The designs include both inboards and outboards, fast boats, safe boats, sailing boats and hand-propeller craft.

Besides boat building information, there is everything you want to know about the operation, equipment, care, repair and maintenance of boats. This includes seamanship, boating sense, navigation, rules of the road, handling sailing craft, government regulation of motor boats, knots, storm signals, useful boat knots of various kinds, glossary of terms, tables, etc.

The Sport of Kings at Its Best

A clean spanking breeze billowing out great expanses of white canvas, keels of trim sailing boats spitting the water, expert tillersmen striving to wheel their craft into advantageous position—that's the sport of kings at its best. Here's a pictureque scene as eight graceful yachts bend to the breeze and get underway in one of the spirited races which featured the South Boston Yacht Club meet. Note that five of the boats are near collision and calamity in the right center of the picture.

U. S. S. Akron Nearly Completed

This is the control car of the nearly completed U. S. S. Akron, Uncle Sam's giant dirigible, which Mrs. Herbert Hoover is to christen on Aug. 8, at Akron, O., at elaborate ceremonies.

Who Wants a Nice Boat Cheap?

Would you like a nice, large sized steamship in your home? This giant craft probably could be had almost for the asking, figuratively speaking. She is the Leviathan, once the largest ship afloat, which the United States acquired from Germany when we entered the war. Uncle Sam found her a white elephant, the United States lines acquired her, got into financial difficulties and has tried to return her to the government temporarily. The shipping board, however, was said to favor selling the Leviathan and other U. S. liners to the Roosevelt-International Mercantile Marine line.

"Ma" Is Through

While "Ma" Kennedy, mother of Aimee McPherson, the evangelist, breakfasts in bed, at Los Angeles, wearied by the train of recent events, she takes time out to announce that she is through forever with her latest husband, the Rev. Guy Edward Hudson, and that he must fight his own alleged bigamy battles. He faced extradition to Evergreen, Wash., to answer charges there.

Texas "Rangeress"

Company D, Texas rangers, boasts a "rangeress." She is Katie Smith, 17, daughter of veteran Ranger Bob Smith, stationed at Falfurrias, near Brownsville. Katie is a mascot of the company and can ride like a cowpuncher, rope a steer or calf and handle a .45 with a nonchalance that makes even ranger envious.

DUCK SHORTAGE GROWING WORSE, SURVEY LEARNS

When wild ducks migrate southward from Canada next fall their winging will be the smallest on record, an official report received by the American Game association from the Biological Survey indicates.

A continuation of drought conditions in breeding grounds this spring and early summer have accentuated critical conditions facing waterfowl, according to the bureau's announcement of preliminary observations made in a survey of breeding ranges in the northern plains states and the prairie provinces of Canada. The bureau is co-operating with Canadian officials.

This year's hatch will prove to be the smallest on record, because of a prolonged scarcity of rainfall which has caused marshy breeding areas to dry up, the first results of the study show.

The report, verifying advice previously received by the game association from many sources, comes at a time when sportsmen, conservationists and others interested in the wildfowl situation are already alarmed over the 50 per cent decrease in the number of ducks noted during the past shooting season.

Further protection to the duck supply during the next open season will be offered by new amendments to the federal regulations, reducing the waterfowl open season by two weeks in every state, and reducing the bag limit from 25 to 15 a day.

"It is generally recognized," the bureau report states, "that the conditions now confronting the wildfowl of North America are the most serious in our history."

Cultivating New Trees in Summer

Any new fruit trees which orchardists may have planted within the past three or four years will come into profitable bearing sooner than they otherwise would if they are cultivated throughout the summer, says W. A. Ruth of the University of Illinois. This is contrary to the practice with old trees. Cultivating old trees in the early growing season seems to be enough. However, habits of growth in young trees and in old trees are different. While old trees characteristically form short shoots, many of which form their terminal buds by the time the trees bloom, young trees grow rapidly and often keep growing into the late summer.

Encouraging shoot growth in young trees is important, because the trees that grow best at that period come into profitable production soonest. It is not necessary to cultivate the whole orchard. In fact, it is better to hoe a circular space under each tree. The hoeing should be shallow and the space need not be large. The rest of the orchard can be used for another crop. This will avoid the serious erosion that comes from cultivating the entire middle sections.

Ruffed Grouse and Prairie Chicken Seasons the Same

The 1931 open prairie chicken hunting season will coincide with the ruffed grouse season. The conservation commission, acting on authority given it by the 1931 legislature has ordered an open season for prairie chicken to extend from October 15 to 26, inclusive. These are the same dates set by the legislature for hunting ruffed grouse in the lower peninsula.

During the coming fall prairie chicken hunting will be permitted only in the lower peninsula north of Wayne, Washtenaw, Jackson and Van Buren counties.

The commission ordered a closed season on ruffed grouse for the upper peninsula.

The bag limits for partridge and prairie chicken remain the same for each species: five in one day, ten in possession at one time, and ten for the season.

All of the seasonal dates and regulations for muskrats remain the same as last year, the commission deciding to retain the zone system.

While the raccoon hunting and trapping regulations remain the same as in 1930, the season in which dogs may be trained on raccoon has been shortened, so that the training of dogs on raccoons is unlawful before October 2.

Poison the Potato Bug

The potato bug, properly known as the Colorado potato beetle, is best controlled with poison substances. Mix one pound of calcium arsenate and one pound of lime into each twenty-five gallons of water. Or mix three-fourths of a pound of paris green and twice that weight of lime in the same quantity of water, or use one and one-half pounds of lead arsenate alone. Calcium arsenate is regarded as the best poison to use. Use a spray that throws a fine mist; a sprinkler can is too wasteful and the uneven treatment burns the leaves.

On small potato patches the poison may be mixed with flour, about one part poison to ten or twenty parts of flour, and dusted on from a perforated can or a piece of cheese cloth.

Tell Time to Apply Codling Moth Spray

Reports of the emergence of the second brood of the codling moth at the 30 observing stations maintained in the state by the entomology department of Michigan State College furnish the data upon which are based the warnings now being sent to apply sprays to protect apples from this insect.

Michigan's stretch of territory from north to south and the influence of the Great Lakes combine to make life miserable for the scientists who have to compute the proper time to apply protective sprays. Some of these sprays must be applied at exactly the right time or they are of little value.

The second brood codling moth spray must be used at the time the larvae are trying to pierce the skin of the apple to gain entrance to the fruit. After the worm has worked through the skin of the fruit, any attempts to avoid injury are worthless. The entomologists know how long a period of time intervenes between day of the laying of eggs by the moth and the hatching of the larvae which immediately seeks the protection and food afforded by the interior of apples.

When the moths emerge in the observing cages, the college entomologists calculate the latest date it will be possible to apply a protective spray and then sends the warning to orchard owners. Sometimes the date applies to several counties, and occasionally to only one. The counties affected are named in each warning.

County agricultural agents have the complete directions for mixing the spray and orchard owners who are not familiar with the mixture can obtain this information from the agents, who also know the spray dates for their counties.

Bean Growers Losers in 1930

A story of a fight by Michigan bean growers last summer against tremendous odds is told in a series of statistics by the farm management department of Michigan State college covering a survey of some 85 farms.

When the farmers in this group had harvested their crops, they were confronted with the discouraging knowledge that the value of the collective output was $6.12 an acre less than the expenses. The farmer obtained nothing for his management. For his actual work in sowing, cultivating and harvesting his beans, he received only 16 cents an hour for his labor, which later was absorbed in expenses.

The figures, if they were available, for the entire number of bean growers in the state probably would be blacker, according to college officials, as the ones keeping accounts represented a more progressive group. Their average yield was 9.4 bushels an acre, compared with a state average of 5.9 bushels.

The long drought which cut yields and quality explained the discouraging record.

Economists making the study found that navy beans planted from June 1 to June 5 gave the best yields. It also was apparent that growers spending the medium amount of time on their crop obtained the highest yields at the lowest per bushel costs.

The average total cost on the 85 farms for producing beans was $28.38 per acre while the value of the crop when harvested averaged $22.26 an acre. Co-operating farmers in this study spent 20 hours of man labor, 19.6 hours of horse labor and 2.7 hours of tractor time on each acre.

Bumper Farm Crops in Prospect for Michigan

Bumper crops forecast by the Michigan crop reporting service with indications that the bean and potato production will double that of last year.

The Michigan bean acreage is estimated at 842,000 acres, or 7.9 per cent more than last fall. The indicated production July 1 is reported at 8,400,000 bushels, compared with the drought crop of last year of 4,602,000 bushels.

With an estimated potato acreage of 250,000 acres, this crop represents an increase over the 236,000 acres harvested last year. The condition of the crop is 86 per cent, indicating a production of about 27,250,000 bushels. The drought cut the output last year to 13,688,000 bushels.

Too Many Apple Varieties in U. S.

There are more than 800 standard varieties of apples in orchards in the United States. Only a few of these hundreds of varieties are, or probably ever will be, of real commercial importance, according to department of agriculture and state economists, who emphasize that producers need to satisfy the exacting demands of consumers for high quality fruit.

A survey of apple marketing from the Cumberland-Shenandoah states shows that in some years 60 per cent of the commercial crop from this region goes to Europe, principally to England. The export market is the mainstay of the Cumberland-Shenandoah producers, but they are encountering increasing competition from northwestern apple growers.

Pop—"No, it wouldn't be right."

Junior—"Maybe not, but you can try."

POULTRY

CHICKS DO NOT INHERIT TUBERCULOUS

No need of uneasiness about the chicks from eggs that came from a flock in which some tuberculous has been found. Chicks do not inherit the disease itself. Chicks from a tuberculous hen may inherit, a weak constitution if the disease has reached a stage where it has depleted the hen's vitality, but such chicks seldom live more than a month and more often die within ten days.

If the chicks get their first coat of feathers there is nothing to worry about so far as tuberculosis is concerned. It must be remembered that a flock must be badly infected indeed when more than half have the disease, and that many hens in the flock may remain untouched by it, even though they have been with the diseased birds all along.

Since fowl tuberculosis is communicated through droppings carrying the germs, the thing to avoid is anything contaminated by droppings from diseased fowls. You might walk through your neighbor's poultry house and carry a bit of excrement home on your shoes and if by any chance that were scraped off where some of your fowls picked it up, the disease might appear in your flock within a year.

Sparrows feeding in a poultry yard where tuberculous fowls run at large, might contract the disease and carry it elsewhere. There are numerous ways in which it can be carried from place to place, but don't worry about it coming through eggs.

LIGHT SHELTER FOR PULLETS

A Summer range shelter constructed with one-inch wire mesh walls and a water tight roof makes a good place to house pullets after they out-grow the brooder house.

One by four lumber can be used to build the frame. A gable roof built very low, the eaves about 1 foot off the ground, keeps the rain and wind out of the shelter. If the size of the house is held down to about 8 by 10 feet the house can easily be moved by two men. Roosts should be spaced about 1 foot apart and occupy the entire interior of the shelter. Drop boards under the roosts are unnecessary.

All of the feeders and waterers used in connection with a house of this kind located on the range should be built to withstand weather, and therefore there is no need for the attendant entering the house. The material for a house of this kind will cost about $15, and will care for 125 to 150 growing pullets.

MAKE THE FLOCK PAY

Properly managed flocks of chickens are making money right now, according to the Iowa State College. On the other hand poor producing flocks will not even pay current expenses. The Iowa college points out that the owner of high producing poultry flocks, who are feeding and managing the birds properly are receiving enough money above feed costs to take care of current costs and also to realize a small labor income.

HEN SHOULD LAY EVERY OTHER DAY

With the present prices of eggs as the basis for computation, a hen which works less than one-half of the time is an unprofitable fowl, according to poultry mathematicians at Michigan State college.

A hen is required to lay 90 eggs per year to pay for feed, it is pointed out. Since what she eats is only about half of the cost, it is necessary she produce 180 eggs annually to make expenses for her owner.

When more than 180 eggs are laid per year, the extra ones are profit for the owner.

EGGS WITH LIGHT YOLKS PREFERRED

Many produce dealers in the large cities, especially the New York market prefers eggs with light-colored yolks, according to the United States department of agriculture.

Certain materials, such as green feed and yellow corn produce dark yolks, but when eggs are candled it is often difficult to tell whether the dark yolk has been caused by feed, because the egg has been exposed to heat. Thus, although buyers prefer light yolks, in order to be on the safe side, dark yolks do not necessary mean the eggs are inferior in quality. Feeds such as white corn, wheat, buckwheat and oats result in eggs having light yolks.

To be classed as a quality product eggs must be uniform in color and size, and light yolks make them more desirable in many markets.

LAYS 11 OVERSIZED EGGS IN 18 DAYS

A White Leghorn hen owned by W. J. Shuford of Hickory, N. C., laid 11 eggs in 18 days, all containing double yolks. This hen was normal in size, weighing around four pounds.

THE TYPICAL HEN

The typical hen usually lays the greatest number of eggs the first or pullet year, then drops off about 15 to 20 per cent each succeeding year.

Hogs Suffer Most In Hot Weather

Hogs suffer more during shipment in hot weather than other farm animals. Hogs are very easily overheated and must be handled carefully.

Annual School Meeting

The annual school meeting of Dist. No. 1, Pine Grove township was held at the schoolhouse Monday night July 13, 1931 at 8 o'clock c. s. t.

The meeting was called to order by Walter Becker, the moderator. Minutes of the last school meeting were then read by Clyde Leversee, the director, also reports for the year, with no objections.

Then the treasurer, Mr. D. V. Chamberlin's report was read and accepted.

The next motion was to elect a new trustee in Mrs. Ethel Clark's place, whose term expired.

Votes were then taken and Mrs. Clark was elected for another term of three years.

This completed our school meeting of July 13, 1931.

Only TRUTHFUL TIRE ADVERTISING WINS!

WHEN we advertised the fact that Firestone was furnishing us complete lines of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires that not only met the price but beat the quality and construction of every grade of special brand tires sold by mail order houses and others, the mail order houses made vigorous protests to Better Business Bureaus and made demands upon newspapers not to accept Firestone or our advertising.

We cannot blame them for they did not want car owners to know that they could get, at no more cost, a better tire made by a leading manufacturer, bearing his name and guarantee plus our guarantee and our service.

When car owners awakened to this fact, they came to us, compared the sections we had cut from Firestone Tires and special brand mail order tires, and were astounded at the Extra Values we were giving.

As a result, our business and that of other Firestone Dealers throughout the country, increased so fast that it has been necessary for Firestone to run their factories twenty-four hours a day and Firestone sold more tires in April, May and June than in any like period in the history of the company.

In our advertising we do not make comparisons involving laboratory tests which you cannot verify except in a laboratory—neither do we make comparisons of construction or price based on misleading classifications such as first line tire, second line tire or third line tire—we do not make comparisons to confuse and mislead you as to actual values and service—we only make statements and comparisons that you can verify for yourself in our store before you purchase the tire.

Come in today and get the greater safety, extra quality and extra values found only in Firestone Tires.

*When the National Better Business Bureau realized that their Bulletin No. 634 was being taken advantage of by some advertisers they issued a Bulletin dated July 10th as follows:

"In our Bulletin No. 634 entitled 'Definitions of Terms Used in the Tire Industry' we published definitions of First Line—Second Line—Third Line—Heavy Duty and Super Heavy Duty Tires.

"Our definitions pointed out, 'Although each manufacturer's or distributor's first line tire may represent his best standard size 4 or 6 ply tire, there is not necessarily any equality of competitive first line tires as to materials, workmanship or price.' This interpretation also applies to all lines of tires."

"We therefore recommend that advertising to the consumer shall avoid the use of these terms for the purpose of comparing competitive products."

CHAPTER X

In spite of Mary's impatience for Friday night to arrive, the week sped by, busily. Dick was waiting for her when she came out of the building on Friday evening. His joy at seeing her, betrayed his own eagerness that had consumed him all the week.

"Do I see what I see?" was his greeting. "You know, every time that blamed phone rang today, I was sure it was you calling to tell me you had to work tonight. I was tempted to disconnect the thing. Well, here we are! Where to?"

"Anywhere you say, Dick. You do select the nicest places to eat. You've been about so much more than I have. I like adventuring with you," settling herself contentedly beside him, as if she said, "Take me to the ends of the earth, for all I care, so long as I am with you. At least that was the way Mary felt about it.

"How about a Sukiyaki dinner for a change? Like it?"

"Of course, I do. I never had one, but I like anything there is to eat. Besides, I'd like to try it."

"Okay, I know just the place—on Eighth street in Greenwich Village—very Japanese. Can you handle chopsticks?"

what goes in it. You'll like it. I come here quite often, even when I'm alone. They know me for a regular. Want me to order?"

"Of course, I don't know a thing about it, but I'm ready to learn," Mary enthused.

"Bring us two orders of shrimps, two of steak Sukiyaki, and tea. That's all there is to it. You would think you might have to wait half the night for your dinner, but you won't. Notice those parrots hanging on the walls, made of pine cones. Aren't they the last word in atmosphere? Nice chaps run this place. Not a big place, but they know how to make Sukiyaki."

The tables were filled, even though it was early. Mary looked about her at the guests. All quiet refined people; mostly couples, talking chummily together just as Dick and she were. Each table had its steaming pan of cooking food.

Dick did most of the talking when they were together. He was a charming host and companion. Mary loved to hear his pleasant, easy conversation, to watch his animated, expressive face, his ease of manner. She marveled how he knew about everything and how to do everything. He handles. Almond cakes completed the dinner.

"Like it?" Dick asked, as he always did when he took her to new places.

"Very much. I'm glad we came."

"We'll come often. You know, Mary, my line is hard-boiled, modern finance; yet I am a romanticist at heart. I lie to seek out new places and follow the shadowy lure of romance. Now I'd like to live here in the village in a regular Bohemian studio. I've got a lot of friends around here. Fellows and girls both. I want you to meet them sometime. But I haven't a spark of talent for making my living along that line, so I can't pose as a fake, even. Next time the crowd gets together, I'll take you along if you like. I've told several of

"Why, I'd love that, Dick. I didn't know you were—well, such a good vagabond," she laughed happily.

"Oh, I'm a regular Castor-and-Pollux, Jekyll-and-Hyde man. Watch out! You know my sign is Gemini, the twins. Do you believe in astrology?"

"I'm afraid I don't know much about it, Dick. You seem to know everything. You make me feel so narrow and limited. You're always you." She gave Dick her hand in greeting, then covered his with her other hand as she had a coquettish little habit of doing when she greeted anyone she especially liked or wanted to impress.

"Sure, we'll get along grand," Dick agreed. "Only don't fuss a lot for me, Mary, so you can hurry back to be with us. Could I help?" suddenly thoughtful.

Bonnie's face blanched.

"Not a thing," Mary declined vigorously. "That would only bring the boys into the kitchen, too, because they have a hundred questions to ask you; and we never would get anything ready to eat."

"Besides, I'd be all alone then," Bonnie reminded him with a hurt voice and a pretty pout.

"That's right. Well, we might carry the couch out for you," Dick laughed. "However, it seems practical to give the two cooks carte blanche to the kitchen so that we can be sure we eat. I don't propose to drive all the way from New York for dinner and then not eat. What a calamity that would be when I'm all set for a real feed."

So Bonnie and the boys entertained Dick. Bonnie was ravishing in pajamas and lounging robe of gold embroidery and lace, languishing in a nest of pillows on the couch. She only managed to gain Dick's attention from Tim and Ted by frequently asking him to do something for her. The radio music was either too loud or not clear enough; the light shone in her eyes so that the shade needed adjusting. Dick was instantly solicitous for her comfort when she spoke to him, but he immediately returned his attention to the boys thereafter.

Bonnie was exasperated. Finally, she smiled sadly and asked, "Dick, do you know I have never danced with you yet? Just imagine, knowing the famous Dick Baldwin for almost two weeks and not having a dance with him! This music is ravishing—in fact it gives me so much pep that I feel quite well. Will you dance with me, just a little?"

How could he refuse her? "Why, sure, if you feel like it, little sister. I might have asked you, but it was my suggestion that knocked you out last Sunday you know, so I'm taking no more chances." He almost lifted her to her feet, and she nestled into his arms with a sigh of content, her cheek on his shoulder, her wide, soft eyes looking up at him. They swayed about the room like a fantasy of motion and rhythm, so that it is not to be wondered that both were lost in the ecstasy of it. Mary, coming in to announce dinner, found them thus. She was surprised that Bonnie was strong enough to dance and that Dick had suggested it. What did it matter, anyway, she found herself thinking, and wondered why she thought that.

Mary spoke twice before either of them heard her; then they both stopped abruptly and avoiding looking at Mary for a moment. In an instant it had passed, scarcely perceptible to anyone, and quickly forgotten by them all—except Bonnie.

"Did you say chow was ready?" Dick grinned, and thereby resumed his own jocoseness.

It was a pleasant occasion, that Sunday dinner, and one that several of them remembered later, when times and places and conditions were changed.

Dick sat beside Mary and generously divided his compliments between her and her mother. Mary was a gem—no doubt of it. When a girl could run a banker's office and a home at the same time, her price was above rubies.

Yet, unconsciously, his pleasure of the food was considerably enhanced by the shy, confidential glances and adoring smiles directed at him by Bonnie from across the table.

The twins, however, refused to let anyone monopolize the conversation or situation for long at a time. Mrs. Vaughn scarcely tasted her food in her anxiety for what they might say next. One never knew.

They were telling Dick about the boy across the street, "Fatty" Heinz, who was afraid to play football.

"Yeah, he's glad he's too fat to play," Ted observed with scorn. "I'll bet that's what he takes elocution for—to make him fatter."

"What's that, Ted?" Mary was puzzled.

"Oh, I dunno. But he says to me, 'Huh, I don't want to play football. I take elocution.' And I says, 'Well, what of it? I take cod liver oil, too; but I wouldn't, if it made me quit playin' football.'"

Ted looked surprised at the laughter that ensued. After a minute's consternation, he remarked, "Well, I don't see nothin' so funny about that! What you all howlin' for, I'd like to know."

"Oh, Ted," Mom explained, "Elocution is not something to take like a tonic. It is like music lessons—only you learn how to speak and read poems and stories to entertain people, you know."

Ted was nonplussed. "Well, gee! how did I know? That's worse than ever, though. I thought maybe elocution was what made him so fat. Huh! then he is a sissy, if he'd rather speak pieces than play football, huh, Dick?"

Dick was still convulsed with mirth. "He might be a sissy, all right. But not all boys are, just because they don't like football. You must remember, Ted, that we can't be all alike."

"Well, all I can say it, it's too bad there aren't more like you—an' me," staunchly.

Eaton Agricultural Society Is Formed

Although the Eaton county fairgrounds have been sold to the city of Charlotte, the county will not be entirely without a fair this year. At a meeting of the 4-H club leaders held recently, it was unanimously agreed that without the opportunity of showing their achievements at some kind of a fair, 4-H club members would lose interest in their project, and this important work among the rural girls and boys would be seriously crippled. In order to secure state recognition, the club leaders finally decided to organize their own society and incorporate it as "The Eaton County 4-H Agricultural Society." Proper legal steps already have been taken to that effect.

The following board of directors was elected to duly represent all forms of club work carried on throughout the county: J. B. Strange, Oneida; Clifford McIntyre, Benton; Forest Esten, Sunfield; Glenn Phillips, Bellevue; Floyd Canedy, Eaton Rapids; Mrs. Bertrand Young, Carmel; Mrs. Perry Reed, West Windsor; Carl Hitchcock, Windsor and Walter Ball, Benton. This board at a later meeting elected John B. Strange as president; Mrs. Bertrand Young, vice president; Clifford McIntyre, treasurer, and appointed Hans Kardel, the county agricultural agent, as secretary and manager.

"I'll make a try, anyway," she laughed.

"You're a good sport, Mary. So do I like to go adventuring with you. Wouldn't we make a couple of jolly vagabonds, if we weren't so busy at making a living in this involved modern day?"

"I think it would be marvelous to be a vagabond, for awhile, anyway."

"Not a vagabond—two of us," he laughed. "No fun alone. It takes two good pals to have real adventures. That's what we are, isn't it, Mary?"

"I hope so," she smiled.

"Oh, by the way," he changed the subject abruptly. "How's the little sister? I was so excited over seeing you that I forgot to ask." Just imagine Bonnie's chagrin, could she have heard that!

"Oh, good as ever. Mom kept her in bed a couple of days and she is doing nicely. I should have known Bonnie couldn't ride that long in the cold wind. I'm so sorry I let her."

"Gee! I'm glad she didn't get pneumonia or something. Well, here we are, old girl. How does it look?"

They stopped just off Washington Square on a street of old brick mansions that had been transformed into shops, restaurants and what-can-you-think-of.

A short flight of iron-railed steps led directly off the narrow street into a brightly illumined restaurant that occupied what once had been the parlor and sitting room of the house, the front wall of which had been replaced by a wide plate glass window. Inside walls and decorations were atmospherically Japanese. The original mantels had been transformed into torii of lacquered wood and bamboo, and an oriental gateway admitted them from the entrance hall.

One of the Japanese waiters hastened forward when he saw Dick, smiling welcome.

"Got a table in the other room for two?" Dick asked.

The waiter nodded amiably and led the way between the grouped tables. Mary noticed that every table had a little gas plate on which was a large iron frying pan with food cooking in it. A gas plate and empty frying pan were also on their table.

"Sure," Dick explained, at her questioning glance, "they cook your meal right here on the table, so you know had the air and wisdom of a much older man.

"How do you find all these quaint places?" Mary asked.

"Oh, browsing around. A fellow has to eat somewhere all the time and like a change. You can't appreciate how monotonous it is—eating here and there—when you have your own home."

"I can appreciate it somewhat, especially since this last year. I've had to have dinner downtown and work evenings so much, besides my lunches."

"Sure, you've had a sample of it. You get so it all tastes the same. Like Will Rogers says, no matter what you order, it's the same meat and potatoes with a different name for the sauce."

"Then you might enjoy coming to our house for dinner on Sunday sometimes. Would you?"

"Don't ask me twice unless you really want me, Mary. It's months since I had a home cooked meal. Can you cook, too?"

"Oh, yes. I can't remember when I couldn't."

Dick beamed. "Knowing you gets better every day in every way. It wouldn't be a bad idea to have our own gas plate and frying pan, eh?"

"It might be fun," she agreed, in the same spirit.

The waiter brought soup in red lacquer bowls from which they drank. Next were the shrimps, which had been split, dipped in batter and fried in deep fat. These they held with their chopsticks, dipped into a highly seasoned sauce and ate piece-meal. Mary had a little difficulty with the chopsticks at first, but became expert before she had finished.

While they ate these, the waiter brought in a huge plate of prepared vegetables and ingredients for the Sukiyaki. Everything was so fresh and crisp and clean. A piece of suet was browned in the pan with the onion; then celery, spinach, Japanese potatoes, noodles, slices of steak and several things that Mary could not identify, were heaped into the pan, with a sauce over all. The waiter did everything with deftly manipulated chopsticks. Mounds of snowy rice were served on their plates when the Sukiyaki was ready, and they drank tea from little round cups without bringing up some new 'ism' or 'ology' and of most of them I do well to know even the meaning."

"Oh, I can teach you all I know about any of them in no time. But they're all darned interesting, and I take a flyer into this thing and take theory every so often. Call 'em theories, fancies or facts, any of them will give you something to think about. Now me—and astrology, for instance. The characteristics of my ruling planet couldn't fit me better if they were made for me, instead of my being born to fit them. June 2nd makes me a Gemini, and astrologers will tell you to watch out for a Gemini man. They can be very fickle," he warned, though he didn't look as serious as he sounded.

"I couldn't believe that about you," Mary objected.

"Well, I never tested myself out yet. I never saw anyone I wanted to be true to—until a month ago," his eyes met hers significantly. "But don't tell me you are just the kind of woman astrologers would tell me to avoid. When's your birthday?"

"My sign must be the same as yours—June 27th."

"No, my influences end on June 22, but shooting stars! You're not the right woman for me, after all," he declared, with mock consternation. "It's all wrong. I'm supposed to find my fate with a woman born in Libra... or Aquarius... Oh, well, what of that? There may be something to it, and again—" he shrugged. "Shall we go? I thought we'd see a movie if you're not too tired."

Mary coming in to announce dinner, found them thus.

Dinner Stories

Why Doctor!

A lady with a discontented face entered a doctor's consulting room, and wearily sank into a chair. "Oh, doctor, I feel so weak," she began. "What is your advice?"

"Rest, madam," replied the physician, after a slight examination.

"But haven't you any medicine you can give me? Just look at my tongue."

"Yes," said the doctor, "that needs a rest, too."

"Sweet Adeline"

"A headache tablet dissolved in a vase of water," says a woman's page item, "will make wilted flowers brace right up."

"That's nothing," writes old Ben Hibbs. "Put the flowers in a quart of bootleg and they will burst into song."

One Way to Win

Oldest Inhabitant (to district visitor): "I be ninety-four and I haven't got an enemy in the world."

District Visitor: "That is a beautiful thought."

Oldest Inhabitant: "Yes, miss—thank God, they be all of 'em dead long ago!"

How About a Used One?

Husband: "I have brought you this beautiful string of pearls for your birthday, darling."

Wife: "But you knew I wanted a motor car."

Husband: "I know, dearest, but I have tried everywhere and can't get an imitation car."

Self-Service

The telegraph pole gang had come into the restaurant straight off the job, and they were hungry.

"What'll you have?" asked the lady in waiting to one of the gang's biggest and toughest.

"Beef."

"How do you want it?" she persisted.

Joe waved an enormous and impatient hand. "Oh, drive in the steer and I'll bite off what I want."

Hope Springs Eternal

"You want to marry my daughter. What are your means?" asked an English father.

"I expect shortly to come into a fortune of between 1,000 pounds and 400,000 pounds."

"Why are you so uncertain about the amount?"

"It's a ticket I have in a sweep-stake."

Tick: "If a man smashed a clock, could he be convicted for killing time?"

Tock: "Not if the clock struck first."

DOCTOR SAYS CANCER RUNS IN FAMILIES

Cancer runs in families and will not develop in an individual unless he has an inherited tendency to contract the disease, Dr. Carl V. Weller, director of the University pathological laboratories, told summer session students in an address recently.

Dr. Weller said there is a widespread belief that the cause of cancer is unknown. He declared this impression is incorrect. He listed three general causes of cancers as: Embryonic or developmental, intrinsic or inherent and extrinsic, caused by irritation of various kinds.

Under the first factor he listed misplacement of normal tissue, such as skin back of the eye and tooth enamel which remains in the jaw. A twin remaining in the body also may cause a very malignant type of cancer.

"Some of you entertain twin brothers or sisters in your body and do not know it," Dr. Weller said.

Discussing the second factor, Dr. Weller stated that cancer runs in families and in succeeding generations appear earlier in life. He told of performing autopsies on the bodies of two men who died at the ages of 27 and 27. Both had cancer. Later he learned they were cousins and that many members of their family had died of cancer.

Irritation which may be mechanical, thermal, radio active or from other sources, is the extrinsic factor in cancer, Dr. Weller said.

The pathologist concluded, however, that the presence of developmental and extrinsic factors will not cause cancer unless the tendency is inherited.

"The essential cause of cancer is the inherited tendency," Dr. Weller said. He concluded by stressing the value of early recognition and treatment of the disease, stating that early treatment often results in cure.

Do's and Don'ts for Vacationists Offer Some Valuable Hints

Make your vacation just as different from the ordinary routine of life as possible. The sedentary worker probably needs a vacation which will provide outdoor exercise plus opportunity for mental relaxation. The person whose labor involves physical effort needs a vacation which will provide bodily rest and relaxation.

Be careful about the purity of things you eat.

If you have important business connections, go far enough away so that you cannot be worried about your affairs by messages, telephone calls and visits.

Some of the doctor's don'ts are: Don't drink water or milk without first knowing that it is pure and sanitary. If you are not sure, boil both water and milk.

Don't eat too much. If being out doors increases your appetite, curb it at first and gradually increase the amount you eat.

Don't drink large quantities of water. When drinking water that is "strange" to you, it is best to drink only a small amount at first, gradually increasing the amount each day.

Don't let the small baby drink drink water until it is boiled and cooled.

Don't get sunburned; but get all the fresh air and sunlight you can. Don't go in bathing for at least an hour and a half after eating and preferably two hours.

If you are camping, don't choose a low lying spot.

Don't forget to observe traffic regulations, wherever you are, and don't forget to carry a first aid emergency kit.

Quarter of Million Is Given to Charity

The will of the late Miss Margaret Wallace, who died at Marquette, was filed for probate recently and disclosed charitable bequests totaling more than $250,000. Several personal gifts disposed of the remainder of the estate, which totaled more than $300,000.

The principal gift was the sum of $150,000 to the First Presbyterian church for a new church home and also $20,000 endowment for its maintenance. Other gifts were $40,000 for a home for the nurses of St. Luke's hospital, $20,000 to create a fund to aid deserving students of the Northern State Teachers' College at Marquette, $10,000 to Michigan Children's Aid society to aid underprivileged children, and $2,500 to the Holy Family orphanage.

Smoking Condemned By Baptist Women

Michigan Baptist women, in convention of the Woman's Baptist Mission Society of Michigan at Kalamazoo, adopted a resolution deploring the increasing use of tobacco. They also adopted a resolution to petition the state legislature to abolish compulsory military training in high school and colleges and they endorsed the Eighteenth Amendment.

Non-crushable "Hot Weather" Hats for Traveling

1, Anita Page wearing a grosgrain ribbon hat; 2, Leila Hyams with hand-tooled leather purse; 3, Edwina Booth, white toweling and grosgrain chapeau.

By Mme Lisbeth
While the large shady picture hat has forged to the front in popular favor this summer, it has by no means taken the place of the small, handy little cap-like hat that may be sat upon, crushed into a traveling bag, buried beneath a pile of bundles, but still emerge chic and undiscovered to grace milady's head as nonchalantly as ever.

With the fall the small hat will return. It is in the shops already and will be out on the street before so many weeks have passed. You may even have seen some of the new shapes already there.

Nobby little "lids" of grosgrain ribbon are used for the type of hat that is ideal for traveling in hot weather. It is light and cool and non-crushable. Such a hat as Anita Page left, 1, is wearing, for instance; it's black, and tucked in certain places and draped in folds and forms an exceedingly clever little headpiece—just the thing to wear with either the summer dresses or with the travel suit.

Another one something like it, but made of different material, is shown and numbered 3. Edwina Booth achieves a chic effect by a clever manipulation of white toweling material with a band close to her face of brown grosgrain ribbon. Contrast, you see, but in harmony with her sports or traveling costume.

Leila Hyams, 2, is admiring herself in a small mirror which comes with her hand-tooled handbag of sturdy pattern, which she thinks is just the thing to take out on a shopping expedition. It's trimmed with a silver frame and ornamental buckle. Leila looks as if she were pleased with what she sees in the looking glass, eh, what?

These hats will be worn by everyone all through August, except the ultra smart who must be several weeks ahead of the fashion to be happy.

REPORT SUCCESS IN TUBERCULOSIS WAR

When a Michigan resident dies the chances are one out of two that his death will be due to one of six causes, figures on deaths occurring in Michigan in 1930, compiled by the bureau of vital statistics of the state health department, show.

A total of 51,561 deaths were recorded in Michigan last year and 25,723 of them were attributed to these six leading causes. In order they are: Heart disease, cancer, cerebral hemorrhage, nephritis, tuberculosis and accidents exclusive of automobile accidents.

Some of these causes, such as certain forms of heart disease, are known as "terminal diseases." Public health experts are not nearly as concerned about them as they are about diseases such as tuberculosis and cancer.

According to Dr. W. J. V. Deacon, director of the bureau of vital statistics, cancer is a growing problem and is responsible in Michigan each year for an increasing number of deaths, particularly among the middle-aged and elderly. Tuberculosis, both a preventable and curable disease, nevertheless continues to retain year after year a high rank among the causes of death, the majority of the deaths it is responsible for being among young persons past 15 and below 40.

Indications that some ground, however, is being gained against tuberculosis is given by figures compiled by the Michigan Tuberculosis association. The number of deaths, 2,912, at the disease took in 1930 is approximately 100 below the average for the five-year period ending in 1929. The 1930 rate represents a drop of 10 per cent from the 1929 rate.

Warning that tuberculosis is in many respects a "hard times" disease and that present conditions of feeding and housing very likely may cause an increase in its rate, officials of the association state that constant vigilance and unremitting prosecution of the organized campaign against the disease will be necessary to guard against a flareup in the future.

Mackinac Mission Opens as Memorial

The old Mission church on Mackinac Island, dedicated by the Presbyterian church in 1830 and used by various denominations until 1928, when it was closed, was opened for a community service recently. The occasion was a memorial service for Rev. Dr. Meade Williams, pastor of the church for a number of years. Rev. H. B. Johnson of Oxford, summer pastor of the Congregational church on the island, preached the sermon. Hymns from books more than 50 years old were sung to the accompaniment of an organ more than 60 years old. The bell, placed in the belfry of the mission in the '70's, was rung to call to the service.

Oceana Club Girl Honored at M. S. C.

Miss Lawain Churchill of New Era was chosen a member of the service club at the candle lighting service at the 4-H club meeting at Michigan State college. Other Oceana county members to be honored in this club in years past are the Misses Verna and Helen Norberg and Esther Sundell and Alfred Norberg.

Miss Marian Resseguie of Hesperia won second place in second year clothing. The Oceana delegation won fifth place and a prize of $15 in group singing.

One Minute Pulpit

Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.—St. Matthew, xxii, 37.

The Profitable Way

Straight ahead with careful plan,
Doing each day the best that we can;
Tackling work with zestful will,
Getting from fun a bounding thrill,
Smiling each day at folk we meet,
Keeping our tongue and conscience sweet;
Dodging jabs like the battler bold,
Forgetting the gossip things we're told,
Turning our faces toward the sun,
Keeping serene though we've lost or won;
Taking the time to love a child,
Making our natures strong and mild.
Each little act a simple thing
By which wise men keep profiting.

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

IS TRAINING WRONG ASKS A TEACHER

"Dear Dr. Myers: I read your column daily and admire your splendid ideas and common sense about rearing children.

"In our school and in neighboring schools of about twenty pupils, there is much difficulty in keeping children from hurting each other. For example, a hunk of coal was thrown by a fifth grade boy which broke out several teeth of another pupil. Still more startling to me—a small first grade girl took an axe and in earnest went after another first grader. In another instance, a small boy attempted to throw a stone at his sister.

"I think there has been something terribly wrong with the training of a child who does not realize the danger of throwing such things and who is not enough impressed by it to hold his or her temper.

"My sister argues that children will just 'pick up' such things from other children, regardless of their training. Would you kindly give me your opinion on the question?"

You are right. Of course you must assume that those children do not learn at home a high regard for the person and property of others. Other children with more training may imitate the former. Nevertheless, those children who from the time they could toddle were taught never to fight with sticks, stones and sharp objects, taught that it is cowardly to do so, are not likely to imitate the more dangerous children. The trouble is that most children have not learned self-restraint well. Nobody is more aware of this fact than you teachers are.

As you know, I have advocated in this column consistently the desirability of adequate restraints of children in the very early years. I believe the child, as soon as he can move about alone, should learn that there are some things he shall not do and some things he shall not have, and to learn this by a good spank, if necessary. Among the things he should learn never to do are the kind of things you referred to. It is not enough for parents to tell children not to do such things. They must see to it that their children don't do them, that when they transgress in this fashion they immediately are punished. In our home we made such matters of grave seriousness. Fortunately those reaching the age to become Scouts learned from scouting that fighting with sticks and stones and the like was not sport-manlike.

I wish you teachers would make those children so offending remain away from other children for appreciable periods for each offense. On the other hand, please don't forbid them to fight when they use their fists and are pretty well matched. Some children should be encouraged to fight with their fists in self-defense.

Children like to make posters. Have them draw a picture of a child throwing a stone at another, writing under it in large letters, "Cowards Throw Stones." Another picture of a bully imposing on a smaller child, with, "The Bully is a Coward."

I hear from a great many teachers and heartily welcome their letters.

Gladys Glad on Beauty

AMERICA'S FOREMOST BEAUTY

GLADYS EXPLAINS DANGER OF OVER-EXPOSURE TO SUN

"Dear Miss Glad: You mentioned in a recent column that it is very dangerous for a woman to expose herself to the sun for so long a time that her skin becomes badly burned. Now as far as I can see, the only thing that happens in such a case is that the skin blisters and peels and looks unsightly for a while. But that's only temporary. Why is it so dangerous?"

"Inquisitive."
The danger in over-exposure of the body to the sun's rays lies in the fact that these powerful rays may penetrate the layers of the skin and seriously injure the under strata. The skin will then become thick and dry, and the circulation of the blood through the sin's tissues will be dangerously reduced. Chills and fever can follow a too great exposure to the sun's rays, sunburn poisoning can develop, and there are cases on medical record where the results have even proven fatal. If you want a coat of tan, by all means don't try to acquire it all at once. Be content to let the sun tan your skin gradually.

"Dear Miss Glad: I've been following the excellent reducing diet contained in your booklet on 'The New Figure,' and have already lost 15 pounds. However, I'm rather a lazy cuss and dislike to exercise. I have not, therefore, been practicing the exercises contained in the booklet. Do you think that exercise is really essential when one is reducing?"

"Fanny."
I do, indeed, think that exercise is essential when an individual is attempting to reduce her weight. The reason that the body stores up fat is because more food is consumed every day than the body can use up. If, therefore you make your body use up more energy by exercising vigorously, there will not be so much left over for storage. A good diet will prevent any more fat from storing itself on your body. But exercise, taken at the same time that you are following the diet, will help to break down the excess fat already in storage on your body. Exercise is also essential to prevent flabbiness, to build up firm, smooth muscle in place of soft, puffy fat. And, what is more important, it is absolutely necessary to strengthen the muscles of the body so that they can correctly support the various organs that were previously supported by the disappearing fat.

"Dear Miss Glad: I've heard that an excellent face mask can be made of Fuller's earth and lemon juice. I'd like to try this mask, but have no idea of what Fuller's earth is, nor where it can be obtained. Is there a Fuller company that specializes in manufacturing this specific preparation?"

"Mrs. K. R. N."
Fuller's earth is not the trade name for a specific preparation manufactured by a Fuller company. It is the general name given to a particular composition of ingredients used in both the beauty culture field and the industrial world. It is inexpensive, and can be purchased in any drug store. It possesses astringent and bleaching properties and when combined with strained lemon juice forms an excellent face mask.

Praise Is a Good Coin
Anyone Will Take It
Anyone May Mint It

By Marshall Maslin

One who rarely praises me, praised something that I did.

Said it was good. Said it was a fine job. Best thing I had ever done.

I modestly protested. Said it was an accident. Said I'd probably stolen the idea from someone else. Got red from ear to ear. Was made ridiculously happy by that rare praise.

"I didn't believe the praise was true, but I wanted to believe it. I hoped it was, however, and it was good to know that someone, once at least, thought well of me.

A gay little flame began to burn within me. A fire that warmed me in winter and had the miraculous power of cooling me on the hottest summer day. A flame that a bit of praise had started. Sweeter than luscious fruit. More welcome than a cool breeze on a sweltering desert. Something I had done nothing to deserve, but that was dearer to me than diamonds. I had not "fished" for it, had not baited my hook to attain it; but it rose like a lovely mermaid from a green-white wave of life and smiled enchantingly upon me. . . . A bit of praise. A compliment.

It cost that other person nothing. It was small riches to me. How silly, but how sweet! . . . And what a rare coin a compliment is. A coin that never loses its value, that never de-precates, but is always a Fair Exchange. . . . And then, in a generous and friendly mood, I took the gold of that compliment and melted it down and made other coins of it, and looked around at people and found no one who would refuse my Coin of Praise.

Every man, every woman I saw, was glad to take a compliment. And all, for something they had done, deserved it. I found that it was EASY to praise I felt like praising. If I was happy, I could find an excuse somewhere for putting praise into circulation among human beings and seeing them smile and seeing them flush and seeing them made happy by a bit of praise that was as tiny and as enduringly active as a speck of radium.

I'm telling you that in all the world there's no greater coin than praise. And it may be minted, legally and without risk, in any human heart.

Household Hints

MENU HINT

Planked Ham Luncheon Dish
Lettuce with Thousand Island Dressing

Raspberry Pie Coffee
Isn't this a simple menu? Try it for dinner some warm night or for a guest luncheon.

Recipes

Planked Ham Luncheon Dish—One slice ham, three-fourths inch thick; one cup pineapple juice, one banana, four slices pineapple, one can asparagus tips or fresh green asparagus cut in short lengths, eight green pepper rings. Score fat around ham. Broil for ten minutes without turning, basting several times with fruit juice. Then remove to heated plank or oven glass baking platter broiled side down. Arrange pineapple and asparagus tips around ham. Place green pepper rings over the asparagus tips. Then place banana which has been cut in half lengthwise, then in half crosswise, on top of ham and continue cooking. Garnish with watercress or parsley.

Raspberry Pie—Baked pie shell, four cups raspberries, sugar to taste (about one cup). Wash and hull berries. Add sugar and chill. Put sweetened berries in baked crust and cover with berry topping.

Berry Topping—One-half cup evaporated milk, one and one-half tablespoons lemon juice, few grains salt, one-half cup berry pulp, sugar to taste. Scald milk in double boiler. Chill thoroughly and beat until stiff. Add lemon juice and salt and beat until very stiff. Fold in crushed, sweetened berries.

Dressing for Potato Salad—One teaspoon prepared mustard, two teaspoons sugar, three teaspoons vinegar, one can (small) condensed milk. Beat until thick.

Stuffed Vegetable Salad—Three medium sized cucumbers, four tomatoes, four green peppers, one cup cooked diced chicken, one-fourth cup minced water cress, one-fourth cup celery, one-fourth cup diced cucumbers, two tablespoons of sour cream, one tablespoon minced onion, one-eighth teaspoon thyme, four radishes, sliced without peeling; mayonnaise, salad greens. Pare cucumbers and cut in thirds, hollow out centers, making baskets. Cut the tomatoes in half and scoop out the centers. Cut peppers in half lengthwise and remove all membranes and seeds. Allow one cucumber basket, one-half tomato and one-half pepper for each serving. Fill the baskets with salad made of the remaining ingredients. Arrange each basket on a crisp lettuce leaf. Top with mayonnaise and a few capers. You can serve rolled cream cheese sandwiches with this, and a whole luncheon is the result. Tuna fish or crab meat or other meats may be substituted for the chicken.

SUGGESTIONS

To extract onion juice, cut a slice from the root end of the onion, draw back the skin and press onion on a coarse grater, working with a rotary motion.

Vegetables are served on the dinner plate now, rather than in little dishes at the side. However, they are never eaten with a spoon, but always with the fork.

Mortgage Sale
Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by Raymond Harvey and Mabel Harvey, husband and wife, to the First National Bank of Lawton, Michigan dated December 28, 1923 and recorded in Lib-ber 123 of mortgages, page 400, and by said First National Bank of Lawton, Michigan and by said First National Bank of Lawton, Michigan assigned in writing to Isadore E. Shered, said assignment being recorded in the Registers' office of the County of Van Buren, State of Michigan, in Liber 121 of mortgages at page 400, and by said Isadore E. Shered assigned to David E. Rich on January 12, 1931, which last mentioned assignment is recorded in the Registers' office of Van Buren County, Michigan in Liber 151 of mortgages on pages 24 and 25.

Whereas, the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is One Thousand ($1000.00) Dollars of principal and Seventy Dollars of interest together with Twenty-four and 67-100 Dollars paid for taxes and Thirty-five ($35.00) Dollars as an attorney fee, together with any taxes which may be paid hereafter by the undersigned which will be added at the time of said sale and no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted to recover said debt now remaining secured by said mortgage, whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now, Therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises in said mortgage described at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the north outer door of the Court House, in the Village of Paw Paw, Van Buren County, Michigan (that being the place for holding the Circuit Court in and for said County), on the 25th day of August A. D. 1931 at nine o'clock in the forenoon of said day (Central Standard Time), which said premises are described as follows, to-wit:

The following described land and premises, situated in the Township of Waverly, County of Van Buren, State of Michigan, viz: Commencing Twenty seven (27) rods South from Northeast corner of Section Seventeen (17), Township two (2) South, Range Fourteen (14) West, thence West Eighty-three (83) feet, South Twenty (20) rods, Five (5) feet, East Eighty-three (83) feet, North Twenty (20) rods and Five (5) feet to the place of beginning.
