A recent survey of Clare county, conducted by Clare sportswriters, for the purpose of determining the practicability of game propagation and forest growth, places the total acreage aptly at a quarter of a million acres.

This is not at all in bulk, but is scattered over the various townships in the county. The land is in general farming or agricultural pursuits cannot possibly be substantiated by the wife's 20 or more acres in all, and in some localities a few cattle might possibly get the fat from some of this country.

In one instance the land is now covered with a growth of 3-inch or 4-inch spruce or fir, and if these can be kept in check, there is every reason to believe that in a few years to be planted out, each year's growth might be as valuable as any other forest.

The great problem is to prevent fire and let the forest increase naturally, or as near as possible. Leading advocates of game propagation believe that if any attempt is made to increase the population of any one county, all of its resources will be used up in the next five years.

We believe, with the greatest of confidence in the future of the country, will be able to extend the plan to other parts of the county where it will be found to be the most practical and economical.
