Wheat Crop of Western Europe Is Bit Shorter Than Harvest of 1931

Almost everywhere throughout Europe the wheat crop this year is lower than last year, and is generally harder and of better flour content and quality, according to a recent investigation and report to the Foreign Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, stationed in Europe. In western Europe the yield of wheat is expected to be lower in Poland and the Danube basin countries. In Europe the wheat crop is expected to be much smaller this year.

In Germany, likewise, the bulk of the crop will be of less quality, but this year the English market will be well supplied and in better quality than usual. In the principal grain centers in the United States, the wheat crop will be unusually large.

In Poland, the wheat crop is expected to be much smaller on the eastern part of the grain centers, with the crop not reaching a marketable tonnage to last year when the crop was large.

Dandelion Jim

BY CLARISSA MACKIE

Chaliar

I felt a desired shock for the Tiny, little white peony

that suddenly burst into

flame, a perfect thing,

It grew in my garden,

and there it stood.

It was surrounded by

the other flowers,

yet it stood alone;

I was its only friend.

And when I looked at it,

I knew that I could not exist without it.

It was my precious

thing, my one true love.

It grew and bloomed, and its beauty increased.

Every day I watched

as it grew, and

waited for it to

finally bloom.

And when it did, I could not help but

smile. It was a beautiful sight, and it filled my heart with joy.

I can still remember that day, when I finally saw it bloom. It was a moment of pure

delight, and I knew that nothing

could ever compare.

And so I continued to watch, to wait, and to

cherish that little white

peony that had

brought me so much happiness.

Dandelion Jim end.

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 13

The first two days of the week brought to the weather of Michigan a little more than the usual for this period of the year. The thermometer hovered near zero. The white snow lay thick on the ground. There was no sign of change, however, as the third day brought a similar condition.

On Monday or Tuesday there was a moderate temperature in the morning, followed by a strong north wind. This was followed by a period of almost continuous rain and snow. The next day brought a rest, and the weather remained clear and sunny. The thermometer hovered near zero for the next few days, and it was almost impossible to tell whether it was cold or warm.

While the weather was not ideal for outdoor activities, there was a noticeable increase in the number of people who took advantage of the weather to go outside and enjoy the outdoors. Many people were seen walking around the city, and there was a noticeable increase in the number of people who were seen sitting outside in the sun.

The weather was cold, and the streets were wet and slippery. People were advised to take extra care when walking, and to avoid walking on the ice-covered streets.

The week concluded with a moderate temperature and a strong north wind. The weather remained clear and sunny, and the temperature hovered near zero for the next few days. The weather was ideal for outdoor activities, and many people were seen enjoying the outdoors.
