GREEK RESIDENTS OF CONSTANTINOPLE 2

Although the Turkish government has been giving some slight encouragement to the Greeks of Constantinople, the latter are still in a very depressed condition. The Greek population of the city is estimated at about 20,000, but only a small portion of this number is actually employed in trade or manufacturing. The rest are engaged in various forms of manual labor, and are living in poverty. The Greek community is not well organized, and is constantly subjected to arbitrary demands by the authorities. The Greek community is not very large, and is not able to influence the government in any way. DRAWN TO HIS DOOM.

There was unusual excitement at Fort Crockett, and the soldiers, officers,民間and visitors were all talking of the approaching departure of Governor Crockett. As a result, Governor Crockett was seen to be in the thick of the excitement. The Governor had just been appointed to the important position of Governor of Michigan, and was expected to arrive at Fort Crockett at any moment. The Governor was known to be a man of great ability and experience, and his appointment was welcomed by the soldiers and officers.
