CHARLES H. PUGH LIMITED, P.O. Box No. 256, ATCO WORKS, TILTON ROAD, BIRMINGHAM, 9.
Civic Sunday at Bury St Edmunds had to be held without the Mayor. Alderman Stephen Davies had a recurrence of back trouble after driving the first ball on Bury's two new holes the day before. Changes have had to be made because the new A45 carriageway cuts through the second hole. Four new holes come into play next spring. The Club Secretary, Major R. G. Dove, says that in spite of the changes a full 18 holes has been maintained thanks especially to the excellent work of the green staff.

Ten thousand people were able to watch play in the Open Championship at Lytham St Annes from stands erected on the course.

An outbuilding at Southport and Ainsdale Golf Club was destroyed in a blaze last month. While firemen tackled the fire, the bar was closed.

Councillors of Dinnington Parish, near Rotherham, received anonymous phone calls after a site meeting to discuss building a golf course in the village. Councillor Mrs Freda Shirt said some of them were "far from pleasant".

Hooligans ran riot on the Elderslie golf course near Paisley last month, devastated the 7th green and damaged others. Boulders and bottles littered the turf. Mr Bob Smith, the greenkeeper, said that he had never seen anything as bad in his whole career.

Work has started on an additional 9 holes at Ferndown in Dorset.
If you think "Poa annua" is a small South American python, or that "blue fescue" is a period in Picasso's development as a painter, you have never been exposed to that forlorn community of men who have to go out and try to par a golf course with a collection of rakes, hoes, tractors, aerators, blowers, tubs of manure, hose, sprinkler heads and tears.

The golf course superintendent's natural enemies are winds, sun, rain, ferrets, moles, skunks, crows, seagulls, deer, salt, drought, flood, weeds, rocks, and locusts, but his really implacable foe is that all season insect, the full-sweatered, red-eyed MEMBER who may be further identified by the froth around his mouth, the mud in his hand and the triple-figure score in his pocket.

"Call that a golf course?" he will scream. "Goats wouldn't graze on it!"

In every tournament of 200 players, there is one winner—and 199 critics of the golf course. "Unfair test of golf!" screams the guy who put it behind a tree with his built-in slice. "Who's the course superintendent around here, Dracula?" "Who cut these greens—sheep?"

In California, there are more than 660 golf courses. In Southern California alone, the golf superintendents' chapter numbers 168. For all of them, this time of the year is their moment of truth. The big boys, the big tournaments, come through, from the Southern California Open at Los Coyotes to the L. A. Open, the Crosby, and the Andy Williams and the Bob Hope.

Golf superintendency is part agronomy, part aggravation. A member comes howling in to have a barranca, which has been there since the glaciers, filled in so his topped shot will keep rolling and won't cost him a stroke. It would cost the course owner a real stroke to fill, as the soil cost for such a mammoth fill would run into hundreds of thousands.

At this time of the year, Santa Ana winds can dehydrate a course overnight. Sudden rains can make it playable only by canoe. On the golf course here, a neighbouring oil tank buckled, and put 500,000 barrels of high-gravity crude on to the fairways. The oil company sodded the course. Trouble was, the soil had so much saline content that the players referred to one hole as "Lot's Wife"—pillar of salt.

At Los Coyotes, the superintendent sprayed a green with a chemical to kill devil grass. Unfortunately, it had a foreign substance in it which killed everything. The members wanted to fire the superintendent, the superintendent sued the chemical company, the chemical company sued the outfit that sold them the preparation, and, when last seen, the buck had been passed clear down to a Chilean nitrate company.

Mrs Suzy Frederickson, who is married to one of them, reports that you can always tell a golf superintendent's home lawn. It's the worst one on the block. She is thinking of forming a greens committee.

One course superintendent, fed up with the members' complaints, which were as inaccurate as their tee shots, finally posted this notice. "As you are aware, the undersigned is only the..."
Sisis equipment (Macclesfield) Limited have introduced an 8 ft. wide general purpose tractor mounted aerator to their range of equipment for sports ground management.

Developed from the Sisis 6 ft. general purpose aerator LA/6 for tractor mounting, the new 8 ft. wide version is to be known as the LA/8.

Designed for the American market, where many tractors are fitted with high-flotation “balloon” tyres thus increasing the overall width, the LA/8 is almost identical to the 6 ft. version, having precisely the same hexagon units which carry the same types of tines. Due to the extra width and weight, however, a wider more robust mounting frame is incorporated.

The LA/8 can now be offered to authorities and club users and offers obvious savings in time and labour.

The price ex works is £209 10s. complete with reversible double-ended tines, type CLD.

Additionally, for existing LA/8 users who may require to extend their present unit, a conversion set of new main frame and 2 ft. unit including tines, complete with drawbar and lifting chain, can be offered at £70 ex works. It is not thought completely satisfactory to mix new and old tines in the same machine and users are recommended to purchase a new complete set of tines with the conversion unit.

Wire mesh guards for safety in transport between sites are available as an optional extra.
When Bert Race joined Knebworth Golf Club, 43 years ago as a groundsman, the ground staff used three horses pulling mowers to cut the grass.

It took five days and even then most of the “rough” grass was so high that you could search for a lost ball for hours and still not find it. Now Bert is head groundsman.

The horses are gone and in their place are the mechanical mowers. They do the job in a few hours and the “rough” is kept almost as short as the greens.

Bert is proud of the course and has looked after it for a good part of his life.

Ask him the secret of his well-kept greens and he’ll smile, tap his head and say: “It’s all up here”.

Knebworth Golf Course opened on 6th June 1908. Bert remembers the date well, although he didn’t take up his job as groundsman until 1926. Since then the welfare of the course has been his main concern.

“Jack of All Trades.”

“I look after everything. I’m a jack of all trades. I’ve seen every secretary the club has had come and go and I’m still here.”

After so many years, Bert is looked on as something of a character. His greens are his pride and joy and woe betide anyone who damages them. He once made a woman who was walking about on the course in high-heeled shoes, finish her round in bare feet. He took the same attitude with two members playing a round of golf in football boots.

He is helped in his job by three groundsmen who work from eight in the morning to five in the evening and longer during the light summer evenings.

Bert used to have a handicap of four, but he doesn’t play very often now. He thinks that all-metal golf clubs have made the game easier for golfers than when he used to play a round with hickory shafted clubs.

He loves the fresh air and the exercise you get from playing golf. To him, “there’s no game like it”.

With grateful acknowledgements to the “Stevenage News.”

Those of you who take your holidays on the Costa Brava or nearby will be glad to know that golf course construction is active in that part of the world. The Sitges Golf Club to the south of Barcelona is planning an extension from 9 to 18; a new site just north of Barcelona is also under examination for a new 18-hole golf course and farther north still the Pals Golf Club, near Gerona, is extending from 9 to 18. The Son Vida course in Majorca is also extending to 18, the first full golf course in the Balearic Islands. Work should also start soon on a new 9-holes in Ibiza and there is even talk of a course in Minorca.
Dr Joseph Troll, Assistant Professor, Plant and Soil Science Department, University of Massachusetts, is a turf specialist. He is spending six months in this country studying the problems of turf disease and a considerable part of his time will be spent at Fisons. NEW SHIPMENT FOR VICTA (U.K.) LTD.

Distribution of Victa, the Australian made and original rotary mower, suffered badly in Britain last year. Chichester-based Victa (U.K.) Ltd. had established a commanding 40 per cent of the British market when the cut back came.

This was as a result of the sterling devaluation which made the U.K. operation temporarily uneconomic. Now, partly as a result of reorganisation of the British company coupled with a streamlined distribution procedure, and partly due to a year's erosion of the effects of devaluation, Victa is coming back in force.

They were one of the first companies to agree to participate in the new direct container service between Australia and this country. The first consignment from the maiden voyage of the Encounter Bay was delivered to their warehouse in Chichester last week.

This year they will be providing once again a complete series of rotary grass cutters for domestic and professional use. Various design changes have been made and there will be additions to the range. These will be the subject of separate announcements in due course.

We don't make the most of the common dandelion; the young leaves can be used as a vegetable, but never use large older leaves as they are unpleasantly bitter.

To Boil

About 2 lb. of young dandelion leaves, pepper, salt, 2 oz. of butter, 1 teaspoonful of lemon juice.

Wash the leaves well, then put them in a bowl, cover with water, add the lemon juice, then leave for an hour. Drain well, put them into a saucepan with 2 tablespoonfuls of boiling water, add a little salt, cook until very tender (about 20 mins.), press them very dry, then chop them up finely, put the butter in a saucepan add a little pepper and dandelion puree, make very hot, serve as you would cabbage, or you can also serve it with poached eggs, as a meal on its own.

Dandelion Salad

A bunch of very young dandelion leaves, 6 small pickled onions, 1 bunch of water cress, pepper, 2 tablespoonfuls of salad oil, salt, juice of a lemon, 1 tablespoonful of sugar.

Wash and drain the young dandelion leaves, also the water cress. Arrange these round a glass bowl, mix together oil, lemon juice, sugar, and the seasonings. Mix well and sprinkle this dressing over the salad. Chop the pickled onions up, very finely, and scatter them over all.

Dandelion Wine

1 gallon of boiling water, 1 orange, 1 lemon, 2 quarts of dandelion flowers, 3 lb. of granulated sugar, ½ oz. of yeast.

Pick the dandelions on a fine dry day. Pick the heads off and measure 2 quart jugs full.

Wash the flowers very well, and put them in a large bowl. Slice the orange and lemon thinly and add to the flowerheads.

Pour over them a gallon of boiling water, stir well. Cover the bowl and leave for 10 days, but no longer.

Now strain the liquid off into another bowl, and stir in the 3 lb. of granulated sugar. On a piece of toast spread the ½ oz. of yeast, and float on top. Cover the bowl and leave for another 4 days.

Remove the toast and strain again, then bottle. Be sure to cork very loosely at first.

It will be ready in 6 months, but better if left longer.

—Until September . . .
